3.4-acre site

Levitt airs park plans

Levitt and Sons Inc., builders of the Strathmore Grove development, presented Thursday night new ways of developing a 3.4-acre park site for the Buffalo Grove Park District.

The proposed donation by Levitt sparked criticisms two weeks ago from park officials who feared that the area might be developed as another "detention sinkhole."

Harry Sleek, regional engineer for Levitt, told the park board that the site can be designed as a useful "active" or "passive" recreation area. As an active recreation park, the site can be built with a softball field and open play area, Sleek said. A detention basin can be installed and will remain dry most of the time, he said.

Levitt also will donate $2,100 to the park district under the plan.

THE OTHER PLAN is to develop the site as an open play area with picnic tables and playground equipment. Sleek said the area can be landscaped and have a detention basin installed.

If the park district chooses to develop the site as a passive recreation area, Levitt will donate $4,300 to the park district, Sleek said.

Sleek warned that if the park district opts for the softball field, the field will remain unusable for one to two years while the ground settles.

In either plan, the area will be drained and be built with a detention basin that will hold stormwater about 1½ feet deep three or four times a year. The site can be graded as early as next spring.

THE CONFLICT stemmed from Levitt's request for rezoning that would allow the developer to build 27 single-family houses instead of 225 apartment and condominium units. The change would reduce the density about 75 per cent.

Levitt representatives earlier had said the site was to be developed as a nature area. Park district officials shied away from the offer because of "swamplike donations" made by other developers.

The two plans offered by Levitt Thursday night apparently relieved park officials.

"This is a lot different from what we had anticipated," Park Board Pres. Joseph P. Settanni said.

Levitt also plans to develop a site northeast of the development. Plans are to grade and seed the 1.1-acre site that may have tennis courts installed on it.

Levitt's second building phase includes the area immediately south of Thompson Boulevard and east of Arlington Heights Road. The area north of Thompson already has been developed.

ABOUT A DOZEN Strathmore Grove residents appeared Thursday night to voice concerns about the land donation. Barry Miller, 1453 Oxford Dr., asked Sleek if parking facilities would be available if a softball field is built. Sleek said the site is being developed as a neighborhood park residents can walk to and not as a communitywide facility.

Park officials said, however, that parks are open to the public and would not prohibit anyone from using the facilities.

Another resident, James Long, 1425 Oxford Dr., said he would like to see the park district develop the site for adults.

"Before you plant down toddlers, let's get something for the adults," he told the board. "Adults are the ones who are paying the taxes. There should be something to fulfill the needs of adults. Many homes with children have gymnasium sets in the backyard," he said.

Villas pond is a ducky place to live

There are plenty of crackers for the quackers

Life is simply ducky for some 50 wild and domestic waterfowl residing at the Lakeside Villas townhouse complex in Wheeling.

In exchange for the esthetic value they provide, the Brown mallards and white ducks are treated like pets, getting special considerations. They live in a manmade pond and are fed by homeowners and sheltered during bad weather.

"We give them the run of the place," says Irv Zabrin, salesman at the development whose office ledge recently protected 13 eggs during the hatching process. "They get special treatment."

Zabrin says neighbors "watch them carefully. They don't run over them."

When they decide to, the birds flaunt their get-up-and-go, waddling quickly and smartly in regimented fashion across Bridgeview Court north of Hintz Road, tying up whatever traffic there might be.

Zabrin, who admits he isn't an expert on life-styles of the waterfowl, figures they want to do more than just get on the other side of the road for getting-on-the-other-side-of-the-road's sake. They go "whenever they decide there's something better on the other side." How they sense this, he doesn't know, but he adds if you offer them a piece of bread they'll follow you anywhere.

The Mallards stick around during the summer months and stay just long enough to watch the broods hatch. Then they are on their way. "Where they go I don't know," says Zabrin. "They just come back in summer."

Each brood stays together as one unit. That's why they follow one another wherever they go.

"Whenever they go for a walk or a swim they are always led by the mother duck," Zabrin says. "In the rear, someplace, is the father."

Sewers get smoke tests to find pipe leaks, breaks

Smoke testing of sewers in Buffalo Grove will begin Monday morning in the Cambridge subdivision, Public Works Director Charles McCoy said.

The testing program is being conducted to find leaks and breaks in sanitary sewers throughout the village.

Red, nontoxic smoke will be forced into the sewers. Smoke will come out at cracks and breaks in the pipe, indicating where storm water may be entering the sanitary sewer or where illegal sump pump and downspout connections exist, officials said.

McCoy said residents should not be alarmed if they see red smoke coming from floor drains in basements. Residents can pour water down the drains to minimize the smoking, he added.

Workers will go from door to door Monday morning to notify residents of the smoke testing, McCoy said.

Eventually all areas of the village will be tested, officials said, adding that it may take as long as two years to complete smoke testing in all sanitary sewers. Older areas of the village will be tested first.

The tests will not affect residents unless illegal sump pump or downspout connections are discovered. The illegal connections must be corrected.

Barbara Farr schools choice

Last-minute aspirant gets post

Barbara Farr, a last-minute candidate for the vacant seat on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education was named to that post Thursday.

Mrs. Farr applied Friday for the post vacated by Edwin Smith who recently resigned. Mrs. Farr, 48, lives at 60 E. Jeffery Ave., Wheeling. A resident of the village for 20 years, she is an instructor in British history at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus.

Mrs. Farr said she had just heard of the vacancy Friday and had not been active in the district's affairs until her appointment.

Board Pres. Jack Lane said Mrs. Farr was the unanimous choice of board members. Four candidates applied for appointment to the seat.

"I have no special interest, or ax to grind," Mrs. Farr said. "I'm very pleased to be picked from the very fine field of candidates."

Smith resigned July 1 after serving on the board for eight years.

Other candidates for the vacancy were:

• James DeNoma, 544 White Pine Rd., Buffalo Grove, a guidance counselor at Rolling Meadows High School and former teacher at Prospect High School. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the board in April.

• William Engebretson, 124 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, a research technician for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

• Linda Marulies, 330 Windsor Dr., Buffalo Grove, now a member of the citizens' committee for health, safety and facilities a former PTA board member at Alcott School.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:18 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era: Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

Elk Grove cop not charged in shooting

The State's Attorney's office of Cook County will not file charges against Elk Grove Patrolman William Jaworski for his involvement in a shooting incident when a Mount Prospect man was shot and seriously wounded. A pre-dawn scuffle April 5 between Patrolman Jaworski and Timothy Engelson, 18, ended when Engelson was shot by Jaworski. Engelson recovered from his wound and has filed a $1 million damage suit against the policeman. That suit is pending. The decision by State's Atty. Bernard Carey's office means that the office charged with investigating police crimes has found no reason to file criminal charges against the policeman. An investigation by Elk Grove Village authorities is unresolved.

3 charged in abduction

Three men, including two Hanover Park public works employees, were arrested by police Thursday after they had apparently taken it on themselves to abduct a man who tried to sell drugs to them in an area restaurant. Roselle police say the three men were approached by James Vandini who allegedly offered to sell them amphetamines. One of the trio then allegedly flashed a badge believed to be a building inspector's badge and told Vandini he was under arrest. A passing Roselle patrolman noticed the suspicious group of men, followed them, and later arrested them for possession of drugs and unlawful restraint. Police are calling the incident a "vigilante" abduction.

5 escape house fire

Five persons escaped from a Mount Prospect home that was damaged by fire when a spark from an air conditioning unit set a bookcase on fire Thursday. Jo Ellen Schalk and four children got out of the home when a neighbor noticed smoke coming from a window and alerted the family. Mount Prospect firefighters battled the blaze for about two hours. The fire department estimated some $40,000 damage was caused to the home at 1701 Bonita Dr.

Centel, union talks to resume

A federal mediator has called striking employees of Central Telephone Co. back to the bargaining table with representatives of management. The mediator has scheduled a negotiation session between the two sides for Monday. Meanwhile, a company spokesman said some 300 customers of Centel were without telephones Thursday when a telephone cable was set on fire, disrupting service. Several such incidents have occurred during the period of the strike.

Train breaks apart, snarls traffic

Traffic in Mount Prospect was snarled for a short time Thursday when a passing freight train broke apart and the lead section went on while most of the train stayed behind. Police directed traffic around crossing gates for some 90 minutes while railroad officials reached the train engineer and told him to go back and get the end of his train.

'Stolen' plane back home

That "stolen" Cessna airplane which disappeared from Palwaukee airport near Wheeling Tuesday night and was reported as far away as Virginia is back in its hangar, safe and sound. An FBI spokesman Thursday said no arrests have been made in the incident, although the airplane was reported stolen. Apparently a friend of the plane's owner took the Cessna out for a night ride without getting permission first.

Prospect girl gains in pageant

Susan Busch, Mount Prospect's representative to the Miss Illinois pageant in Aurora July 20, has won preliminary competition and appears to be heading toward the finals. Miss Busch, 20, of 907 S. Maple Dr. played Beethoven's "Pathetique" on the piano to win the talent competition.

Cuts proposed in all areas

Balance budget, Crane urges

by BOB LAHEY

The United States could achieve a balanced budget in fiscal 1976, according to a lengthy study by U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

Taking President Ford's current proposed budget of $349.4 billion, Crane has pinpointed cuts in expenditures in all areas of government which he says could eliminate the President's projected deficit of $51.9 billion. Congress could produce a surplus of nearly $1 billion this year, Crane maintains.

"Frankly," said Crane, "this proposal represents what I would like to see happen, politically and philosophically as well as financially, but I recognize that, given the makeup of the present Congress, the chances for adoption of all or parts of it are minimal at best."

The cuts proposed by the conservative congressman from Mount Prospect cover practically all government programs, ranging from $180 million in the field of space and technology to $10.62 billion in the areas of public assistance and income security.

He also proposed reductions in commerce and transportation of $8.29 billion and in national defense spending of nearly $5 billion. Crane argues defense cuts could be achieved mainly through reductions in personnel without interfering with the development of modern weapons systems.

IN A 35-PAGE printed booklet made available this week, Crane reiterated his argument that inflation — which is chiefly attributable to federal deficit spending — is at the root of recession.

"If we do not do something to reduce federal spending . . . the deficit we face will not only require government at all levels to soak up better than 80 per cent of the available capital in this country, but it will also set off another inflationary spiral," Crane said.

While Crane's largest proposed cuts fall in the category of public assistance and income security, he admits those trims would meet the greatest resistance.

He points out, however, that he has proposed no cuts in Social Security, Medicare or Medicaid beyond supporting President Ford's recommendation for a 5 per cent limit on increased benefits for fiscal 1976.

"Looking at the 1976 budget by function," Crane said, "it appears to me that approximately $10.62 billion can be saved by ending subsidies to those who are perfectly capable of taking care of themselves."

CRANE'S PROPOSALS include steps to eliminate ineligible recipients from welfare rolls and pinpointing those who are receiving overpayments, eliminating duplicate programs, transferring administrative costs to state governments and tightening eligibility requirements.

In commerce and transportation, Crane proposes a moratorium on the interstate highway program and elimination of subsidies to airlines, railroads and shipping companies as well as other government subsidies "wherever possible." Crane also proposes abolition of agencies such as the Federal Trade Commission, much of whose work already is duplicated by the Justice Dept.

In many other areas of government, Crane recommends that spending simply could be restricted to spending levels of fiscal 1974 without crippling necessary programs.

"Certainly," said Crane, "not everyone will agree with either specific cuts or certain criteria I developed" in his budget study.

However, he said he hopes that the suggestions he has made will lead to discussion of alternatives in reducing federal spending and lead to congressional action this year.

Monday: The Herald will detail Crane's analysis of possible budget cuts.

County won't seize booze for nonpayment of tax

Liquor dealers no longer have to fear that the county will seize their merchandise for nonpayment of the new county liquor tax.

But the dealers will have to pay taxes on all the inventory they have in stock on Aug. 1, under the provisions of a Circuit Court judge's order issued Wednesday.

Judge F. Emmett Morrissey slightly amended his decision when he issued the written order. At Monday's hearing, Morrissey's oral ruling indicated that the dealers might have to collect the tax only on items they purchased from wholesalers after Aug. 1.

But Wednesday, Morrissey decided instead to invalidate an amendment to the law which would have allowed the county to seize liquor in retail establishments if the tax had not been paid to the county.

The liquor industry hopes to get an injunction from the Illinois Appellate Court to hold off enforcement of the tax law.

But if no court acts to delay the law, consumers will end up paying the tax at cash registers in liquor stores, restaurants and taverns Aug. 1.

The tax amounts to 20 cents on a fifth of liquor, 2½ cents on a six-pack of beer, and between 2½ cents and 6 cents on a fifth of wine, depending on the alcohol content.

Happy ending to 'handshake in space'

JOAN BRAND, wife of command module pilot, Vance, toasts the splashdown of Apollo and the end of the space mission that ended the triumphant age of Apollo.

for the mission started, promising to finish it in a reunion after all were back on earth.

"There, there!" Leonov shouted with relief as Slayton's balding head emerged from Apollo's hatch. He and Kubasov watched the splashdown on TV at Moscow control.

Apollo was lifted aboard the New Orleans 42 minutes after the heat-seared spacecraft splashed down in calm, blue swells. The astronauts did not get out of the craft until it was safely on the carrier.

"I wondered for many years what it would be like when this day came along, and it's a great feeling to see this ship out here when you splash down," said Brand. Like Slayton, he was making his first flight.

The astronauts, clad in their orange flight suits, were welcomed aboard by Capt. Ralph E. Neiger, commander of the New Orleans. They greeted defense department recovery officials, bowed their heads in a prayer of thanks for their safe return and then took the call from Ford.

"Thanks for a very successful and extremely productive flight in space," Ford said, speaking on a white telephone from his desk in the Oval Office. "We're delighted to have you back safely and we're very, very proud of the great job that you did."

The astronauts then started five hours of detailed medical examinations in a silver trailer originally used to quarantine moon crews returned to earth.

Their splashdown came on the sixth anniversary of man's first return from a lunar landing. Apollo 11 dropped into the Pacific July 24, 1969.

"This baby is right on!" Stafford radioed to Houston control as Apollo ended its fiery plunge through the atmosphere.

Minutes later, as television cameras watched from the recovery carrier New Orleans, three orange-and-white parachutes popped out to slow the spacecraft's fall. The spacecraft hit the water with a splash and rolled on its side nine miles from the carrier, but quickly righted itself.

The New Orleans moved in to pluck the astronauts — still inside their heat-seared white Apollo — out of the blue ocean and set it on the deck.

The smooth recovery took 42 minutes. At 5 p.m. a crane hoisted Apollo aboard a four-wheeled trailer on the aft elevator of the New Orleans and technicians moved in to check the spacecraft.

Five minutes later Stafford opened the hatch, handed out films of the historic flight and then climbed out himself. Brand and Slayton followed.

It was Stafford's fourth spaceflight and the first for Slayton and Brand. Slayton, the oldest man ever to fly in space, was one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and — long grounded by a heart irregularity — waited 16 frustrating years for a chance to fly in space.

PRESIDENT FORD, at the White House, talks with the Apollo Astronauts, Slayton and Brand, Thursday, after they splashed down completing their historic Apollo-Soyuz mission.

The world

Portugal ships to Azore islands

Portugal's military rulers Thursday dispatched a navy warship with 200 marines to the Azore islands where an anti-Communist separatist movement is about to declare independence from Lisbon. The new troubles overseas came as leftist Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves won army support on the eve of a full meeting of the Armed Forces Movement to rule on his plan for stemming moderate opposition and consolidating his power.

In Angola, black liberation movements fighting each other for power following Angola's independence this fall clashed in brief skirmishes, breaking the second cease-fire agreement in a week.

Greeks ban unauthorized gatherings

The Greek government Thursday banned unauthorized demonstrations and public gatherings following a day of street rioting that left over 100 persons injured and 120 persons arrested. "In order to protect legal order, the government is determined to exert all the severity of the law and to crush any anarchic motion at its inception," a government spokesman in Athens said.

The crackdown came on the first anniversary of the restoration of democracy in Greece after seven years of military rule.

Thailand, Philippines to dismantle SEATO

Thailand and the Philippines agreed Thursday to gradually dismantle the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, the 21-year-old U.S.-backed anti-Communist alliance. A joint communique signed by Thai Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj and Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos said SEATO should be "phased out to make it accord with the new realities in the region."

Marcos said the phasing out of SEATO, formed in 1954 to counteract spreading Communist influence, should be "implemented in accordance with the dictates of the circumstances as they occur."

The nation

No agreement reached on oil pricing

Congress and the administration discussed oil pricing all day Thursday without even agreeing whether they had come closer to a compromise, but the White House promised another try on Friday. The House this week already rejected a Ford plan to lift price limits over a 30-month period. Congress plans a month-long recess in August, so Ford would have to have a new plan ready by Friday to give Congress the statutory five legislative days to consider it before recessing Aug. 1.

Catholic priests form equality unit

A group of Roman Catholic priests from across the country announced formation Thursday of an organization to push for complete sexual equality, including ordination of women to the Roman Catholic priesthood. To be known as Priests for Equality, the organization said it will seek to promote and implement sexual equality in the church's "life and structures."

"By excluding women from decision-making and the fullness of ministry, we are reinforcing sexual discrimination in society," the charter of the new group said.

Ford will sign Helsinki agreement

President Ford will sign the 35-nation European Security Agreement in Helsinki next week for the sake of East-West détente, trade, economic and humane reasons, White House press secretary Ron Nessen said.

The agreement is designed to increase East-West trade and economic relations. It will help families split by the East-West line have freer access across the borders.

43 Americans rode in space

Apollo ends an era of pioneering

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Apollo astronauts Thursday ended a pioneering U.S. manned spaceflight era.

Forty-three Americans have gone into space during the past 14 years, beginning with the 15-minute up and down hop of Alan Shepard in a Mercury capsule on May 5, 1961.

He was followed by five other Mercury pilots, including John Glenn who became the first American to orbit Earth, on Feb. 20, 1962.

Project Mercury was followed by the Gemini program which pioneered rendezvous and docking techniques with 10 two-man orbital flights in 1965 and 1966.

Then came Project Apollo, the monumental effort that sent men to the moon in the three-seat spaceship nearly identical to the one used for the Apollo-Soyuz international spaceflight.

The Apollo effort began with tragedy when Virgil "Gus" Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee died Jan. 27, 1967, in a fire aboard the spacecraft during a ground test on the launch pad.

A modified Apollo was successfully flown in 1968, and from then on, Project Apollo rolled from one success to another. The first moon orbital flight was logged by three Apollo 8 astronauts at Christmastime in 1968.

Apollo 9 made an earth-orbital check-out of the lunar lander in March, 1969. Apollo 10 rehearsed lunar landing operations around the moon two months later and then Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin became the first men to set foot on the moon July 20, 1969.

Five more lunar landings were carried out and one mission — Apollo 13 — was aborted with its crew looping around the moon before returning home.

In all, 24 men went to the moon. Twelve landed and the rest flew around it.

The lunar landing program was followed by the Skylab effort which used Apollos to ferry three-man crews to the orbiting space station. Three crews lived and worked aboard Skylab at different times, spending 28, 59 and 84 days in orbit.

The Apollo-Soyuz mission was the last flight of the Apollo, the last planned splashdown return, the last parachute descent and the last flight of Americans until 1979 when the space shuttle rocket plane begins flying.

The shuttle will take off like a rocket, but land like an airplane on a long runway at what is now Cape Canaveral.

House refuses to lift Turkey arms sale embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday refused to lift the embargo on U.S. arms sales to Turkey despite strong pleas from President Ford and heavy pressure from the Turks.

The House voted 223 to 206 to defeat legislation that would have partially lifted the arms ban, levied Feb. 5 against Turkey because it had used U.S. military weapons in its 1974 invasion of Cyprus and the resultant clash with Greece, another NATO ally.

In the tough debate that preceded the vote, some Congressmen said Turkey's threat to close U.S. military bases in the event of an unfavorable vote amounted to "blackmail."

The House bill would have only partially lifted the arms ban by giving Turkey the $185 million in weapons it already has bought and partially paid for. It would have deferred the issue of an unconditional resumption of sales — a move already approved by the Senate — until consideration of the 1978 military assistance act.

The public House galleries erupted in loud applause when the vote was tallied.

Earlier this month the Senate voted 41 to 40 to totally lift the ban.

President Ford, who has lobbied hard to get the arms embargo lifted, kept the pressure on until just minutes before the vote.

Rep. William S. Bloomfield, R-Mich., read a letter from Ford in which the president urged the lawmakers to lift the ban. Ford pledged in the letter to work with the governments of Turkey, Greece and Cyprus in seeking a peaceful solution to the Cyprus crisis.

In another controversy over military aid, Secretary of State Henry A.

Kissinger urged the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to approve sale of a $350 million air defense system to Jordan, and told reporters there could be no question of limiting that sale to a compromise offer.

"The administration proposal is the $350 million Package" originally promised King Hussein, Kissinger said, and Hussein will accept nothing less. Opponents argue Jordan might use the missile and antiaircraft system against Israel.

The House, including a strong bloc of pro-Greek legislators, has been lobbied intensively by President Ford and Kissinger on the Turkish arms sales issue. They argue the ban has robbed them of influence in mediating the Cyprus dispute and jeopardizes the future of U.S. bases that anchor NATO's southeastern front in Turkey.

Turkey has threatened to close the bases and is dealing with U.S. negotiators on the issue, with the clear implication that the outcome of those talks depends upon Congress' handling of the arms embargo.

Call Egypt-Israeli peace gap substantial

by United Press International
Israel's government-operated national radio said Thursday Egypt has provided for the first time a map showing how far it wants Israeli forces to withdraw in the Sinai Desert.

But, the radio said, the gap between the two sides on an interim peace settlement remained substantial.

High-ranking government sources in Tel Aviv denied reports in the United States that Egypt had accepted Israeli peace proposals in general terms. They said continued meetings by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's negotiating team were evidence that a gap exists.

"The gap is still wide and the gap is not limited to one specific topic," the national radio's diplomatic correspondent said.

He said Egypt provided a map of projected Israeli withdrawal lines for the first time since the new round of negotiations began. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger relayed the map along with the latest Egyptian proposals.

The radio said Egypt did not accept an Israeli proposal to retain the eastern ends of the strategic Mitla and Gidi mountain passes and a land corridor to the Abu Rudeis oil fields in the Sinai.

Cairo also has objected to the scope of an Israeli proposal for joint U.S.-Israeli control over electronic listening posts in the area of the passes to detect troop and equipment movements.

The radio report said the indirect negotiations, in which Egypt and Israel make the proposals to U.S. officials, are proceeding according to a timetable agreed upon between Kissinger and Rabin at their meeting in Bonn last month.

The radio said the schedule provides for Kissinger to return to the Middle East in mid-August and for face-to-face negotiations to be held between Israel and Egypt at Geneva in September.

The negotiating team of Rabin, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon and Defense Minister Shimon Peres met to consider the latest Egyptian proposals and, government sources said, will meet again Friday.

Pat O'Brien off the critical list

• Veteran screen and stage actor Pat O'Brien, 75, suffering from a heart ailment, was reported in serious condition Thursday in the cardiac intensive care unit of Little Company of Mary Hospital in suburban Evergreen Park. O'Brien was moved from the critical list to "serious" early in the day. Collar was hired to stand amid 12 wax figures in a mockup of a 19th century jailhouse to scare unsuspecting tourists.

Crackdown on speeders lessen S-curve wrecks

The number of traffic accidents along the Ill. Rte. 83 S-curve in Mount Prospect is "definitely down" since police increased enforcement of the 25 m.p.h. speed limit 13 months ago, Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said.

The number of arrests for speeding also is up, averaging 66 per month for the past three months, police statistics show.

"We had only one accident on the S-curve during April, May and June this year," Doney said Thursday.

This compares with a fatal accident in May 1974 and five accidents without injuries the following month. The S-curve stretches from Millburn Avenue to Shabonoe Trail.

THE FATAL accident last year became the motivating force behind a meeting of area residents with Doney and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley. A crackdown on speeders resulted.

STATISTICS FOR April through June this year show 198 speeding tickets were issued on the S-curve. There were 126 tickets issued in April, 43 in May and 29 in June. Doney said the number of tickets should increase this month because a patrolman recently was assigned the search for speeders and overweight trucks as his main duties.

The largest number of tickets during the three months were issued to drivers traveling between 36 m.p.h. and 40 m.p.h. in the 25 m.p.h. zone (110) and those traveling between 41 m.p.h. and 45 m.p.h. (80). There were 90 tickets issued to northbound drivers, 74 to southbound, 13 to eastbound and 21 to westbound. Morning speed-received 89 of the tickets.

NONRESIDENTS of the village received 145 tickets, with 53 for village residents.

"The officers are enforcing the

S-curve speed limit as much as possible in addition to their other duties," Doney said. "I think that due to the stepped-up enforcement the number of violations has decreased. We will continue to enforce the speed limit at this location."

Most of the tickets have stood up in court. Doney said that for the three months, 144 of the speeding tickets have come up in court. There were 127 convictions and 17 dismissals. Another 39 cases have been continued and 15 have not been heard.

Paramedic students learn to think, act fast

by DAVE GALANTI

Chris Immen appeared to be in pretty bad shape. Blood oozed out of his mouth, his face was white and part of a bone stuck out of his leg.

Two paramedic students reached Immen and began to examine him quickly. This done, they began to take corrective measures, checking blood pressure and bandaging wounds.

Fortunately, Immen's injuries consisted only of glued-on plastic injuries and red liquid. What might have been an actual situation was actually part of a practical final examination concluding a four-month paramedic course at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. The paramedic students were being tested on their reactions under simulated disaster conditions.

THE STUDENTS were quizzed on eight different types of emergencies. Besides examining and relieving severe trauma cases, students were expected to know how to unblock air passages and detect different types of heart disorders.

The "injured" were members of Explorer Post 334, Arlington Heights. Besides Immen, other Explorers acted as accident and psychotic victims as part of their interest in medicine and the hospital.

The paramedic course, which consists of 23 four-hour classes, begins with basic lifesaving measures and then goes into detail on how to treat more serious cases, said Dale Collier, paramedic class instructor-coordinator. The students are taught to perform under standard procedures on their own without communication with a hospital.

THE STUDENTS in Collier's class all have been graduated from an 81-hour Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) course, which teaches anatomy and other basics. The majority of participants are from fire departments, but some are from private ambulance services and other agencies.

Collier said the program will enter its fourth year in November and has many more applicants than it can handle. Class size is limited to 35 to 40 per class, and a priority system has been set up to determine who may take the course.

The paramedics will not be official-

Paramedics end paper drives

Monthly newspaper drives by HELPS (Help Ensure Lasting Paramedic Service) in Buffalo Grove have been canceled permanently.

Mrs. Joseph Schermer, of the fund-raising group, said the monthly drives have been cancelled because of the poor newspaper recycling market. "The paper market is at an all time low," she said.

The group had been able to get $8 a ton from newspaper recycling companies, but now are being quoted $4 a ton, she said.

The newspaper drives were conducted the first Saturday of each month with a trailer at the north end of the Ranch Mart Shopping Center parking lot.

The group gives proceeds of the drives to the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. paramedics corp. The paramedics are specially trained firefighters who use sophisticated lifesaving devices and techniques to administer treatment to heart attack and injury victims.

HELPS has raised $1,185 during the eight months of operation, Mrs. Schermer said. Residents are being asked not to leave papers at the shopping center.

Prospect woman wins pageant preliminary

Susan Busch, Mount Prospect's representative to the Miss Illinois pageant this week in Aurora, won a preliminary talent competition Wednesday that officials say make her a good bet to reach the semifinals.

Miss Busch, 20, of 907 S. Maple Dr., Mount Prospect, played Beethoven's "Pathetique" on the piano to win one of three contests before the final pageant Saturday night at Aurora High School.

"Susan's win pretty well says that she'll be a semifinalist because talent is such a big part of the contest," said Ron Weinrich, state field director for the Miss Illinois contest.

Each contestant participates in the three preliminary shows, Weinrich said. The women are judged on talent and in swimsuits and formal gowns. Talent is weighed the most heavily at 50 per cent, with swimsuits and formal gowns at 25 per cent each. The winner of the over-all competition will be selected as Miss Illinois Saturday night.

In addition to receiving a trophy, the preliminary winners accumulate points. The 10 with the most points are chosen as semifinalists.

Miss Busch is a music major at DePaul University, Greencastle, Ind. She was the second runnerup in the state pageant two years ago.

'Stolen' airplane returns to Palwaukee

The "stolen" Cessna airplane was back in its proper place Thursday at Palwaukee Airport, south of Wheeling, although no arrests were made in the reported pirating of the craft.

The $28,000 plane owned by Leo Brigman, 39, of 2836 N. Avers, Chicago, reportedly was stolen from Palwaukee Tuesday night. The plane is ly certified by the state until they complete 62 hours of emergency room and hospital training and five trips with a certified paramedic to actual emergencies. The entire process usually takes from nine months to one year, Collier said.

back at the airport, Esther Noffke, an administrative assistant at Palwaukee, said.

An FBI spokesman Thursday said no arrests have been made in connection with the alleged theft. Brigman could not be reached for comment Thursday to see if he still plans to press charges.

Authorities have said the person who took the plane — and is still unnamed — is a friend of Brigman's and has been permitted to use the plane in the past. Brigman told Sheriff's police Tuesday that he had not given anyone the authority to fly the plane that night.

Immediate aid cut set

Schools yield to Gov. Walker

The Illinois Board of Education unanimously agreed Thursday to go along with Gov. Daniel Walker and cut state payments to local schools immediately rather than waiting until next spring.

The board's action brought an immediate and angry response from officials representing local school districts around the state.

John Wargo, executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Administrators, a statewide organization, said, "This totally gives the governor the right to dictate the payment schedule of money to schools. I think this is going to cause a serious hardship for the schools. Districts that are now in debt will go into debt faster."

Members of the state board said they were going along with the governor to avoid a court fight between the board and governor that might delay payments to schools. Board member Donald Truitt, Palatine, said, "It seems to me we should recognize what the effect will be on the school districts, but it would be preferable to go along with the governor than tie up all the funds in litigation."

WALKER HAS cut $81 million from the state appropriation for the school aid formula. He said Monday that he believes the state is legally required to cut the monthly payments to school districts for state aid to reflect the cut. He added that if the board does not make the cuts now it will create "chaos" next spring and "force the closing of schools."

State school officials had planned to follow a long established practice of making the first payments to school districts in the amount they would have received if the budget had not been cut. The full $81 million would have then been deducted from the final payment, to be made next June.

Board members expressed displeasure with Walker's statements, saying the real effect of cutting payments immediately will be that school districts will be pinched for cash early in the year and will end up borrowing additional money. Board member Robert Jamieson said, "I do object to the letter from the governor saying that we're overspending; and I think when he says we are going to force schools to close that he is being completely unfair."

State School Supt. Joseph Cronin said the legal question raised by Walker about whether the state could cut only the June payment arose because of wording in a law passed in 1974 which requires the state to pay state school aid in 12 payments. The law was passed after districts around the state objected to the fact that some years the state made only 11 payments while waiting for the legislature to appropriate additional school funds.

THE 1974 LAW says the state will make payments that are one-twelfth of the money necessary for the schools. The problem, Cronin said, "is whether we may pay one-twelfth of the amount appropriated by the legislature or one-twelfth of the amount districts are entitled to under the state aid formula."

Cronin said the state board could take the position that it must pay districts one-twelfth of the amount they would be entitled to without the cut until funds are exhausted and invite a court test of the issue.

Board members, however, agreed to pay the smaller amount reflecting the budget cut and face the possibility that some other education group will sue for the larger payment. Truitt said, "I would rather face a suit for paying the lesser amount rather than try to pay the higher amount and have the whole payment held up in court."

After the board action, Wargo said he was not sure whether any school district would sue the board to try to force the larger payments. He said, "I'm not sure any school district will be able to afford it."

Thomas Holland, an official of the Illinois Federation of Teachers said the IFT will consider suing the board because of the action and might act in conjunction with the Illinois Committee for Full Funding, a coalition of education groups which has been lobbying to prevent cuts in the money for the state school aid formula.

GOP-Dem coalition preserves House CIA panel

From Roll Call Report
Six Illinois Republicans joined their Democratic colleagues last week in preventing abolition of the U.S. House select committee investigating the CIA.

Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and four other Illinois Republicans voted to dissolve the committee.

In a rare one-vote margin, the House also voted to retain an amendment to a bill for aid to education which prevents the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare from withholding federal funds from schools not meeting federal guidelines for sexual integration of physical education programs and school organizations.

In the Senate, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III supported bills to extend the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act until March 1, and a measure establishing mandatory fuel performance standards for new cars and light trucks.

Following is a summary of votes by the Illinois congressional delegation from July 10-16. Included are votes by Percy and Stevenson, and Northwest suburban congressmen Crane and Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th.

House

INTELLIGENCE committee. Amendment to abolish the CIA committee, rejected 293 to 112.

The amendment's sponsor, Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn., argued that the House should await results of a Senate investigation and then consider whether it should create a new committee to further explore CIA activities.

Opponents argued that abolishing the committee would be an abdication of duty and would contribute to a "coverup."

YES: Republicans Crane, Derwinski, Hyde, O'Brien, and Michel.

NO: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Murphy, Russo, Fary, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Shipley, Price and Simon; Republicans McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, Rollback, Findley and Madigan.

COTTON INC. An amendment to eliminate a $3 million appropriation for Cotton Inc., a government-subsidized company designed to promote cotton in the competitive fabric market, rejected 199 to 196.

Most of the organization's money is supplied by cotton products, and federal subsidies have been reduced in recent years from $10 million a year.

Opponents to the subsidy argued that no other major crop receives such federal aid. Proponents said the money is needed for research.

YES (opposing subsidy): Democrats Mikva, Yates; Republicans Crane, Derwinski, Hyde, McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, Rollback and Madigan.

NO: Democrats Murphy, Russo, Rostenkowski, Annunzio, Hall, Findley, Shipley, Price and Simon.

NOT VOTING: Democrats Metcalfe and Collins.

CONCORDE JETS. An amendment to prevent commercial supersonic aircraft not meeting federal noise regulations from landing at U.S. airports, defeated 214 to 186.

The amendment was proposed to halt a Federal Aviation Administration move to permit supersonic Concorde from France and Britain to land in New York and Washington.

Supporters argued that foreign airlines should not be allowed to operate in this country aircraft which U.S. airlines may not use.

Opponents said the ban would invite foreign retaliation against the American air industry.

NO: Republicans Crane, McClory, Erlenborn, Anderson, O'Brien, Michel, Rollback, and Findley; Democrats Shipley and Price.

YES: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Murphy, Russo, Rostenkowski, Yates, Annunzio, Hall, Madigan and Simon; Republicans Derwinski and Hyde.

NOT VOTING: Democrat Collins.

SEX DISCRIMINATION. Motion to retain a House amendment to prevent HEW from withholding funds from schools not meeting sexual integration guidelines, passed 212 to 211.

The Senate had voted to delete the provision from a House-approved bill. The House vote required returning the conference report on the aid-to-education bill to the Senate.

YES: Republicans Crane, Derwinski, Erlenborn, and Michael; Democrats Murphy and Annunzio.

NO: Democrats Mikva, Metcalfe, Russo, Fary, Collins, Rostenkowski, Yates, Hall, Shipley, Price and Simon; Republicans Hyde, McClory, Anderson, O'Brien, Rollback, Findley and Madigan.

Senate

ENERGY. A bill, extending until March 1 the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act, passed 62 to 29.

The bill, which was to expire Aug. 31, sets price controls of $5.25 per barrel on "old" oil, while permitting "new" oil to rise with the world price — now about $13 per barrel.

President Ford advocates a gradual decontrol of the price of "old" oil as an incentive to further domestic oil production.

YES: Percy and Stevenson.

AUTO FUEL ECONOMY. A bill to establish mandatory fuel performance standards for new cars and light trucks, passed 63 to 21.

The bill would direct the secretary of transportation to set and enforce the standards.

Supporters of the bill, which would require average gasoline mileage of at least 28 miles per gallon by 1985, said automobiles account for 40 per cent of the nation's petroleum consumption.

Opponents said the bill would place an unreasonable burden on the auto industry.

Yes: Percy and Stevenson.

Scribbly works of art gauge child's development

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"Look, Mommy, I drew a picture of you!" Mom grins as her child saunters over with paper clutched in hand. But her happy disposition turns to bewilderment as she looks down on her child's creation only to see a maze of lines, barely recognizable.

While children's drawings often don't look like much to the eye of the adult, they do have meaning. Locked in those lines and circles are the story of the child's development, his emotion, his intellect and creativity. SURPRISINGLY, drawings by children are normally quite similar. They seem to be almost universal. The drawing of a child in France looks as though it could have been drawn by a child in the Chicago suburbs. Students of child art have been able to note similarities between the drawings of children centuries ago and the drawings of children today.

They are so similar that psychologists use drawings to measure the child's stage of development. They can even be used to help identify a child's IQ.

Psychologists caution that while children's drawings do go through common stages it is dangerous for the layman to attempt to pinpoint his child's development by glancing at his scribbles on the living room wall.

"Drawings are a good method for treatment and diagnosis of children," said Richard Maller, a child psychologist with a private practice in Arlington Heights. He added, "It's very important that a parent or layman not over-generalize."

"IT'S HARD TO put these drawings into developmental stages," said Martha Zara, a doctor of education who shares offices with Maller. Just as babies cut teeth at different ages, children's drawings take on different forms depending on the child's rate of development she said. If one child reaches a stage in his drawings later than another, it doesn't necessarily mean the child is backward.

The child's interest in drawing is another factor to consider in gauging his development. "It depends on whether he gives a damn," said Mrs. Zara. "It's too easy to ask a kid to draw a picture and see one little thing wrong and panic."

Yet it's natural for a mother to take an interest in those drawings that eventually end up on the refrigerator door. It's fun to watch them change as the child grows up.

The first time a toddler is introduced to paper and crayon, the result is usually a massive scribble. Between the ages of 13 months and three years, children take great delight in making these scribbles, which simply represent movement and reflexes, according to Dr. Joseph DiLeo, author of "Young Children and Their Drawings."

Yet these drawings also have meaning. According to DiLeo, strong, continuous strokes are a sign of security as opposed to light, broken lines made as though the child is almost afraid to touch the paper.

GRADUALLY THE child adds circles to his scribbles, and then one day he looks down on his paper and suddenly realizes that what he has drawn looks like something familiar. He continues to experiment until he discovers that he can direct his crayon to draw something that exists in the world around him.

At first most children draw people, usually adults. Their drawings are often just a head, maybe with eyes and a nose and mouth. Later they'll draw arms coming out of the head, then they'll add legs, then a trunk.

The child adds more and more detail to his drawings as he develops. Features become more distinct. The figures gradually gain eyelashes, hair, a chin, a neck, wrists, feet, ears and fingers. The parts of the body become more proportionate in size, and the child begins to add clothing to his figure. The drawings reach their peak at about age 10 or 12.

Young children rarely draw pictures of themselves. Mom and Dad seem to be the preferred subjects. One characteristic of an early drawing is a large head, because it is one of the first things a child sees when he looks at mother. He watches her eyes and her mouth as she speaks to him. "That's his concept of a person," said Maller.

MRS. ZARA OFFERS another theory. The child draws a big head because his head is big. The head of a 5-year-old is one-third to one-fourth his size, and the head of an adult is one-seventh his size.

Children often go off on tangents when they draw. A child may suddenly become preoccupied with teeth so all his figures have huge, fierce-looking teeth. If he happens to be aware of arms, his figure will have long arms with big hands and tentacle-like fingers.

There are several fairly standard stages a child may go through when he draws. Around age four, some children become preoccupied with belly buttons and will take great interest in drawing a little dot in the middle of the tummy on his figures.

Some children make transparencies. The outline of a leg is visible through transparent trousers, and if the person happens to be driving a car, the leg will be seen through the car door. Realizing that all people have legs, the child draws what he knows to be true, not what he sees.

Between the ages of eight and 10, some children are preoccupied with profiles, DiLeo finds. The faces of his figures will be turned showing the outline of the nose, eyes and mouth. Some children continue to draw both eyes on the figure.

Children usually don't draw genitals on their figures. They usually differentiate sex through length and style of hair.

SOME CHILDREN imitate the writing of their older brothers and sisters in their drawings, said Mrs. Zara. They'll "make rows and rows of little uppy downies," pretending to write.

Trained psychologists often use drawings to gain some insight into the child's perception of his world and determine his stage of development. The Goodenough-Harris drawing test is used by some psychologists to determine a child's IQ. The test is scored by giving points for characteristics drawn on a figure of a human being.

Another test measures a child's developmental stage by asking him to copy a geometric figure. As a child develops, he is able to copy more and more intricate geometric patterns.

There are basically three components in a child's drawing, said Maller: his intellect, his emotions, and his visual and muscle coordination. Artistic talent has very little effect on a young child's art work, he said.

CHRIS, age 4 years, 4 months, is in his belly button stage. Note the arms come from the head. Chris is above average despite the fact that his person has three legs. He says he goofed.

Let the child do his own thing, specialist urges

What do you do when little Johnny swipes your lipstick and draws pictures all over the hallway mirror?

Give him lots of big sheets of paper, large crayons or washable magic markers and hope he gets the hint, said Martha Zara, a doctor of education who specializes in children's drawings.

The worst thing a parent can do is forbid the child to draw, she said. He needs that sort of self-expression.

"I THINK HE should be allowed to do his thing, whatever it is, unless he goes around the house putting the magic word on everything," quips Mrs. Zara.

Parents can encourage their child to draw by giving him lots of materials and his own special place to sit and create, she said. Better yet, get down on the floor and draw along with him.

The way children draw "depends on the way children are reinforced," she said. Some kids don't like to draw at all but with others it's their favorite pastime. Some children are very orderly. A little girl who lines up all her dolls before going to bed probably will be very neat when she draws. For others being messy is half the fun.

When your child presents you with his drawing, don't ask "What is it?" said Mrs. Zara. That's a "confronting thing." Parents should never say "That's not a house, this is a house," and draw it for him, she said. Let the child do it himself. Don't let him copy.

BUT PARENTS should ask the child about his drawing. "Tell me about it" is the best approach, she said. Don't give any clues, let him talk as much as he wants about his drawing. "It's a good way to find out what the kid knows," she said.

Mrs. Zara has a story to back up her point and demonstrate the boundless imagination of children.

Her nephew once drew a portrait of his family, who are of Irish descent. One face in the crowd was black. When asked about the drawing the little boy meticulously named all his relatives but when he came to the mysterious person he explained, logically, that that was a picture of his unborn sister who he believed would look like Ernie Banks.

Mrs. Zara believes a child should feel free to draw whatever he wants. She's against coloring books because children are forced to color over a picture that someone else drew and stay within the line. She realizes though, that they are necessary.

Most of all, parents should avoid placing adult standards on the child's drawings. "There's no wrong way to draw," she said. "Drawing is an expression of something you hear, feel or think so how can you be wrong?"

JENNY, age 17 months, is a hard- and continuous vertical and core scribbler. Notice the dark horizontal strokes.

Canton cleans up tornado damage

Workers Thursday dug through debris in Canton left by a tornado that killed 2 and injured 75 people.

Damage estimated at more than $5 million was caused by a tornado which struck late Wednesday demolishing stores, restaurants, houses and a trailer park.

Canton Mayor Robert Jennings said workers came from across the state to help.

The two tornado victims were elderly women who lived in the trailer park, the Fulton County coroner's office said.

Sixteen persons were treated for serious injuries at one hospital with one person in intensive care. Another victim was sent to a Peoria hospital with extensive back injuries.

One-third of the town was battered including the town square and a large International Harvester plant.

Electrical power and telephone service were disrupted in much of the city which has a 15,000 population.

Electrical workers out on strike against the local power company abandoned their picket lines temporarily to help restore service.

People left homeless by the twister were gathered in local schools and the YMCA.

Herald opinion

Utility tax survives again

The old saying that death and taxes are inevitable is getting a new meaning in the case of the Arlington Heights utility tax, a levy on all gas, electric and phone bills.

It seems that the utility tax has more lives than a mythical cat, it doesn't matter whether a politician promises to eliminate it. Once in office, he is likely to find a reason for keeping it.

The durability of the tax, levied in 1970 by a village board which said there were certain specific projects that needed completion, was demonstrated once again by the vote of Village Pres. James T. Ryan this week to continue the tax for a new project — to finance construction of a public works garage.

Ryan has assured everyone that the action does not reverse his campaign position on the utility tax. "I haven't changed my mind at all," he said.

Such assurances do little for the voters, however. In March, during the heat of his campaign for village president, Ryan proposed a budget which called for eliminating both the utility tax and the proposed public works garage from the village budget.

In announcing that position, during the campaign, Ryan put himself in the same camp with his opponent, Village Trustee David Griffin, and effectively neutralized the issue in the campaign.

Now Ryan says he is supporting construction of the garage and continuation of the utility tax because it would be "penny wise and pound foolish" not to build the village garage. He also says he is "leaning strongly" toward the idea that the garage would be the last project funded by the utility tax.

"Leaning strongly" is quite different from Ryan's unequivocal statement in March that the utility tax should be reduced this year and eliminated next year, even if it had to be replaced by property taxes.

In March, Ryan was saying the utility tax hit homeowners harder than business and that replacing the tax would save the average citizen money.

But not, apparently, this year. The new garage, which has been an issue in the village for months, will apparently be built, and the utility tax will be continued until at least May 1976.

The life of the utility tax in Arlington Heights is truly remarkable, and Ryan's switch on the issue seems to ensure the "temporary" tax will be around for awhile.

Split Harper ballot will aid voter choice

The Harper College Board of Trustees has set the date for the referendum for building at the present campus and for buying a second campus. Now it should act to split the referendum to give voters the chance to vote separately on at least some of the issues involved.

The board still has the chance to split the referendum when it adopts the form of the ballot. As we have suggested previously, the board should give voters the opportunity to vote separately on the $2.8 million for buildings at the second site and should also consider a separate vote on the funds to complete a physical education building at the present campus without state funds.

A thoughtful decision on the full referendum will have to be made by voters. Giving voters the chance to vote on the various issues separately will help them make selective decisions.

Voters particularly may question the proposal to authorize funds now for building on the second site. Splitting the issue would make practical sense for the college, because it would mean that voters who had doubts about that part of the referendum would still be able to vote in favor of reserving land for a second campus if it's needed and completing the present campus.

Giving the voters that kind of choice, instead of asking for an all or nothing vote, makes sense.

Rediscovery of their role urged

'Send power back to the states'

Editor's Note: Dan Lufkin was Connecticut's first Commissioner of Environmental Protection. He is chairman of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, a New York investment banking firm, and the author of the recently published book, "Many Sovereign States" (David McKay).

by DAN LUFKIN

The best Bicentennial gift this country can give itself is a rediscovery of the meaning and value of its 50 states. I am not referring to their scenic wonders or historic monuments but to the unique and essential contribution they make to our federal system of government.

Over the past 40 years, the survival of the states has been very much in doubt. As our nation has been plunged into the trauma of successive wars and depressions, policy and power have shifted from the state capitals to the bureaucracies on the Potomac. One social historian, watching America trying to rid itself of the shackles of the Great Depression, said, "The American state is finished. I do not predict that the states will go but affirm that they have gone."

For a generation, we have acted as if we believe this obituary. "The states are dead. Long live Washington, D.C." A succession of "strong" presidents, each trying to embody the variety and complexity of the nation as a whole, has tried to relocate the levers of power in the executive branch of government. For short periods of time, their ability to summon America's vast resources to meet national and international crises seemed to work. Big government cured the Depression and won World War II. It ended 200 years of racial discrimination and declared war on poverty. At least that was its version of events. From the White House, the message came loud and clear: "Don't try to solve your own problems. The executive branch alone sees the big picture. It alone can provide the big answers."

Over the last decade, especially, policy has been established and legislation designed in the executive branch as never before in our history. If the Congress has had the temerity to pass bills the White House didn't like, funds were simply impounded and programs voted by the "representatives of the people" were starved to death.

In recent months, Congress has tried to re-establish its equality if not its preeminence as a keystone of our federal system. While it has enjoyed some successes, especially in setting limits on presidential power to make commitments abroad, it has been too weak and divided to provide leadership on domestic issues such as energy and economic policy.

Meanwhile, as attention has been focused on the struggles between Congress and the White House, strong political leadership has been emerging in the states as a new breed of governors in many, if not all, of America's 50 state houses is providing a kind of tough decisiveness that hard times demand.

There is good reason for this emergence of the state as the center of decision-making in domestic affairs. The White House may see the big picture, but most Americans don't occupy that large frame. They must live their lives from day to day, feeding their families, paying the rent or the mortgage, battling the traffic, holding or finding jobs, concerned for the daily — and nightly — health, and safety of self, family and neighborhood.

Only state and local government are close enough to the scene to administer these day-by-day needs with any degree of effectiveness or timeliness. And, when the crunch comes, the American people know that the answers are not going to come from either the Congress or the White House. In a recent Harris poll, the great majority affirmed that the state is the most important factor in all services that impact directly on their daily lives: education, transportation, health, police protection, law enforcement, welfare, parks and recreation and pollution control. The only areas in which the federal government really is decisive, according to this poll, are national defense, social security and cancer research.

As the economy has slumped and vital resources are in increasingly short supply, the people are demanding accountability as never before. They are tired of bureaucratic double talk, congressional vacillating and the Big Brother attitude of the Executive branch. They want most of all to know precisely who is making the decisions that affect their daily lives so that these men and women can be held responsible for their actions. The federal bureaucracy has 100,000 hiding places. At the state and local level there are none. No place to hide. And that's why, with their campaign rhetoric behind them, governors like Dukakis, Brown, Walker, Longley, Evans, Milliken, Bond and Carey are coming on strong, biting bullets hard, and winning respect, if not popularity, for their policies.

We've come a long way since the days when governors were tools of special interests and state legislatures were the "bawdy houses" of politics. With revenue sharing at least being tried out as national policy, the states are once again in a position to be "laboratories of democracy," as Justice Brandeis described them. In environmental protection, resource management, welfare policy, energy conservation, revenue generation, public safety, health and educational services, the states are coming up with creative legislation based on their unique problems and individual needs.

A Connecticut can create a Resource Recovery Authority to handle its mountains of solid waste on a statewide basis. A Florida can pass a bill of rights for the retarded and the handicapped within its borders. A New Hampshire can pioneer a state lottery to help support public education. An Oregon can ban aerosol sprays and nonreturn bottles. A New York can create a "big MAC" to help bail out a near bankrupt New York City.

These and hundreds more pieces of local legislation are the cutting edge of political vision and accountability. Not all are good. Not all will work. But the states are trying, and if there is failure, the people will know immediately who is responsible and why.

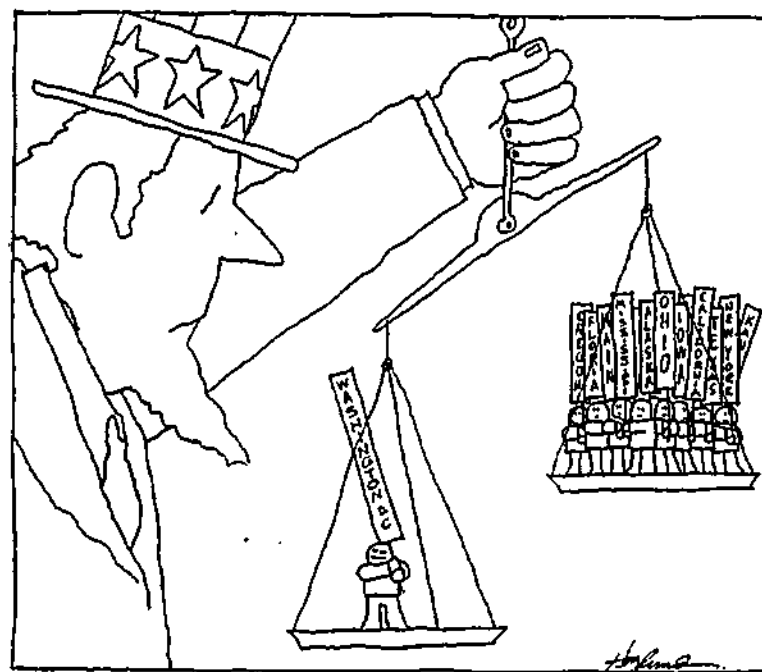

As we begin the countdown to our 200th year, it would profit us all to look to the future rather than to concentrate on the past. As our great native poet, Stephen Vincent Benet, said, "America is promises."

Our glory as a nation is that after 200 years, we are still unfinished, still experimenting, still finding new definitions and objectives for our unique revolution.

We will not enter our third century as a democratic society unless we recognize the fundamental basis of our federal system. This means, returning to the people — through their state and local representatives — the power to make independent local decisions within the broad framework of national policy. It also means providing funds in significant amounts to permit local government to function creatively and in the best interest of those it serves — to deal with people as neighbors — not as subjects.

No place to hide. That is the way the people want their government to work at every level. If we are to survive as a decent and honorable nation — if we are to fulfill the promises that were made at our birth — that is the kind of government the people must be given.

Reader attacks secrecy editorial

Since the Vietnam era, practically the entire national news media has assumed a very critical, negative stance towards anything or anyone to the "right" of Sen. Kennedy. The predominant attitude has been "let's see if we can find something wrong here" — almost never the converse. It seems to this reader that a healthy portion of what's in the news is really only half there — and half of the truth rarely depicts an occurrence accurately.

I had hoped that this practice would remain confined to the national media, and that gradually more honest and reasonable heads would prevail. But it has become apparent that not only is it to continue, it has spread and captivated our local folk as well. The Herald Opinion of Friday, July 25 is a fine example.

In this editorial, Rep. Michael Harrington is depicted as a hero, along with Daniel Ellsberg, for illegally divulging secret information, because they decided that it would expose some other illegal activity, and therefore placed "a special burden" on them to do so.

Rep. Harrington twice signed a pledge stating he agreed to "honor" the rules that forbid the releasing of such information, but immediately dishonored his promise by telling all to the Washington Post, an aid to Sen.

Church and two other Senators. When called to task for what he had done, Rep. Harrington was asked if he had not felt bound by the pledge he willingly signed. His reply:

"In a strange way, it is sort of a yes and no." Later on it turned to "no": "I didn't feel... any compunction at all at that point in time about those rules." (to which he had promised to abide by.)

Since The Herald terms Rep. Harrington a "hero," we must assume either the editor was ignorant of most of the facts or he is intentionally holding up to the public as someone to epitomize an elected official who is a confessed liar!

This is by no means the first issue on which The Herald has been guilty of assuming a ridiculous position. Since their endorsement of Betty Spence, Rep. Philip Crane has received the typical national media treatment here at home too (i.e., "Crane May Apply for Food Stamps"). This is particularly striking since Mr. Crane's support approaches two-thirds of the voting electorate in this area.

From these examples plus many more, I can only assume that The Herald has chosen to cast in with the balance of the media. Those who assume this position of constant criticism and negativism, coupled with half-truths and innuendos, are a detriment to our village, our country, and the free world at large. I know that there are other readers whose feelings echo mine even more forcefully.

To The Herald management: Since you have chosen this course, I cannot support your positions and therefore your publication, either ideologically or financially. You compel me to cancel our subscription and to urge others to do so also.

Dateline 1776

(United Press International)

SALEM, Mass., July 25—Richard Darby, whose schooner Quero carried the American flag to Lexington and Concord to England ahead of Gen. Gage's report, dunned the provincial congress for a little over 116 pounds sterling. His brother, John Derby, skipper of the ship, submitted an expense account of 57 pounds.

The almanac

Today is Friday, July 25, the 206th day of 1975 with 159 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo.

American artist Maxfield Parrish and actor Walter Brennan were born on July 25, the artist in 1870 and Brennan in 1894.

On this day in history:

• In 1866, Ulysses S. Grant became the first American officer to reach the rank of general in the U.S. Army.

• In 1952, Puerto Rico became a self-governing U.S. Commonwealth.

• In 1972, Democratic vice presidential nominee Thomas Eagleton, a Missouri senator, disclosed that he had psychiatric care for "nervous ailments" in the 1960s. Presidential nominee George McGovern removed him from the ticket and replaced him with Sargent Shriver.

• In 1974, the U.S. Supreme Court all but banned the busing of children across district lines for the purpose of integration.

A thought for the day: American statesman Daniel Webster said, "Let our object be our country, our whole country, and nothing but our country."

New program coordinates testing

Hospital lab costs may drop 50%

Four hospitals in the Northwest suburbs have joined a program that could save patients up to 50 per cent on certain laboratory tests.

The program, coordinated by the North Suburban Assn. for Health Resources in Northbrook, involves tests which must be sent to a commercial laboratory. Such tests are rare and require special techniques but cost some hospitals between $5,000 and $8,000 a month, said Allen Weinstein, executive director of the association.

Participating in the program are Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village; Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights; Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, and Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

ALLEN WEINSTEIN, executive director of the association, said the group studied the problem of expensive lab tests for a year before choosing a cost-sharing plan. He said eight hospitals in the north and northwest suburbs are involved. He said tests are sent to a New Jersey laboratory which can have results back to hospitals within 24 hours.

"The dollar savings is quite considerable depending on the hospital," Weinstein said. "What one hospital might send out, another might not. It depends on what they are equipped to handle. Some 90 to 95 per cent of lab tests are usually done at a hospital."

"The tests that are sent out are not the ones you do everyday," he said. "They can be expensive. At worst the hospital saves 30 per cent of the cost and at best, 50 per cent of the cost by joining the program."

Bruce MacCallum, laboratory manager at Northwest Community, said the hospital is saving only between 20 to 25 per cent on the program but feels it is worthwhile. "So far it's working well," he said. "We will continue to belong and continue to evaluate the program."

Immediate aid cut set

Special ed certification needed

Special education supervisors in local districts must be certified for their jobs, or state funds may be withheld, an evaluation of special education programs by the Illinois Office of Education states.

The IOE released its written evaluation on such programs operated by local school districts and by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Cooperative.

Although the report highly praises the majority of area special education programs, it strongly criticizes administration representatives in local districts as not holding state administration certificates in special education.

THE REPORT, compiled by William R. Zbinden of the School Approval Section of IOE, warns, "It would appear justified to recommend the withholding of all special education state reimbursement until such time as these concerns are brought within compliance of the law."

Zbinden recommends all administration representatives be fully approved as directors or supervisors of special education. Only two area elementary districts, Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, have certified spe-

2 groups likely to become separate in August

The Northwest Education Cooperative Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization board reviewed an interim plan of reorganization which is expected to be approved in early August.

The reorganization plan calls for the separation of NEC and NSSEO into separate organizations with separate governing boards. Currently NSSEO, which operates low-incidence special education programs for 10 area school districts, is administered by NEC, which operates nonspecial education cooperative ventures for the districts.

Gloria Kinney, NEC director, said the boards would sit at different times. She said the NEC board would be made up of representatives from only those districts which choose to take part in cooperative programs. Now, eight of the 10 NSSEO districts are in NEC.

cial education directors.

Many of the areas criticized by the report have been corrected by NSSEO and the Northwest Education Cooperative, which was set up to administer the NSSEO special education cooperative.

The report calls for the separation of NEC and NSSEO, a move which the board discussed Wednesday night.

THE REPORT ALSO recommends that the NSSEO director report to the board, rather than through the NEC administration. This method of reporting was approved by the board last month.

The report also states that there is inadequate supervision and services, that there is a need for more communication between NSSEO and its 10 member districts and that NSSEO should keep files on all special education teachers in the 10 districts.

The report praised social worker services, the ratio of psychologists and speech therapists to students in district programs, special education class sizes in general, the amount and kind of materials and supplies available to teachers, special education facilities in the districts and the special schools operated by NSSEO and Sunrise Lake Camp for the handicapped.

Sex doctor wants us to eat natural

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The average American consumes 22 pounds of unnecessary chemicals in food a year, because of the laxity of the Food and Drug Administration, and Dr. David Reuben wants it to stop.

Reuben, who told us all we wanted to know about sex, now wants to tell us how to keep our bodies healthy enough to enjoy it.

His highest recommendation is to eat two cents worth of bran each day.

"I've made a pledge not to consume nonfood products," said Reuben, who claims such products are prevalent on supermarket shelves and in restaurants and cafes.

"We have limitations of limitations," he said. THE GIST OF his new book, "The Save-Your-Life Diet," Random House, $7.95 is that a high fiber regimen, particularly daily use of bran, is the best protection against disease, including heart attacks and cancer of the colon.

Interviewed at lunch in a bistro overlooking San Francisco Bay, Reuben also emphasized the need to avoid chemicals, such as food additives, and to eat natural and nutritious meals.

The FDA, he said, allows 64 chemicals to be added to foods without being listed on the product's label.

"The FDA has the responsibility to keep harmful substances from our bodies. Where are they when we need them?"

CHEMICAL ADDITIVES, he said, are not put there for the consumer's benefit but for the benefit of manufacturers.

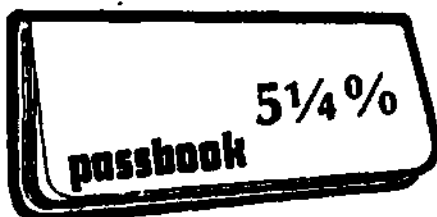

What Americans should do, he said, is return to the simple style of preparing and eating food that was practiced until about 100 years ago, the time of the invention of the steel rolling wheel for processing grain.

"The ideal is to consume natural foods and vegetables, brown rice and whole wheat bread, which can be easily made in the modern kitchen," said Reuben.

Thompson seeks to erase 'unknown' Downstate image

by United Press International

In his first three weeks as a candidate for governor of Illinois, James R. Thompson has received $16,000 in unsolicited donations and offers of help from 800 volunteers.

It is an optimistic beginning for a Chicago Republican making his first run for public office. But Thompson, who last month stepped down as U.S. attorney for Northern Illinois, estimates he will need $2 million and a lot of movie if he is to achieve his goal.

Thompson started his campaign July 1, since he was forbidden by federal law to engage in politics while he was U.S. attorney, and he said his neophyte political status became apparent in his first street-campaign attempt Downstate.

He set out for Jerseyville in Jersey County by himself, then stood on a street corner and waited, because he is used to being recognized and frequently stopped by people on Chicago streets who are aware of his string of successful prosecutions in political corruption cases.

"I finally realized nobody in Jerseyville knew who I was," Thompson said. "A young reporter down there saved me politically. I was a big kid from the city who didn't know what to do and he did."

SINCE THEN, Thompson said, he has learned to introduce himself and is getting better at shaking hands. He has opened a campaign headquarters, has one faithful assistant and 800 volunteers, and is trying to meet as many Downstaters as he can.

"I intend to use the remainder of the summer to go Downstate as frequently as I can both to let the people see me and hear me and become acquainted with me, and to meet the professional party people whose job it is to run election campaigns," he said.

"I'll be in four Downstate-county fairs this week at Edgar, Champaign, Clay and Lee counties, and I intend to make full use of the county fair circuit, the picnic circuit, the firemen's barbecues, the Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis and everything else between now and the fall.

"Then I'll concentrate on the area around this neck-of-the woods (Chicago) during the winter time when it's easier to do that."

SO FAR, Thompson said, he has not hired many staff members, and doesn't plan to until he is sure he can pay them.

"When politicians first told me that a statewide race in Illinois in 1978-79 would take a minimum of $2 million, I thought that was staggering," he said.

"I immediately started to worry about how that could be raised since this is the first statewide campaign to be run under the new disclosure laws. Second, we're in a difficult economic period. Both of those are going to have an impact on political fund raising."

Thompson said he thinks Gov. Daniel Walker has done his campaign fund raising in a questionable way and he wants to make sure his own finances don't come out looking as murky.

"I intend to make that a major issue of the campaign," he said. "So I am determined there shall be no criticism or doubt of how I raise funds. We'll spend what we raise. We're going to have no campaign deficits."

HE SAID HE'S been encouraged by the money that has come in unsolicited so far.

"Most of it has come from people who are just people who have written in," he said. "A lot of them say they've never given to a political campaign before, but they're grateful for what I did as U.S. attorney, or they're excited about somebody like me going into politics, or they want to work in the campaign, and they'll send along $5 or $10 or $25 to help."

"I think that's an inspirational thing."

Auto mechanics to vote today on contract

Nearly 4,000 Chicago area auto mechanics will vote today on a contract agreement offered by the Employers Assn. of Greater Chicago. If the contract is accepted, mechanics could be back on the job at new car dealerships Monday or Tuesday, ending a work stoppage that began July 2.

The voting by members of Local 701, International Assn. of Machinists will start at 8 a.m. at union offices, 133 S. Ashland Blvd., Chicago. The voting will continue until 9 p.m. The contract proposal, which reportedly includes a wage increase for mechanics, was hammered out by negotiators for Local 701 and the new car dealer association at a Wednesday night meeting in Hillside.

The work stoppage began when auto mechanics called in sick at Chicago area new car dealerships. The workers' contract had expired June 30. The dispute, involving an attempt by the 281-member employer association to impose a new contract, later included a strike and picketing by Local 701 members. Federal mediators called a series of bargaining sessions in Chicago. Issues included wages and fringe benefits.

Nasty Mick and the Stones wow 60,000 in three days

by TOM VON MALDER

The Rolling Stones' first Chicago appearance in three years was an exciting surge of raw rock energy, the kind that couldn't have left one disappointed fan among the roughly 20,000 who packed the Stadium Tuesday, the opening of a three-night Stones engagement.

Mick Jagger, and the Stones offered two hours of almost non-stop music, singing and playing a mixture of old and new songs — nearly every one a hit record. And while the Stones relied a lot on gimmicks, there was no doubt to the force of their music and hold on the audience.

THE LARGEST prop used by the band was a giant lotus stage, resembling a crazy aluminum-sided party hat with a nylon point stretching to the Stadium roof. The sides, or "petals," dropped down in order to give Jagger plenty of room to jump about and run.

The six petals dropped as the Stones were introduced. Jagger, who had climbed up the front petal moments before, rode it down while the loudspeakers played Aaron Copeland's "Fanfare for the Common Man."

The band immediately launched into "Honky Tonk Woman" and "All Down the Line."

Jagger, dressed in a white with stripes clown-type pajama suit with pink jacket and bared chest, was into his outrageous posing from the start with facial and hand-wrist movements and steps like a demented dancer. His motions were further magnified by the rising and dropping of the petals, which acted at times as springboards.

DURING "Star, Star" Jagger mounted a version of the gigantic phallic balloon. It was not expected to be used here because reportedly Mayor Richard J. Daley and Stadium owner Arthur Wirtz had forbidden it.

As the song ended and the balloon deflated, a fan got into the act by hitting Jagger in the crotch with a well-aimed roll of toilet paper. Jagger covered up, made a grimace that was as much mock as real, and raced on.

The band's music was heavier on rhythm, as was expected with the addition of rhythm guitarist Ron Wood — borrowed from the Faces — who was given plenty of solo opportunities. Bassist Bill Wyman was his usual stoic self, hardly moving and looking more like a banker counting the crowd than a member of a raucous rock band. Guitarist Keith Richards was dressed in black leather — one of the few throwbacks to the Stones' punk days.

DRUMMER Charlie Watts was supported by the addition of percussionist Ollie Brown, and the incomparable Billy Preston handled a variety of keyboards with flair.

Jagger played guitar on one song, "Fingerprint File," and helped Preston on keyboards during part of the long jam for "You Can't Always Get What You Want."

By "Wild Horses" the crowd was tingling. Then Jagger left the stage and Preston took the spotlight for two of his songs, "That's Life" from his new "It's My Pleasure" album and a lengthy instrumental during which Jagger returned to dance with Preston and with a rope swing Tarzan-style over the audience.

THE BAND THEN broke into "Brown Sugar" with most of the audience leaping to their feet. They remained standing for the rest of the concert. For the following "Midnight Rambler," Jagger put on Richard's black leather jacket and began whipping his belt around, sometimes striking the stage floor.

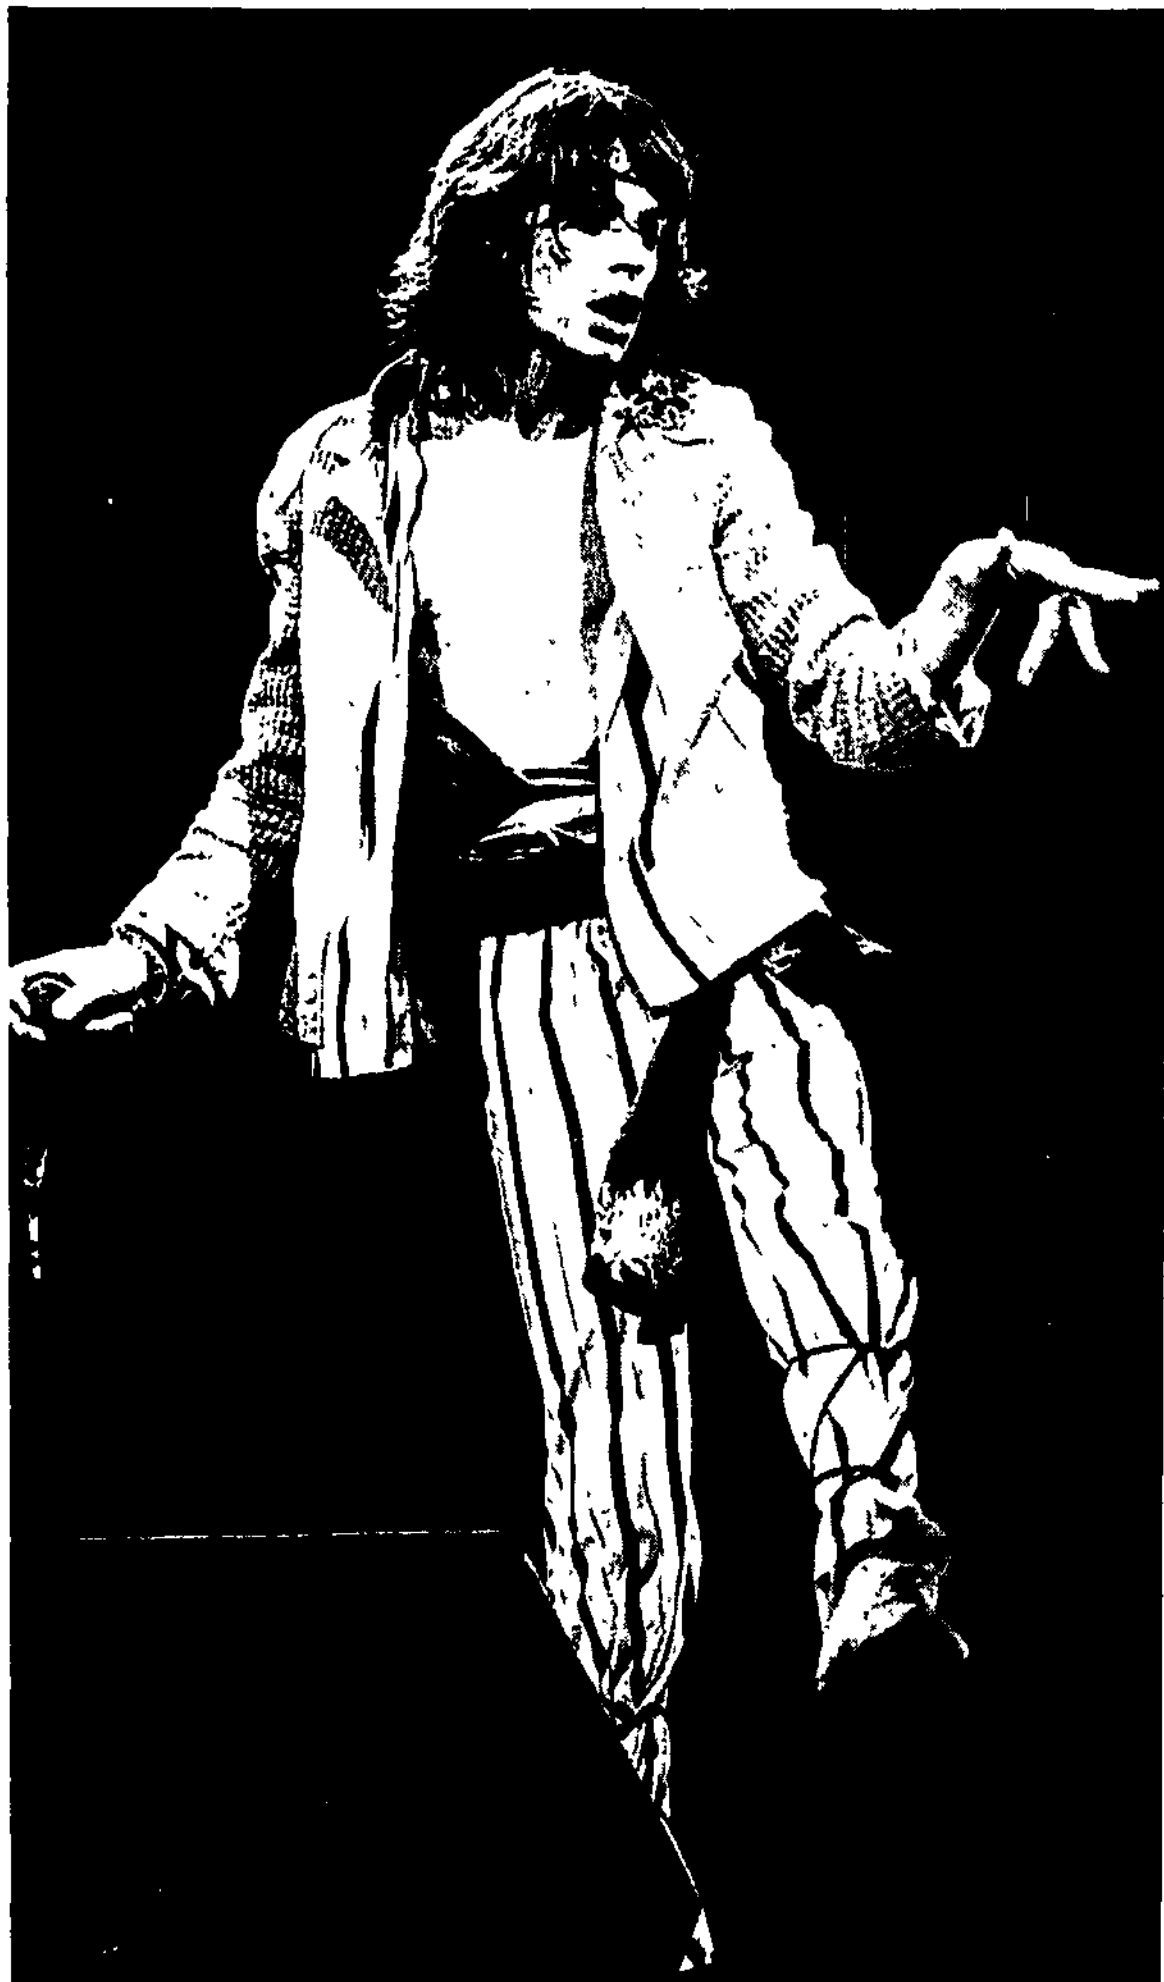

For the final three songs — "Rip This Joint," "Street Fighting Man" and "Jumpin' Jack Flash" — the house lights were turned on and the strings of Christmas-type lights strung from the ceiling flashed and ran in strings with the music.

During the finale, a dragon balloon deflated and spewed forth white confetti. The song ended and Jagger threw three buckets of water out into the audience and a fourth over his head. He then blew kisses as the band left the stage. The petals closed up, ending the show.

The sound, though high, was acoustically good for the Stadium, although only about half of Jagger's lyrics could be understood and most of his brief chatter between songs was undiscernable.

ONE YOUTH was ejected after a shoving match with an Andy Frain guard before the Stones took to the stage. There was far more applause than boos, however, as the crowd remained in a joyfully expectant mood during the long wait between the Crusaders' opening set and the Stones' appearance. It was a feeble reminder of the violence that has marred previous Stones' tours, violence that culminated with a death at California's Altamont Raceway in 1969.

A different high for a swinging star.

Young's new album gets country-rock band help

"Tonight's the Night," Neil Young's eighth Reprise album, would be just another in an embarrassing long line of lackluster albums for Young were it not for the musical presence of country-rock band Crazy Horse and ex-Grin guitarist and pianist Nils Lofgren.

Two of Young's best albums — "Everybody Knows This Is Nowhere" and "After the Goldrush" — were recorded with Crazy Horse, and Lofgren appeared on the "Goldrush" album. But then Young joined Crosby, Stills and Nash and did not issue another solo album for almost two years. That album, "Harvest," contained the brilliant "Heart of Gold" though it also started a trend of seeming musical indifference for Young that lasted through the next three albums.

IN "TONIGHT'S the Night" Young is back to making good music, although his lyrics are still weak for the most part. Only the title song and the rocker "Come On, Baby, Let's Go Downtown" recapture the excellence of his earlier albums. (The latter reminds of "Southern Man" and "Down by the River," both classics.)

The rest of the album generally succumbs to the weak lyrics. There are none of the haunting love ballads of Young's earlier career, the songs that went straight to your heart and stayed there. Three such songs that come immediately to mind — all from the "Goldrush" album — are "Only Love Can Break Your Heart," "Tell Me Why" and "When You Dance I Can Really Love."

"Tonight's the Night" is a bit less pretentious than the last two albums and the music is more varied, with both fast and slow numbers, including some country and blues. With a bit more care and thought to his lyrics, Young could again justify all the hopes placed with him in the period 1969-1972.

BACHMAN-TURNER Overdrive and April Wine are two rock groups who hail from Young's native Canada. The new Overdrive album, "Four Wheel Drive" (Mercury records) is full of the same strong metal rock sound that the quartet, headed by former Guess Who member Randy Bachman, is popular for. The April Wine album, "Stand Back" (Big Tree records), is the group's first American release since 1972's enjoyable "April Wine."

by Tom Von Malder

While the BTO sound is pretty much of a standard formula now, the results still carry enough excitement and energy that the band should be able to continue in the same manner for some time before suffering any loss in popularity.

The more lyrical "Hey You" is an album highlight. The rest is the typical, plodding heavy beat, dominated by thundering guitars. The band continues to give the public what it wants. In addition to its high sales figures, BTO earlier this year won three of the top June awards, the so-called Canadian Grammys. They were for group of the year, "Not Fragile" as album of the year, and Bachman as producer of the year.

BROTHERS GUITARIST David and drummer Ritchie Henman have left April Wine since the 1972 album, being replaced by Gary Moffet and Jerry Mercer. Lead vocalist (also guitar and keyboards) Myles Goodwyn and bassist Jim Clench still form the backbone of the group.

With hard rocking numbers like "Don't Push Me Around" the band proves it can be as heavy as BTO, but April Wine also likes softer, more melodic rockers and several are included in the album. "I Wouldn't Want to Lose Your Love," written by Goodwyn as are most of the songs, is one of the better of these softer songs. At times, the band sounds like anyone of a half dozen British bands from the Sixties ("Highway Hard Run" is a good example).

ALSO GOOD IS "Electronic Realizations for Rock Orchestra" by Synergy (Passport records). The man behind this electronic keyboard experimental album is Larry Fast. His original songs all are interesting and very energetic, although not overpowering. The album's highlight though is its synthesizer version of Richard Rodgers' "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." This is an album that has appeal for the avant garde of all ages.

Book strips fairyland veneer from motherhood

"THE MOTHER PERSON" BY VIRGINIA BARBER AND MERRILL MAGUIRE SKAGGS Bobbs Merrill, $7.95

Expectant mothers can find stacks of books warning them not to expect to love their babies at first sight.

But there aren't many books around like "The Mother Person", which warns that even after you learn to love your children you may wonder occasionally why you ever had them.

"The Mother Person" isn't anti-motherhood like so many books that point out the pitfalls. Written by two mothers who each have two children, it does take the fairyland veneer off the reality of living with small children.

Based on interviews with mothers of children in "the greatest years of parental stress" (from birth to three years old) the book is worth reading for the empathy you'll feel with the mothers who say that, growing up in the 1950s and 60s, nobody warned them that becoming a mother would change their lives so completely.

ONE PROBLEM with the book is that the authors make all kinds of sweeping generalizations which they don't back up with statistics from their research.

It's annoying to have the authors promote the Lamaze method of childbirth or urge staying away from expensive toys without telling you what in their research led them to those conclusions.

But if you don't mind the preaching, the book is a good one, especially if you're expecting a baby and getting brainwashed by the drivel that is often found in books about living with infants and toddlers.

The saving grace of "The Mother Person" is the recounting of everyday incidents in the lives of other mothers and their children.

When you read the absolutely awful (or totally absurd) things some mothers admit to having done to cope with their children — or the unbelievable pranks that other people's children are capable of — you put down the book with a calm awareness that you really aren't that bad a parent and your children really are pretty nice after all.

The book stall

"DETECTIVE MARIE CIRILE: MEMOIRS OF A POLICE OFFICER" BY MARIE CIRILE Doubleday, $8.95

The lot of the policewoman traditionally has been limited to search and guard duties in female lockups and an occasional assignment to the youthful offenders detail.

Veteran New York City detective Marie Cirile has pulled her share of this. But through perseverance, ability and, admittedly, sometimes luck, she also has won more adventuresome and risky duty normally limited to men.

In these fast-moving memoirs she recounts her experiences dealing with the underworlds of narcotics, vice and thievery, revealing a side of the city rarely seen by civilians.

"HEYWOOD BROWN" BY RICHARD O'CONNOR Putnam, $8.95

Brown, the gutsy journalist who was one of the most skilled practitioners of his craft, gets a thorough, rounded biographical treatment in O'Connor's new book. He was a principled man willing to sacrifice his ambitions for his beliefs, and he was fortunate enough to win most of his fights.

The book is well worth reading, not only for the man but for details of a scintillating career.

Acoustics can't stop Pearl

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(a review)

I cringe every time a full-scale musical is announced for Arie Crown Theatre. Not that the immense size of the auditorium intimidates me. Persons sitting in the back rows can always use binoculars.

No, it's the amplification system. It never seems to work. And opening night Tuesday, it took its toll on Pearl Bailey in a revival of "Hello, Dolly!"

To be sure, the beloved actress/singer is as personable, animated and charming once during her lead doing bad for an old girl, am I?

However, the speakers distort, fairly ruin, that powerful, gutsy delivery. When the microphone planted on Miss Bailey is turned on, she sounds like a scratched record. When it's not, her voice dissipates in the huge auditorium.

Though certain people will always get goose bumps when the veteran entertainer marches down the stairway for the hit title song of the show, her entrance thrills even more those persons who never had the opportunity to see her do it on Broadway where she outlived all the Dollys including the original one, Carol Channing.

Co-starring with Miss Bailey is Billy Daniels as Horace Vandergelder, the hay-grain-and-feed merchant in Yonkers, N.Y., for whom Dolly sets her cap. Daniels, too, has trouble being heard, particularly in his solos, though he well characterizes the gruff "half-a-millionaire" who tyrannizes his clerks.

The strong supportive cast includes Mary Louise, whose clear, beautiful voice rises above the sound system; Irene Mallor, one of Vandergelder's marital candidates; Chip Fields as her saucy maid; and Terrence Farnham and Grenold Frazier as Vandergelder's two wayward clerks who yearn to kick up their heels for a night on the town.

THE SHOW itself is very esthetically pleasing with colorful, elaborate costumes and well-designed sets that are most effective in scenes inside the Harmonia Gardens Restaurant, where the widow Dolly Gallagher Levi makes her grand entrance greeted by a chorus of waiters, and 14th Street and Grand Central Station where the entire company turns out for some song and dance.

"Hello, Dolly!" at Arie Crown Theatre.

PEARL BAILEY returns as Mrs. Dolly Gallagher Levi in a new show of "Hello, Dolly!" at Arie Crown Theatre, McCormick Place, through Aug. 10.

ater is just the shell of the show that took Broadway by storm for so many years. But still, no one can help but enjoy watching Pearl Bailey, who despite acoustical flaws will continue receiving standing ovations every night. And rightly so.

AND SHE DOES not stop with the end of "Dolly!" Leastwise, she didn't opening night. Instead she sang a chorus of "Chicago" and told several good yarns that rank her high on the list of natural comedienne.

"Come back tomorrow," she laughed. "I got some more stuff." And no doubt many people will.

Newest Chicago sculpture dedicated at Harris Bank

Mayor Richard J. Daley joined other civic leaders earlier this month at the Harris Bank's noon dedication of its new plaza at the southeast corner of LaSalle and Monroe streets, Chicago.

Highlight of the ceremonies was the unveiling of the bank's plaza artwork — a bronze combination sculpture and fountain designed in seven branching petal-like pedestals over which water flows. The fountain stands 8½ feet high from its 22-foot diameter basin and with this dark-red granite base weighs approximately 10 tons.

THE SCULPTOR, Russell Secrest of Petoskey, Mich., was present at the dedication which included entertainment by the six-member Charles Geary Ensemble, a brass group composed of Chicago Symphony Orchestra members.

The sculpture occupies the east end of the Harris' 4,000-square-foot plaza facing Monroe Street and is complemented by trees and flags. The plaza itself fronts the bank's new 38-story bank and office building connected to the Harris' existing complex.

Melanie Sowka of Palatine is one of 75 Illinois artists selected to show their works at the 1975 Illinois State Fair Professional Art Show. Winners were chosen from more than 250 pieces submitted for judging.

Cash prizes will go to outstanding pieces in five categories: painting, watercolor, drawings and graphics, sculpture and crafts.

AS THE HARRIS Bank's new plaza fountain-sculpture bubbled on dedication day, the Chicago downtown artwork was admired by Hubert the Harris lion; William Murray, Harris chairman; Mayor Richard J. Daley; and Stanley G. Harris Jr., bank vice chairman.

'Born' short on talented actors

by BOB GALLAS
(A review)

Elke Sommer as Billie Dawn in "Born Yesterday" gradually becomes angry at people who allow themselves to be manipulated — "those who take it."

I wonder if Billie was angry at the audience at the play's Wednesday opening at Drury Lane North in Lincolnshire.

They "took it" for more than two hours.

Though generously spiced with laughs and a few good, individual performances, including Miss Sommer, the production as a whole falls short, due to an overall mediocre cast.

The setting is 1946. Washington, D.C., Junkyard mogul Harry Brock (Art Kussul) comes to the capital with his mistress, Billie, to "make sure I get what I paid for" from Sen. Norval Hedges (David Morrison).

BROCK, an uncouth blowhard, hires newspaper reporter Paul Verrall (Frank Miller) to smooth over the rough edges of Billie, an ex-chorus girl.

Verrall is successful, too successful for Harry Brock's liking as he learns that "a little education is a dangerous thing."

Billie throws a wrench into Brock's plans to extend his junkyard empire with the help of Sen. Hedges.

Billie is uneducated, but painfully honest. She describes her relationship with Harry Brock, "if he don't come across, I don't come across," and the first meeting with her tutor Verrall,

Elke Sommer

"Are you one of those talkers or would you be interested in a little action?"

Though she delivers most of the script's punch lines, Miss Sommer is at her best when talking the least. Her gin-rummy game scene with Harry is delightful for her gestures alone. Altogether she comes across in her role as a lovable character.

MISS SOMMER receives little help from her supporting cast with one exception of Joe Shea in the role of Harry's cousin.

Shea, who's becoming a familiar sight on Chicago area stages, is excellent as the witless, comic-book reading Eddie Brock.

Most bothersome is Miss Sommer's co-star, Kussul, who just doesn't fit the image of Brock, a buffoon and cruel man.

Kussul never really conveys the streak of meanness in his character, which makes his confrontation scene with Billie strained and awkward.

The romantic lead, Billie's tutor Paul, played by Miller, is also disappointing. Miller, who's most recent claim to fame is pushing a large grocery bag on A & P commercials, develops no real rapport with Miss Sommer. Their love for each other is a little hard to believe.

THE REMAINING cast members are workmanlike in their roles, nothing more. Don Marston handles the role of Brock's legal adviser, Ed Devery. David Morrison is Sen. Norval Hedges and Fern Persons appears briefly as his wife.

The Tony DeSantis produced play runs through Sept. 14 at Drury Lane North in the Marriott Resort, Lincolnshire.

'L.U.V.,' a farce that still works

The comedy/farce "L.U.V." which appears to become more relevant as society becomes more sickle is the summer show at PAOLELLA'S RUSTIC BARN DINNER THEATRE in Bloomingdale.

Underneath the slapstick and non-sense, playwright Murray Schisgal candidly ridicules that human ongoing emotion called "dissatisfaction." Always what we don't have looks more appealing than what we've got. And what better institution to blame than marriage.

"L.U.V." opens as JEFF SMITH in the role of Harry Berlin, a defeated, depressed man, is about ready to end it all by jumping off a bridge.

With one leg already over, he is saved by an old college chum, Mill Manville, played by BOB GRIFFIN.

Summer art fairs seeking exhibitors

Two summer art fairs are being planned in the area, one combined with antiques and crafts, the other to be held in conjunction with Buffalo Grove Days. Both are seeking exhibitors.

The Schaumburg Kings hockey league is hosting the arts, crafts and antiques fair Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 9-10, at Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, Schaumburg. Artists and dealers may rent a single eight-foot space at $7.50 for one day or $12 for both days. Double spaces are $12 for one day, $18.50 for both.

Further information on the fair can be obtained by calling 894-3380.

THE 1975 Buffalo Grove Festival of Fine Arts is Sunday, Aug. 31, from 1 to 5 p.m. in front of the village hall at Raupp Boulevard and Lake Cook Road.

Area artists are invited to exhibit and cash and ribbon prizes will be awarded. Only original work by the registered artist may be displayed; no gallery or foreign imports are allowed.

Spaces are 10x10 feet. Entry forms and a $5 fee must be submitted in advance by calling Ted Uskali Jr., 537-5280.

Night out

by Genie Campbell

Milt convinces his old buddy that love is all he needs. Love will solve all his problems and he knows just the perfect girl... his wife, Milt is truly in love but with Linda, his girlfriend. Harry would be doing him a big favor by taking Ellen, his wife, off his hands.

The three-membered cast is rounded out by Milt's on-again off-again spouse played by ELEANOR MILLER, who boasts women's liberation blaring all her fallures on the board of education. "I will submerge my intelligence so we can be happy," she says, tongue in cheek.

Though a light, nonsensical evening of entertainment with plenty of ridicule and madcap action passed around, "L.U.V." halfway into the final act runs dry. Schisgal just didn't know when to quit.

Yet, overall it's an enjoyable show, the kind suited for a dinner/theater format and a good start for the new director-producer of the theater, SCOTT BROWN.

Prices are reasonable. Dinner/show combinations are $8.70 week nights up to $7.70 on Saturdays. Wednesday matinee with lunch included is only $5.45.

Don't forget, the barn used to be one. The dinner theater is located in the hayloft.

BOB CRANE AND wife Pam Hayes are locked in marriage dispute when she discovers he's having an affair with a girl from the office in "Beginner's Luck," which opens Aug. 6 and runs through Sept. 28 at Drury Lane East Theatre in McCormick Place. The current show is "Nobody Loves an Albatross" starring Robert Vaughn.

But you can also eat separately down stairs in the very elegant main dining room where you can help yourself to a complete line of antipasto appetizers. Italian cuisine is a house specialty, although there are also plenty of seafood and steak entrees from which to choose.

Returning to the TOP OF THE TOWERS for a three-week engagement beginning Tuesday is singer JIMMY DAMON. Also opening that night downstairs in the ARLINGTON PARK HILTON is the musical/vocal group, UP FRONT.

The next scheduled "comedy night" is Aug. 2 with JOHN BYNER as the featured entertainer. Shows take place every Saturday evening in the Durante Room of the hotel, although there is no show tomorrow.

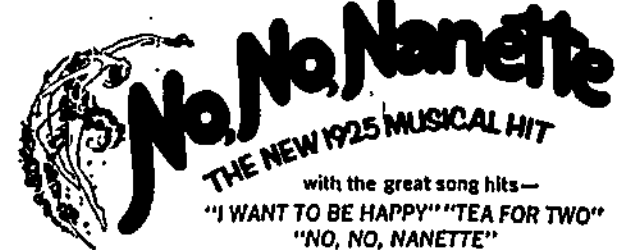

Next up at MILL RUN, opening Tuesday through next Sunday, Aug. 3, is LAINIE KAZAN and ALAN KING.

The 5TH DIMENSION will take you "Up and Away" for six nights of musical entertainment when they appear in the Niles theater-in-the-round Aug. 5-10. Appearing with them are the DELLS.

CANDLELIGHT DINNER PLAYHOUSE and the FORUM THEATER are now offering a "two-theater bargain special" which remains in effect through Aug. 10. The purchase of Candlelight's dinner/theater package where "MY FAIR LADY" is on stage will also entitle the buyer to a ticket to see DANA ANDREWS star in the political drama, "THE GANG'S ALL HERE" next door at the Forum. Prices for one dinner and two shows begin at $9.

Ask Andy

High mountains once long ditches

WHAT IS A GEOSYNCLINE?

This grand-sounding word was invented in 1873. Geosyncline belongs to the geologists, though at first they had practically no use for it. Then, for awhile, the word became very popular. Lately it has gone out of style, though some earth scientists use it when describing the past history of the continents.

Early in the last century, almost everybody thought the earth was no more than a few thousand years old. Then Louis Agassiz proved that massive glaciers crept over Europe a million years ago, but almost nobody believed him. When others found evidence that enormous ditches existed hundreds of millions of years ago, people had to admit that the earth must be very old — much older than just a few thousand years.

Geologists coined a new word to name these strange ditches in the earth's crust. They called them geosynclines and tried to figure out what happened to them. For example, during the Paleozoic Era there were two great geosynclines in North America. This long-gone chapter of the earth's history began about 600 million years ago and lasted through perhaps 375 million years.

This was even before the days of the giant dinosaurs. There were no Appalachians along our Eastern shores and no proud mountains in the West. Instead of these familiar ranges there were two geosyncline ditches in the earth's crust.

Actually they were long and rather narrow hollows, filled or partly filled with water. Streams drained down the slopes on each side, carrying muddy silt and gravel. Through the ages, this dirty debris collected in the geosyn-clines. They filled up with soggy sediments, and their floors became heavy. Shells and other fishy fossils were buried in this new rocky material.

Some geologists suspect that the heavy sediments in the geosynclines caused great changes in the earth's crust. Perhaps this is why huge crustal slabs were pushed up to form mountains. In any case, before our Eastern and Western ranges were born, their places were occupied by shallow geosynclines.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Eddy Radke, age 10, of Salt Lake City, Utah, for his question:

IS IT TRUE THAT BUTTERFLIES FLY SOUTH IN WINTER?

Most butterflies live only for a couple of weeks or so. Before they perish they are sure to hide batches of eggs to hatch the next spring. But there are exceptions to the general rule. One of these is the handsome monarch butterfly. Come fall, this brown-orange beauty departs with a flock of friends and relatives. They start out from places all over North America and fly southward, perhaps for hundreds of miles and sometimes for a thousand. At last they arrive in the southland, where winters are warm and sunny. Many of them have favorite winter homes in Southern California or parts of Texas. Sad to say, many of them die of old age. But in early spring, the survivors start back on the long journeys back to their summer homes. Next fall, another generation of monarch butterflies will migrate to spend the winter in the southland.

Win at bridge

A tricky move for a discard

Today's hand invented by Ernest Thelmer, was first printed in Modern Bridge in 1964. It is currently part of a story in "Grand Slam," a collection of stories about bridge.

Our hero is playing six notrump and has been informed in advance that East has no clubs.

Without a diamond lead there would be no problem, but after the diamond lead dummy has no entry. The presence of all three clubs in the West hand means the suit will block unless South can find a way to get rid of one of his clubs.

He solves the problem by taking a heart finesse at trick two and cashing the ace of hearts next. Then he enters dummy with the ace of clubs, leads the nine of hearts and discards a small club. It doesn't matter who wins the heart trick. The king and jack of hearts are in separate hands.

The play would also succeed against three hearts to the king-jack in the East hand or a five-two break with the king or jack falling doubleton.

Second opinion urged on need for hysterectomy

My doctor says I have fibroids and wants to do a hysterectomy. I do not want to have this done if it can be avoided. What is your opinion? I am 32 and have two children.

A lot of women with fibroids do not need an operation, but no set rule can be made, and the decision to operate or not has to be individualized.

Fibroid tumors are benign (not malignant or cancerous) growths of the muscular wall of the uterus. Usually there are several small tumors encroaching on each other to form a mass in the uterus. No one knows what causes them, but they are present in about 40 per cent of women over 50 years of age.

The tumors get their start during the childbearing years when the ovaries are most active and the most estrogen is produced. During a pregnancy the ovaries and placenta form much more estrogen, and the fibroid tumors tend to grow more rapidly.

They also can be stimulated to grow from estrogen given as a medicine by pill or shot.

After the menopause, when the amount of estrogen formation is limited, the fibroid growth tends to slow down.

Many fibroids cause no symptoms at all. This depends a lot on their location and size, and this has a lot to do with the decision on whether to operate or not. The small ones that cause no symptoms can usually be left alone, particularly in a young woman like yourself, until after the menopause.

Some fibroids get quite large, weighing as much as 10 or 15 pounds, and those over 30 pounds are not unknown. These large ones can cause pressure on the bladder and bowel causing both bowel and bladder symptoms.

Even smaller ones located just under the lining of the uterus can cause a significant increase in bleeding during the menses. This increased bleeding, if marked, is one indication for surgery. Some fibroids can interfere with getting pregnant, and others lead to habitual abortion.

Unless your fibroids are large and causing pressure symptoms, are causing excessive bleeding, or interfering with pregnancy, it is probably safe to let them alone.

You can have fibroid tumors removed without having the uterus removed. This is sometimes done when the fibroids interfere with pregnancy. Studies show that about 40 per cent of women who have the fibroids removed but leave the uterus in place are able to have subsequent successful pregnancies.

If a woman has other problems that may also suggest the desirability of a hysterectomy, then surgery is in order.

Bleeding from uncomplicated fibroids is just an increase in menstrual bleeding, which can be quite large. Bleeding between periods should suggest some other problem and warrants immediate examination for its cause.

Since you are reluctant to have the operation, unless you have the symptoms, I mentioned, I would suggest a consultation with another doctor before agreeing to having the surgery.

MONEY TALKS

How to pick the best savings account

By Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

You may think you are well off to have your savings in a commercial bank, but the magazine Consumer Reports suggests you can do better.

The article "How to Pick the Best Savings Account" recognizes that savings accounts and time deposits in thrift institutions and banks are "among the safest investments you can make." Most purchase Federal insurance that covers individual accounts up to $40,000.

But the magazine notes that for several reasons thrift institutions like ours are measurably superior to commercial banks for returns on savings.

First of all, it is a fact, which some savers ignore, that thrift institutions are allowed by law to offer a higher rate of return than banks. The reason is that our institutions have been established to provide funds for residential mortgage loans.

Aside from that, many more commercial banks than savings and loans do not offer the maximum interest rate allowed by law. A Federal Reserve Board study noted that 23 per cent of all bank savings deposits were in accounts "paying a below-ceiling rate of 4 1/2 per cent — and some were at even lower rates," as little as 2 per cent.

More importantly, as Consumer Reports pointed out, S&Ls and savings banks "tend to compute interest in more liberal ways than commercial banks."

The magazine article referred to a Kansas State University study which applied 40 variables in interest-computing policies and found that interest payments in S&Ls and banks varied by as much as 171 per cent.

Here is one way in which returns on savings vary. The Kansas State study discovered a difference of almost 68 per cent on the same annual rate of interest in terms of the methods by which interest was computed.

Thirty per cent of commercial banks, according to a study last year by the American Bankers Association, still paid only on the smallest amount of money in the account during the interest period. This, as Consumer Reports mentions, is the "most punitive" to savers. About 16 per cent of commercial banks used a method of deducting withdrawals from the starting balance of the interest period; this is known as first-in, first-out (FIFO). It is the next disadvantageous way of figuring earned interest. Only about 5 per cent of commercial banks used the method of last-in, first-out (LIFO), which deducts withdrawals from the most recent withdrawals in the quarter and is therefore less damaging to the depositor.

Payment of interest for the actual number of days the money remains in the account, a day-in day-out concept, provides the highest return for the savers' dollars. It is used by almost 50 per cent of the commercial banks and 60 per cent of insured S&Ls.

There are, of course, many other variables which prompted Consumer Reports to recommend that a saver seek a thrift institution like ours rather than a commercial bank for the highest legal interest rate and the most liberal methods of computing interest.

Would you believe only 16% (however much that figure means) of adults understand simple math well enough to balance checkbook

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American consumers — especially women — are largely unable to use basic math to solve everyday problems such as computing percentages or deciding what size package is cheapest, according to a survey released Thursday.

It laid the problem to a gap between theoretical classroom instruction and practical marketplace experience, noting that adults generally did better than teen-agers, apparently because they have been buyers longer. But even the adults performed poorly in many areas, including balancing a checkbook.

Among other things, the survey found that "only 10 per cent of the 17-year-olds and 20 per cent of the adults could calculate taxi fare correctly. One per cent of the 17-year-olds and 16 per cent of the adults could balance a checkbook."

Blacks, inner-city residents, persons whose parents lack high school education and residents of southeastern states generally scored lower on math problems in the survey.

IN ONE TEST the participants — 34,000 persons aged 17 and 4,200 adults — were given a list of prices for rice in different-sized packages and asked which was the cheapest per ounce. A similar test involved and cheapest price per ounce of cans of tuna fish.

A majority of those questioned assumed incorrectly the largest size was the best buy in rice, the report said, while 48 per cent of the adults and teens guessed wrong on the tuna.

"It is generally assumed that women do most of the grocery shopping in America," the survey said. "However, on these two exercises, adult males were more likely to give the correct answer; adult females were more likely to choose the largest size as the most economical. The gap between males and females is larger for adults than for 17-year-olds."

IN GENERAL, the survey said, men "consistently outperform females on exercises involving buying and household situations."

The survey was taken by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, a project of the Education Commission paid for by the National Center for Education Statistics.

Roy Forbes, director of the project, said "too many students apparently fail to see the relationship between math courses in school and the use of math in everyday living."

"When was the last time you took your child to the store and explained how to measure for curtains or select just enough wood for a fence? A need for basic math is with us daily, and it is the responsibility of parents along with the schools to help every child understand this."

Oakton sets signup for seniors

Senior citizens may register for classes at Oakton Community College on two days especially set aside for them.

Residents of the Oakton district more than 60 years old may register Wednesday, July 30, from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. and on Tuesday, Aug. 5, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Three regular college credit courses are being offered during fall semester with special emphasis on senior citizens as part of the college "Gray Matters" program. Credit courses are available to senior citizens at $5 per credit hour, half the regular college tuition.

Sacred Heart gets grant of $148,750; no tuition hike

Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows, will receive $148,750 from the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago for the 1975-76 school year.

The archdiocese announced Thursday that it has budgeted $2,721,000 for needy elementary and high schools in the Chicago area. Sacred Heart is the only suburban high school to receive funds.

Thirty-six parishes will receive allocations aid, nine of them high schools.

In February Sacred Heart officials requested a $120,000 subsidy from the archdiocese and decided not to raise tuition from $550 per year.

The school also has a financial pledge program where parents of students last year pledged more than $90,000 to help make the high school financially independent.

Sacred Heart nearly closed four years ago when the Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Mary order, facing a $45,000 deficit, put the school up for sale. The archdiocese bought the school and has been subsidizing it since.

$1.5 million raised for Heart Assn.

Volunteers raised nearly $1.5 million, or 100 per cent of the goal, in the 1975 Heart Fund campaign for the Chicago Heart Assn. and its suburban divisions.

Money raised includes $565,031 in the business division, $201,430 in north Cook County, $154,680 in west Cook County, $100,180 in south Cook County, $131,515 in DuPage County, $102,412 in Lake County and $215,649 in the women's division.

Contributions are used to fund Chicago Heart Assn. programs. Last year heart fund dollars were divided as follows: local research, 22 cents; national research, 13 cents; public education, 12 cents; professional education, 11 cents; community programs, 8 cents; national programs, 11 cents; fund raising, 13 cents and management and general, 10 cents.

'Fed' plans to stay with moderate monetary plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns told Congress Thursday "the Fed" intends to adhere to a moderate monetary policy which would lead to only a gradual recovery from the recession.

On grounds that inflation remains strong and is likely to gain impetus as soon as the economy springs to life again, Burns rejected the more expansionary policy which has been urged by many liberal economists and politicians.

In fact, Burns held out the prospect that the Fed may even clamp down on growth in the money supply — the amount of money in circulation and in checking accounts — if inflationary forces gain strength.

Required under legislation adopted this year to report to Congress every three months on the Fed's monetary policy goals, Burns told the House Banking Committee the board last month "reaffirmed" its decision of March to seek a moderate growth rate in the nation's money supply of 5 to 7.5 per cent.

HE REFUSED to share the evaluation of the board's staff of what inflation, unemployment and interest growth rates are likely to spring from that policy.

But under daylong questioning, he said in his own view the Gross National Product would grow by 8 per cent and unemployment would fall from its present level of 9 per cent to 7.5 or 8 per cent over the next 12 months.

He refused to predict what rate of inflation is likely to prevail or to speculate about the course of interest rates.

In fact, when pressed on interest rates he said, "If I gave you that, I would literally have to resign my position. No central banker worth his salt should ever express his opinion on that because if he did he would rock markets."

THE GROWTH RATE Burns projected suggested a sluggish recovery. Usually as the economy pulls out of a recession, economic growth rates of about 11 per cent are achieved, sending unemployment dropping rapidly.

Burns stressed that moderation is demanded by persistent inflation in the economy. He predicted "bad news" when wholesale prices for July are reported.

"Economic recovery is apparently beginning at a time when the rate of inflation, while lower than a year ago, is still well above a tolerable pace," he said. "We shall therefore need to avoid actions that threaten an acceleration of inflation later on..."

Burns refused to give the committee data developed by the Fed's staff on the unemployment rate, inflation rate, economic growth rate and long and short-term interest rates that are projected to result from the policy adopted by the board.

"I WOULD be very hesitant to do that," he said when asked to provide the figures.

"I have been doing work of this kind for 50 years and I often disagree with my staff. I wouldn't be adding to public misunderstanding. I would be adding to public confusion and they're too confused now."

A conservative, Rep. John H. Rousset, R-Calif., asked whether two members of the committee could sit in on the meetings of the Fed's Open Market Committee to dispel the aura of secrecy which now surrounds them. The committee's minutes are kept secret until 45 days after each meeting.

Burns said he would "welcome a bull session" between the committee and the congressmen, but would reject Rousset's proposal. "Either you want an independent Federal Reserve System or you don't," he said.

Auto companies calling back workers

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. announced Thursday that its long-term layoffs, which peaked at 137,500 in late February and have been whittled to about 30,000, will drop faster than predicted to 75,000 by the end of July.

The announcement followed the No. 1 automaker's best midmonth car sales report in 14 months.

GM earlier estimated that layoffs, which once affected more than one-third of its 400,000 workers, would be down to 78,000 workers by the start of the 1976 model year in September. Its mid-July sales were up 16 per cent over last year with Cadillac setting a sales record.

GM CHAIRMAN Thomas A. Murphy issued another optimistic prediction of a sales recovery by the industry, saying sales would be over 10 million cars next year, including imports. That would be about 18 per cent higher than this year but still well below the 11.4 million cars sold in record 1973.

"The longest recession since the end of World War II is rapidly coming to an end," Murphy told a Future Farmers of America meeting in Washington. "New housing starts, industrial production, sales of cars and of other consumer goods, total nonfarm employment, personal income — they are all up."

Together with production announcements from other automakers, the GM announcements made it appear the auto industry will have fewer than 100,000 workers still on open-ended layoffs — some dating back to the start of the current slump 21 months ago — by the end of August.

Chrysler Corp., hardest hit of the four U.S. auto companies, said it is resuming second shift operations Monday at its Warren, Mich., truck plant and will recall another 2,100 workers. Its long-term layoffs will drop to 16,900 compared with 51,500 off the job in February.

Freeze dinners at home, save 50%

Since commercial TV dinners cost so much for so little nutrition, I'm wondering if I can freeze my own from leftovers. Can a home freezer process dinners in recycled aluminum pans? How long can I store them?

TV dinners you fabricate yourself often end up less tasty than commercial dinners for two reasons — (1) You can't get rid of all the air. (2) Your home freezer isn't as cold as the flash freezers used commercially. But, sliced roast beef or turkey can be packaged in pans cleaned and saved from store-bought TV dinners.

Protect meat slices from air by covering them with gravy before freezing. Add vegetables already frozen — about a third package per dinner. Seal the top with aluminum foil crimped to exclude air. Freeze immediately.

Plan to use your own TV dinners within three or four weeks. Your savings — at least half.

SAVE YOUR GARDEN FROM PESTS — Safely.

How can I keep the bugs out of my vegetable garden without poisoning the food or buying a dozen different sprays or powders? How can home-grown food be organically pure without also feeding the aphids, beetles and other bugs?

Recent interest in growing pesticide-free fruits and vegetables has sparked many inquiries into natural systems for controlling various pests. Interplanting certain plants keeps bugs away from vegetables. Nasturtiums, for example, deter aphids, squash bugs and striped pumpkin beetles.

Homemade sprays, such as a strong soap and water solution, rid plants of aphids and mites. Ladybugs and praying mantises should be protected, as they eat many times their weight in aphids and many other bugs. Mechanical systems, such as aluminum foil, cheesecloth or collars, protect plants, too.

For more information on these and other ideas for controlling pests naturally, send for Information Sheet No. 8 from Johnny Horizon Program, Washington, D.C. 20210.

BLENDED BEEF

What is "blended beef"? Beef patty seems to be a mixture of soy protein mixed with ground beef. Is "blended beef" another name for this product? If not, how does blended beef compare with soy extended ground beef?

Soy products are the most common additives for extending ground beef and lowering the price for protein. Other products include Whey, fish and cottonseed proteins. A new additive is collagen — already present in small percentages in beef.

As much as 30 per cent additives may be combined with ground beef without affecting taste or texture unduly. All of these products are known as blended beef. You're likely to see more of them as time goes on.

Whether you like them at their generally lower price will depend on your taste and spending level, but don't reject them without trying — they could save your cash without shorting nutrition.

SHOPPING WITH A LIST

I've tried shopping with a list, dividing it into two or three parts, one for each store, but I invariably forget something. Once I buy even one thing not on my list, I keep going, flow can I avoid impulse buying?

Shopping from a list disciplines spending — but only if you stick with it. One way to develop discipline is to buy only the items on the list. If you find you forgot something, write it down, but don't buy it. Then, if you find you really need it after returning home, buy it later — and nothing else.

Do this a few times and you will develop lists that include everything you really need. Anything left off the list is postponed to start the next list.

Remember, the whole reason supermarkets offer specials is to trigger impulse buying after you enter the store.

One survey found that 99 out of 100 shoppers bought at least one more item than they intended when they entered a market. These impulse items can destroy your spending plan for food.

Relaxed Kingman arrives in Chicago with hot bat

His home runs always have been conversation pieces.

The ball soars and the stories begin. A new Babe Ruth? Or is it a new Henry Aaron?

The ball rockets out of sight, clearing fences or palm trees or buildings or rivers or wherever he happens to be hitting.

Do you remember the one he hit in Phoenix? Or Candlestick Park? Or Shea Stadium? Or Fort Lauderdale? Or Wrigley Field? Or Mount Prospect?

The kid can't miss, they said in 1970 when he signed with the San Francisco Giants after achieving All-American status with the University of Southern California.

Today, five years later, Dave Kingman, now 26 years old, still remains a mystery to some, a 6-foot-8 slugger who has speed and power but fights a continuing battle to achieve a regular's status, a young man tagged frustration's child by one writer.

Maybe, just maybe, the battles, the frustrations are over. Kingman, the pride of Prospect High School, says he has found peace in New York with the Mets. And he's been a regular at first base and left field for the past month, something that has to help anyone's attitude.

"I'm much more relaxed, my mental attitude is so much better," Kingman told the Herald this week. "I really enjoy New York, the people, everything. They really appreciate the game here and really know their baseball. Sure, they go hot and cold, but they do that in any city."

"All I know is that it's 100 per cent improvement from the way things were in San Francisco."

Kingman had 10 home runs and 50 runs-batted-in after Tuesday night's action, not bad at all for someone who has missed 25 per cent of the club's games.

"Just being in the lineup on a regular basis has made all the difference," he said as he prepared to head for Chicago's Wrigley Field, one of his favorite hitting spots, and a weekend series with the Cubs that starts today.

"For one thing, there aren't that many lefthanders in the league, and when I was platooned, I didn't get that many chances. And then when you're used strictly against lefthanders, it puts that much more pressure on you. You're expected to hit them."

Kingman admits that his major problems through the year were mental; he was putting too much pressure on himself.

"In San Francisco I listened to everyone rather than rely on my own instincts," he said. "It got to be confusing. Phil Cavarretta, our hitting instructor here, has been a big help to me because he's very patient. He told me from the start he wasn't going to make any drastic changes.

"I'm not striking out nearly as much although they still come. I'm watching the ball well, taking a healthy cut but making contact. Relaxation... confidence... that's so important."

Kingman is one of those phenomenally strong athletes. He looks skinny but when his brief batting stroke connects, the ball explodes.

At Phoenix in the minors, his general manager Rosy Ryan said: "Dave Kingman turns the wind around."

In New York's Shea Stadium he once hit a ball that cleared the bullpen in left field and struck the Giants' team bus parked outside. On a rare windless day in San Francisco's Candlestick Park, he broke his bat on a pitch and still hit it over the right-field fence. In Little Rock, Ark. one of his home runs broke a window in the National Guard Armory across the street from the park, and he hit a tape-measure shot in Fort Lauderdale last spring that shocked even the most veteran observers.

Kingman was more known for his pitching efforts as a youngster in the Herald area, but they still talk about his final game at Prospect when he smashed three home runs, including a towering shot to leftfield that has never been equalled.

"I went against my theory of coaching with Dave," recalled Arlington Heights American Legion manager Lloyd Meyer, a respected teacher of the game. "I'll usually get a right-handed kid to go to right field first and then, as his strength and maturity develop, go to left. I want them thinking right field so that rather than pull an outside pitch, they'll just push it to right. It helps develop better bat control."

"But with Kingman," Meyer continued, "I saw he was so strong with such long arms, and such a pull hitter, that I didn't encourage a switch. But now that I've seen him through the years, I wish I had made him go that way. I want kids to wait, wait, wait up there, and the few times I have seen Dave in the majors he does seem to get far out in front. But the way he's going lately, maybe he's curing some of those habits. He was a streak hitter even with us."

Kingman always wanted to be a pitcher so didn't concentrate that much on his hitting, but Rod Dedeaux, his coach at USC, switched him to the outfield after his freshman year.

"I was completely against it," Dave remembered. "I wanted no part of the move. I just wanted to pitch, but the coach thought my future was with the bat. I fought it, but it's certainly worked out for the best."

Dedeaux once recalled: "Yes, Dave was hesitant about moving, but I told him he had a chance to be a great one — I mean somebody like Musial or Mays or Aaron — and he changed."

Kingman made a big splash when he was first brought up to the Giants in 1971, but a pattern developed during the next three years. He continued to hit home runs — when he wasn't striking out or sitting on the bench. He was confused, frustrated.

The dream began to fade, the plans began to disintegrate. The Giants didn't know what to do with him. And vice versa.

Finally, Kingman, thoroughly disgusted with the roller-coaster situation in San Francisco, insisted he be sent to another team. He went to New York last spring for $100,000.

It's no secret the Mets needed a righthanded power hitter, but Dave still struggled at the outset of the season to earn status as a regular.

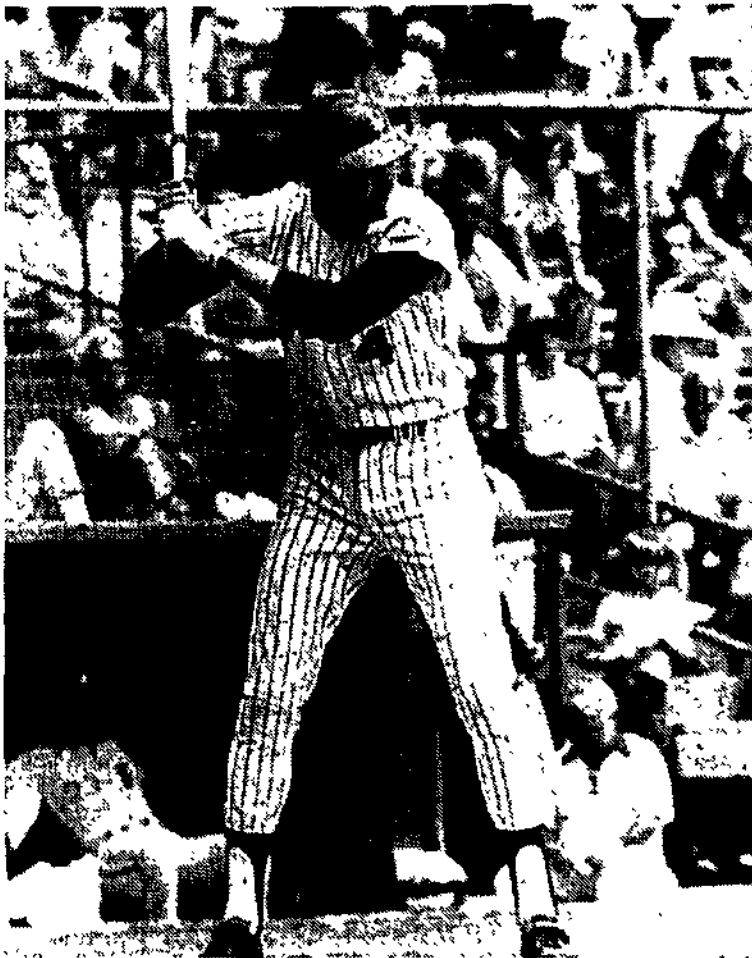

Kingman has been a streak hitter but even in a slump, he hits home runs and that's why the Mets finally realized, maybe too late, it is almost imperative that he play every day. They have the pitching to catch the league leaders, but they also need the bats. Kingman leads the team in game-winning hits.

Hitting is the way a man gets aggressions out of his system, and Dave is an aggressive ballplayer. He's a delight to watch with a bat in his hands.

He bends over crablike at the plate, his legs wide planted. It looks a little uncomfortable, but you don't judge a hitter by his stance.

The balls go flying and no sooner do they land than the stories begin again, blending fact and hope, of this talented and powerful young man.

Dave Kingman. A dominating force in baseball? Maybe the predictions of the past will be realized in the present.

A RELAXED, confident Dave Kingman, former Prospect High School star, arrived in Chicago last night with the New York Mets for a weekend series at Wrigley Field. Kingman, shown here in a game with Philadelphia, has been on a hot streak that has pushed him among the league leaders in home runs.

Arlington holds on, 3-1; deciding battle tonight

by MIKE KLEIN

Jerry Romes, much the fashion model in his yellow pants, stood around late for a dinner date. Lloyd Meyer didn't seem too impressed with Tim Halas' change-up pitch.

And Larry Nomellini could only wish there'd been a base hit or two in those Logan Square bats.

Park Ridge head coach Romes was on hand to watch Meyer's Arlington Heights club defeat Nomellini's Logan Square bunch, 3-1, at St. Viator High School.

It was a combined no-hitter for winning pitcher Scott Green (5-2) and reliever Dave Thorstensen which lasted two days. Green pitched five innings Wednesday before rain and darkness halted the game.

The defeat was placed upon Kevin Kelley's shoulders. Lou Citro pitched two hitless innings in relief yesterday and likely saved an Arlington Heights run with two fine defensive plays.

So that evened their best-of-three series at one game apiece. The rubber match is set for 6:00 tonight at Recreation Park.

Meyer will pitch Halas, with whom he worked extensively after yesterday's game, or Bob Schmidt. Halas is 5-1 but hasn't pitched since defeating Logan Square one week ago. Schmidt has a 4-1 record and beat Wheeling on Sunday.

Arlington Heights will be opposed by Keith Mallian or George Savage for Logan Square. Mallian scored a 5-0 triumph over Arlington on Tuesday.

day. Savage last pitched on Sunday against Rockford.

Each team created a small fuss yesterday. Thorstensen walked Logan Square's Kevin O'Brien and Kelley in the sixth. But he retired the losers one-two-three with two strikeouts in the seventh.

Citro's defense and O'Brien's work blocking home plate kept Arlington Heights from a seventh inning run. The rally was snuffed out when Paul Kastner's home plate steal attempt was thwarted by O'Brien's tag.

Romes, Meyer and Nomellini mapped out the Ninth District best-of-five championship tournament which starts at 5 p.m., Saturday, with one game at Maine South High School with Park Ridge against today's winner.

There will be a 1 p.m. doubleheader Sunday at Rec Park or St. Viator, then it's back to Maine South for 6 p.m. games Monday and Tuesday, if necessary.

White Sox take two from Yankees

Brian Downing, whose 11th inning homer produced an opening game 4-3 win for the Chicago White Sox, scored the only run of the game in the nightcap when Bill Melton was hit by a pitched ball with the bases full for a 1-0 decision and a sweep of a doubleheader against the New York Yankees.

Downing got into the second game as a pinch runner for Pete Varney, who opened the eighth with a single. He advanced on Pat Kelly's sacrifice, reached second on Debe Richardson's single and third when Ken Henderson was walked intentionally. Deron Johnson struck out but Melton was hit by Dick Tidrow's 2-2 pitch to force in the winning run.

Larry Gura took the loss in the nightcap, working 7 1/3 innings before Tidrow took over after Richardson's hit. Jesse Jefferson worked 7 2/3 innings for the White Sox and yielded four hits before he gave way to Dave Hamilton, who got his third win. Reliever Rich Gossage pitched 4 1/3 innings for the victory in the opener.

Tidrow was the loser in the opener, facing only two batters as Downing homered with one out in the 11th to decide the game. It was Downing's sixth home run.

The two wins were the first for the Sox at home in the six-game season series against New York.

It was the seventh time the Yankees have been shut out this season and the fifth time the White Sox have won by a shutout. Chicago came out of the doubleheader only one game under the .500 at 47-48 with a road game at Oakland tonight.

TOM SEAVER of the New York Mets goes down on one knee as he throws a third strike to Cincinnati's Dan Driessen Thursday. The strikeout was the 2000th in Seaver's major league career, but the righthander lost the game 2-1 and his bid to become baseball's first 15-game winner in 1975.

Cubs take one in San Francisco

Bill Bonham, with help from Oscar Zamora over the final 1 2/3 innings, drove in a key run Thursday in pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory in San Francisco.

Bonham, winning his first game since June 28 and his ninth overall compared to six losses, drove in the Cubs' third run of the game with a fourth inning single.

An error by starting pitcher Ed Halicki, two walks and a sacrifice fly by Gene Hiser gave the Cubs a 2-0 lead in the first inning and they made it 4-0 in the fourth on Bonham's run-scoring single and a sacrifice fly by Don Kessinger.

Chris Speler drove in the first two San Francisco runs — with an infield out in the fourth and a single in the eighth. Speler's eighth-inning hit finished Bonham and Zamora came on to retire the next two batters.

Zamora allowed a third Giant run in the ninth when Derrel Thomas walked, Mark Hill singled and Willie Montanez lofted an infield fly that Bill Madlock lost in the sun, allowing Thomas to score.

Halicki, touched for six hits and all four Chicago runs, took his seventh loss compared to four victories.

McKeon out, Herzog in for Kansas City

The Kansas City Royals fired manager Jack McKeon Thursday because he couldn't get along with his players and replaced him with Whitey Herzog, third base coach of the California Angels with a reputation for understanding players as few other men in baseball do.

Royals General Manager Joe Burke said the major consideration for dismissing McKeon "was there was really no rapport between the team and Jack or between Jack and the team."

Burke said Herzog was given a contract through 1976. No terms were announced, but it was estimated Herzog will receive $50,000 a year.

"I think we have a very good ball club," Herzog said. "We're not out of this thing yet. I think we're still in the race and it's a matter of all of us getting together, including the fans."

Herzog, who appeared at the news conference after a flight from Baltimore, immediately announced he would bring back Charley Lau as hitting instructor.

Lau, who was fired by McKeon during the final week of last season, has been working in the Royals' organization as a minor league hitting instructor. He was in Waterloo, Iowa, with the club's Class A farm team at the time of the announcement.

Lau's return is certain to be popular with the players, who vigorously denounced his dismissal last year.

All other coaches — Harry Duniop, Galen Cisco and Steve Boros — will be kept for the rest of this season, Herzog said.

McKeon was given a two-year extension on his contract last August, the first manager in Royals' history to receive more than a one-year contract.

"Jack went out convinced he had done the best he could do for the Royals," Burke said. "Nothing has been offered to him in the Royals' organization and Jack didn't indicate he wanted to stay in the organization."

Barry stars in Wheeling tourney win

Glenn Barry stroked two home runs, collected base hits in all three at-bats and drove across three runs as Wheeling eliminated Hersey, 5-1, in the third round of the Illinois high school baseball tourney Wednesday.

Barry hit a first-inning solo homer and followed Bob Terberry's fifth-inning single with a home run.

Bucky Black scored in the third and Rick Heredia tallied in the fourth for Wheeling.

John Miller pitched a complete game for his sixth victory against no defeats. It was a three-hitter for Miller who had three strikeouts.

The victory positioned Wheeling at 21-2 for the summer league season.

Maine South eliminated Palatine, 5-0, Wednesday at Palatine's diamond. The Pirates had advanced to the third round with victories over Arlington and Maine West earlier in the week.

Mike Kalasmiki of Addison Trail allowed Buffalo Grove just two hits while striking out 11 in a 1-0 win to eliminate the Bison.

Addison scored the winning run in the seventh on a lead-off double by Steve Carbon, who was sacrificed to third. After a strikeout, Carbon scored on an error.

It was an unfortunate loss for the Bison's Mike Marshall, who pitched equally as well. He gave up five hits and struck out 10 and still got the loss. Both pitchers went the distance.

Rolling Meadows and Elgin played to a 4-4 tie after five innings and the game was to have been played again last night to decide the winner.

Roger Schweigert had two runs-batted-in and a pair of singles as the Conant Cougars edged Wauconda 6-5 in a regular-season summer league game.

Schweigert's two-run single in the fourth inning was the key hit of a five-run Conant uprising.

Wauconda scrambled back into contention in the fifth inning. Starter Lindy Clark lost his control in that frame and issued complimentary visas to the first three batters.

Jim Karras was a big relief to Clark as he retired the final two batters to save the win.

Jim Heisen also had a pair of hits for the Cougars.

John Fidler pitched a five-hitter in the Woodfield Babe Ruth All Stars' 10-1 win over the Schaumburg All Stars in the state playoffs.

He was given offensive support by Tom Sweeney, Tom Hopkins, Kevin Weaver, and Gary Romano, accounting for all the runs batted in.

In an exciting game against the Hanover Park Babe Ruth Junior All Stars, Woodfield squeeze bunted their way to a 5-4 win. Pitching in relief for starter Tom Simon, Steve Hennessey retired Hanover in the bottom of the seventh to clinch the win.

Woodfield lost the district title to Downers Grove 3-0, losing the opportunity to go to Olney, Ill., for the state tournament.

In the 40-team Brookfield Tournament, Woodfield lost 1-0 to the tourney's favorite, Lombard, despite a three-hitter by Dan Schwellenbach.

Woodfield had six hits and a man on second when the Lombard shortstop robbed Rick Magsamen of a hit to turn it into a game-ending out.

BYERS IS OFF BASE

Fans Forum:
I would like to respond to Bud Byers' letter (Fans Forum, July 11). I think Mr. Byers has written an extremely one-sided picture of Cubs trades. Mr. Byers mentions the players that the Cubs traded without mentioning the players that the Cubs received in return. Thus, to correct the record, the Cubs did not "give" away Jenkins, Williams, and Holtzman. The Cubs received in return Madlock, Harris, Locker, Knowles, Trillo, and Monday. I think any impartial observer would judge that the Cubs came out 50-50 on the three trades. I certainly don't know any Cub fans who would trade back Madlock, Trillo, or Monday. I will agree that the Locker-North trade was a bummer.

I might be wrong, but I thought that the Cubs received Peplone for Metzger, not Torres. Anyway, Metzger could not break the Cubs' lineup with Kessinger at shortstop, and Peplone was later traded to Atlanta for Thornton.

Mr. Byers did not even mention the above trade or the other good deals that Mr. John Holland has made. Certainly the trade with the White Sox was one of the great ripoffs of all time. The Cubs gave Santo for Swisher, Stone, Fralling, and Krammel. Mr. Byers also neglected the Beckert-Morales trade. That was really a "terrible" trade.

I also would like to submit that the Hundley-Hands for McDaniell-Landrum deal was also a good trade, not the "worst trade the Cubs ever made." Hundley and Hands were excellent players for the Cubs for many years. To judge the trade a bad one because of the way McDaniell is pitching for Kansas City five teams later and Hundley and Hands are playing for teams two teams later is completely forgetting the fine years that Randy and Bill had with the Cubs.

Mr. Byers states "everyone talks about the terrible trades the Cubs have made in the last several years." I don't know who "everybody" is, but let's talk about the good trades too. Let us not continue to lynch Holland because of the Brock-Broglio deal. You can blame the Cubs' problems on many factors, but I don't think John Holland is the one to blame.

BAN TUG-OF-WAR

Dear Editor:

First, I'd like to say that I have really enjoyed the Paddock Olympics for the past few years and I think it's a great special event for the children. There is one event that I don't think should be included in the Olympics and that is the tug-of-war. I have seen many children walk away from this team-event with rope burns on their arms and shoulders and blisters on their hands (tying so hard to win these final points for their park districts).

I just think a better event could be planned so those boys and girls wouldn't be hurt.

Mrs. Gloria Meyer
Schaumburg

EDITOR'S NOTE: Merv Taylor, the organizer of the Paddock Olympics, defended the tug-of-war. "It's the most exciting event we have," said Taylor. "The kids really get enthused because it's the only event that is a team effort. We use a strong rope that can't break and if the kids are worried about rope burns they can wear gloves."

GUARD AGAINST CHEATING

Fans Forum:
With the announcement that the Paddock Olympics will be held on July 29-30, I begin to recall how desperately inadequate I felt after witnessing what I believed was an inordinate amount of cheating at last year's Olympics. It surely appeared that certain park districts didn't bother to read the rules by which all were to abide, particularly the rule which states the number of events in which a participant may enter.

Since lists of participants must be mailed to the host park district well in advance, one would assume that these lists would have been checked so that the rules of age and number of events entered would not go unheeded. Then on Olympics day one would expect that the hosts would have pre-written lists against which to check off the entrants as they presented their cards for each event. But such did not seem to be the case. My son and I heard some of the entrants talking one another into a last-minute decision to enter certain events, then marking their own individual event cards, even though they had not been pre-registered by their park districts. At the beginning of an event, the entrant simply stated his name and where he was from, and then his score was recorded and a winner determined.

Later, when the list of winners appeared in the paper, certain names appeared as winners more often than the rules even allowed they be entered in events, and some names appeared in more than one age category. I tried to bring this to the attention of the sponsors with the hope that future Paddock Olympics would not be marred by these same mistakes — that future Olympics would be most carefully screened by the host park district. I don't feel that I was very successful in bringing my point across at that time. Since winners had already been determined and prizes awarded, those I spoke to seemed to take the attitude that we should hope for better "next year."

Well, now it's "next year" and we will witness the Ninth Annual Paddock Olympics. As parents who desire to bring up our youngsters to practice honesty at all times, I feel that we should encourage this practice even if it means the loss of a contest or coming in second, third, or 10th. For what have we gained if we have won, but we know in our hearts that we had a head start and thereby lessened the other guy's chance? And think of those who are following the rules — desiring to win just as much as anyone else — and seeing that the ones who bend the rules are determined the winners! They're only children and they're easily influenced by what they see — both good and bad. It's up to all of us to assure them the benefit of good examples.

100-PER CENT CONNORS

Dear Fans Forum:

I'm getting sick of reading and hearing all the ways people put down Jimmy Connors because of the way he acts on the court. As far as I know, I'm the only person around that really admires and appreciates his actions on the court. Sure, he gets emotional but then again, so does everyone else. The only difference is, he's got the guts and the class not to be afraid and show them. One thing is certain and that is that whenever Jimmy Connors goes on the court, he is 100 per cent ready. All the other players are only 50 per cent ready. They may be in the best physical shape possible, but if their emotions and feelings don't come out, then they're holding back 50 per cent of what it takes to be a winner. This is the reason Jimmy Connors is the best tennis player in the world. He's putting everything he's got into tennis, and I admire him for it. Take a few more examples: Muhammad Ali, Rick Barry and the great, late Bruce Lee. Emotional, yes. Great, definitely. Think about it, maybe there's something to their style everyone else lacks.

MADLOCK BAD MVP

Dear Sir:

I really don't want to take anything away from Bill Madlock, but how in the world can a player be judged on one play and that play (hit) had some doubts in the minds of many baseball fans. Pete Rose without a doubt played a super All-Star game both at bat as well as in the field. Bill Madlock had a dubious hit and no fielding achievements. If merit is measured on the ability to drive in runs alone, then Carl Yastrzemski should have been awarded the MVP on his three-run blast. As far as pitching is concerned, another obvious boner was displayed by the so-called men of baseball experience and knowledge (the writers). Matlack pitched two innings and permitted two singles during his stay on the mound, whereas Jim Kaat pitched two perfect innings. Where are the values?

I am sure the baseball fan would like to have the writers explain their method in determining the best. The present method of selecting the players for the All-Star game leaves something to be desired. The fans' favoritism always overshadows good common sense thereby permitting players to be selected of noncaliber abilities. Ball players from the two leagues should select the players they feel are deserving of this honor.

Jannasch's 37 paces Chemplex Golf League

Eric Jannasch, back in action after two weeks of vacation, wasted little time in getting into the groove by shooting a 37 during the 11th round of the Chemplex Twilight Golf League this week. Jannasch's low gross equaled his previous league low for the season.

Rookies Chuck Van Dever and Bob Herigodt shared low net honors for the evening with 32. Herigodt already holds low net for the season with a 27. Jannasch fired three birdies en route to his low score, on holes 5, 6 and 8. Other birdies were claimed by Howard Grimmett (No. 8), Joe Litka

(No. 9), Bill Hicks (No. 4) and Carl Snyder (No. 8).

Team No. 5 — Larry Dowd, Elmer Olson, Hank Gudrian and Bob Herigodt — opened a 12-point lead over runnerup team No. 3 — Jannasch, Chuck Green, Jack Monteleone, and Dave Schull — with only three rounds remaining in the second half. Team No. 5 already won the opening half.

Flight leaders for the second half are: Flight A — Carl Snyder, Flight B — Joe Litka and Gus Birks (tie), Flight C — Hank Gudrian, and Flight D — Jim Donato.

The final day to sign up for the Buffalo Grove Bills traveling football team will be Saturday. Registration will be held at the Buffalo Grove Mall by the National Food Store from 9 a.m. to noon. The Mall is located at Duodee and Arlington Heights Rds.

Registration is open to all boys in the 5th thru 8th grades who live north of Palatine Rd. in Arlington, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. A $20 registration fee is required. Families with two or more boys will be given a special discount.

The Bills compete in both the Tri-County Junior Football League and the Pop Warner Widget League. Boys will be placed on one of the four teams according to their weight and age. The Bills offer Pee-wee football for boys under 90 pounds; Widget Football for those boys who do not exceed 103 pounds; Lightweight football for boys under 110 pounds; and senior football for boys over 110 lbs. Last year the Bills captured championships in the Pee-wee, Widget and Senior leagues. The Bills had a combined season record of 36-3-3.

If unable to attend Saturday's signup, call president John Truelsens during the evening hours at 259-2350 or Dave Triplett at 537-6246.

Top bike riders to visit Northbrook for nationals

Northbrook, Ill., become bicycling capitol of the United States on Tuesday, July 29 when 350 of the country's top bike riders sign in for the National Bicycle Track Championships. All events will be held on the Northbrook Bicycle Track in Meadowhill Park, July 30 through Aug. 2.

The National Bicycle Track Championships are co-sponsored by the Bicycle Institute of America and The Travelers Insurance Companies' PEP (Physical Exercise Pays) Program and conducted by the Amateur Bicycle League of America (ABLA).

The PEP Program, initiated by The Travelers as a means of encouraging American families to participate in physical activities they can enjoy, has been endorsed by the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

National Women's Sprint champion Sue Novara of Flint, Mich. will be back in Northbrook as will World Women's Spring champion Sheila Young of Detroit, Mich.

Ralph Therio of Torrance, Calif., the first triple National Track champion in the history of the ABLA (Individual pursuit, team pursuit and ten mile events); Steve Woznick of Ridgefield Park, N.J., holder of National Kilometer and Men's Sprint championships and Gilbert (Gibbie) Hutton of El Monte, Calif., number one among Junior Men in 1974, will be at Northbrook to defend their titles.

Nearly 100 separate races will be held during the four-day National Track meet to determine a dozen titles.

Winners of the Kilometer championships, the winner and runner-up of the Individual Pursuit, and the top three finishers in the Sprints will be invited to represent the U.S. in the Pan American Games in Mexico in October. In addition, 16 other riders will be selected, based on their potential as 4000 meter team pursuers along with an "exceptional" Junior riders, according to an ABLA spokesman.

Cash for ace in Paddock's golf tourney

Each of 140 golfers will have the chance of pocketing $100 for a hole-in-one at the Paddock tournament Sunday, Aug. 17, at Buffalo Grove Golf Club although there has been only one ace during the first 24 years of the event.

Nike Spinello, representing Graft Builder's team in Old Orchard Scratch League in the 1970 tournament at Thunderbird, carded the ace on the par 3 17th hole.

Whether or not one of the expected 140 golfers this time will be able to pocket the $100 prize remains to be seen, but it is certain the 12 individual trophies, four golf passes and two dozen golf balls for low net and low gross will definitely be taken by day's end.

First place teams of the twilight leagues as of July 26 are eligible for the big event with deadline for entries Saturday, Aug. 10.

KEEPING TABS on the Logan Square baserunner, is Arlington Heights first sacker Paul Kastner (right) who makes a belated swipe after taking throw from pitcher Scott Green. Logan Square had seven base-runners, but no hits and just one run off Green in five innings before the game had to be suspended in the top of the sixth because of darkness and rain. Arlington was ahead, 3-1.

St. Viator swimmers sparkle in AAU

St. Viator swimmers Mark Rohl and Mark Markwell, who are produced and directed by head coach John Fleck, each won championships in last weekend's Class "A" long course Central AAU Junior Olympics hosted by the Hinsdale Swim Club.

Rohl captured 100-meter freestyle (56.8) in the boys 15-18 category while Markwell claimed honors in 100-meter backstroke (1:08.3) for boys 13-14. Both young men represented the Northern Illinois Swim Association.

This newest honor is one of many for Rohl. As a sophomore last winter, Rohl placed sixth in 100-yard freestyle at Illinois High School Association fi-

It was the highest IHSA finish by any local swimmer and followed Rohl's 100 freestyle championship in the Arlington district.

At the AAUs, Rohl placed third in 100-meter backstroke (1:06.9) while young Markwell contributed a third in 200-meter individual medley (2:30.5).

Four other swimmers also earned championships. They were:

—FLK Grove's Kathy Butterfield, for the Park Ridge Swim Club, in 50-meter breaststroke (43.6) for girls 9-10.

—Mount Prospect's Barbara Larsen, also for Park Ridge, in 100-meter butterfly (1:14.3) for girls 11-12.

—Buffalo Grove's Mike Harvey, for Camp Duncan YMCA, in 200-meter individual medley (2:40.6) plus 100-meter butterfly (1:12.6) for boys 11-12, and

horses, in 200-meter freestyle (2:21.2) for boys 11-12.

All those swimmers had additional placings. Butterfield finished third in 50-meter freestyle (31.5), third in 200-meter individual medley (3:09.9), fifth in 50-meter butterfly (39.9) and seventh in 100-meter freestyle (1:17.5).

Mark Markwell

She also swam on Park Ridge's two winning relays, the 200-meter medley where a new CAAU record of 2:43.2 was established plus the freestyle relay (2:21.6).

Larsen placed second in 200-meter individual medley (2:43.6), third in 100-meter backstroke (1:17.8) and fourth in 100-meter freestyle (1:08.0).

She participated in two new Junior Olympic relay records for girls 11-12, the 200-meter freestyle (2:07.8) and 200-meter medley (2:21.8).

Harvey earned second in 200-meter freestyle (2:21.5), third in 100-meter backstroke (1:18.2), fourth in 100-meter freestyle (1:05.8) and seventh in 100-meter breaststroke (1:30.7).

Altergott included fifth in 100-meter backstroke (1:18.7) and sixth in 100-meter freestyle (1:08.5).

Three other local swimmers earned points in the Central AAU Champlionships. Elk Grove's Kathy Amato, for the Park Ridge club, was sixth in 100-meter backstroke (1:17.5) and eighth in 100-meter butterfly (1:18.6) for girls 13-14.

Amato also swam on two new Junior Olympic record-setting relay teams, the 400-meter medley (4:58.2) and 400-meter freestyle (4:20.6).

Palatine's Jessica Boxer, for the Federation of Illinois Seahorses, earned fifth in 200-meter individual medley (2:49.3) and eighth in 200-meter freestyle (2:28.8) for girls 11-12.

Elk Grove's Tim Bird, for the Northern Illinois Swim Association, earned sixth in 100-meter butterfly (1:08.1) and eighth in 100-meter backstroke (1:14.4).

Hinsdale won the boys' trophy and girls' honors went to Park Ridge. Forty-one teams were represented by 354 boys and 280 girls.

Didrikson tough role in hurdle

Susan Clark plays 'other' Babe

by DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — With a change of a few costumes, what was Evanston, Ill., suddenly became the Los Angeles Coliseum. And Susan Clark, playing Babe Didrikson, kept on running and skimming over the hurdles.

The Canadian-born, English-trained actress is involved in one of the most difficult roles ever attempted by a more or less nonathletic girl — she's playing the part of perhaps the greatest female athlete of them all. "Babe," which will be seen on TV sometime next fall, is the story of Mildred "Babe" Didrikson Zaharias, who could do about everything.

On the day I watched, Susan was hurdling. They were shooting in a Culver City park and the first scene shot was supposed to be the meet in Evanston, in 1932, when Babe qualified for the Olympics. Susan Clark was in a blue outfit, with a cap on her head.

The other girls in the race were members of the U.C.L.A. girls track team. The gun sounded and down the track they came. Although Clark looked pretty good, it was obvious that the other girls were holding back, and, at the finish, it was Babe breaking the tape, her arms flung wide and a big, triumphant grin on her face.

One of the handful of spectators watching the filming was a woman who knew Babe well. Mrs. Jean Shirley Newhouse had been on the '32 Olympic team and had, in fact, beaten Babe in the high jump finals on a disqualification.

"Gee," Newhouse says, "Miss Clark even resembles Babe in the way she hurdles — Babe didn't have good form. She did it by brute force."

That was the way Clark was going over the jumps. She forced her way over, without grace but with efficiency. The man who has been coaching her, Chuck Debus, the coach of the U.C.L.A. girls track team, said that was what he wanted.

"Susan Clark has no athletic skill," he said, "but she's getting by on her ability as an actress. She can emulate anything. If I told her what I wanted her to do, she couldn't do it. But if I show her what I want, she does it perfectly."

They shot the scene three or four times, then they all changed costumes. Clark came out again, this time in the Olympic uniform. Now the scene was the '32 Olympics, at the Coliseum.

They were only shooting the tops of the hurdles; so it didn't matter that the background was the same. On the screen, you'll just see the girls hurdling.

They didn't rent the Coliseum, which still stands just as it did in '32, because, the producers say, the men who run the Coliseum asked "unreasonable" rates to use it.

Newhouse reminisced about Babe. She said that, in the high jump event in the '32 Olympics, there had been a jump-off. Babe was disqualified for violation of form, and Jean Shirley, as she was known then, was the winner.

"Babe was very angry," Newhouse said. "She was not a good loser. She had total confidence in her ability."

"In those days, it wasn't considered ladylike for a girl to be an athlete. My folks would have much preferred it if I had won a cooking contest, instead of an Olympic title. And dating boys was hard — the boys thought a girl who was an athlete was different."

Again, they shot the scene a few times. When it was finally finished, Clark came over to the bleachers and sank down. She kept swinging and stretching her legs, to keep them from tightening up. For an essentially nonathletic person, playing an athlete has been tough.

"Three hours a day, five days a week, for six weeks," she said. "That's how long I've spent at the track, working out. And, for all that time, when I finished at the track, I went to the golf driving range."

She had to learn to play golf from scratch because after Didrikson finished her track career, she became a top golf pro.

"I never played golf at all," Susan said. "I had danced and skated and skied and waterski and rode horseback, that's all. No running. No golf."

"I hate running, but I think I'll continue to do it now every other day — because I feel terrific. But I really like golf. Golf is great. It's relaxing. And it's nice to have a sport you can do anywhere in the world."

"I had a Berlitz-like course in golf — 50 lessons. Before that, I didn't even know how to hold a club."

It's been a brutal time for the actress. She says she has lost nine pounds and changed her shape. And she has been injured.

"I hurt my leg," she says. "I was doing some publicity shots over the high hurdles and I crashed. I fell and I sprained my ankle and gave my knee a nice goose egg. That's when I realized there was more to this 'part' than guts. Then later I got shin splints from running on the gravel."

"But I'm in great shape now. Now I can run a mile without thinking I'm going to die — and I used to hate all forms of exercise."

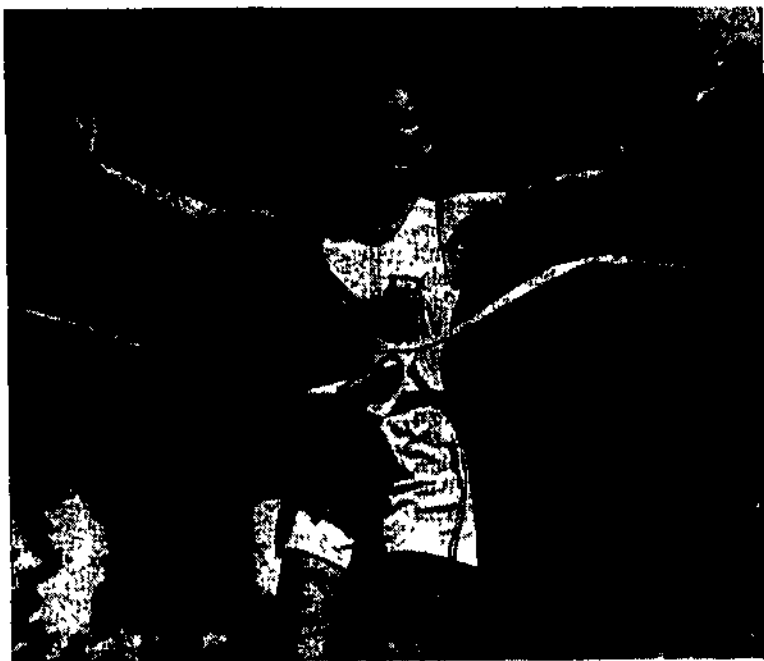

"One strange thing is that now I can't eat meat. I just don't like the taste any more. I only eat vegetables and fruit and dark bread. When I finish the role and stop all this exercising, I don't know. I may go back to being a regular person again."

There was never any doubt in the producers' minds that Susan was the girl they wanted. There is a strong facial resemblance between Babe and Susan, although Susan is prettier.

"I'd heard about this role for two years," Susan says. "But I wasn't counting on it. Then I read the script and the deal was made and then I got excited. I said to myself that if I can pull this off, it'll be terrific for me."

Apparently, she's pulling it off.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

SUSAN CLARK, as Babe Didrikson, wins a gold medal in the 80-meter hurdles event at the 1932 Olympics. The made-for-television movie — "Babe" — will be aired this fall.

'Old' guy Johnson shows value in White Sox role

by ED SAINSBURY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Maybe he won't hit for a big average, and maybe he won't be high up in the home run table, but Deron Johnson of the Chicago White Sox will have to rank close to the top in baseball 1975 for doing the job for the old guy.

Johnson, who is 37 years old, was written off as washed up last year when the Boston Red Sox released him, and he was discouraged and despondent about the future.

He made his own renaissance. "I had a lot of doubt," he said. "I didn't get to play much and I had a bad year. The scouts and all those so-called experts upstairs said I was through."

"You know, 'Look how old he is, he's through.' I didn't think I was through, and I got a good break."

Johnson went to the Red Sox training camp this spring determined to work his way back. "Johnny Pesky gave me a couple of tips on hitting," he said, "and I worked hard, and I got ready. And thanks to the Red Sox, they couldn't play me until May 14 because they had released me, so they would have sent me to the minors until then. But they arranged for me to go to the White Sox instead."

"I was a free agent and when they told me I could sign with the White Sox, I jumped at the chance, and I'm glad I did. It's great to play for this team. It's young and it's still starting to play as a team."

"Then it's got a manager who makes you want to play. He stuck with me when I was hitting .300, and he's built up my confidence again so I feel like I can play for a couple more years, or maybe more."

Johnson, who has been in the major leagues 12 years, had 12 home runs and a .244 batting average at the All Star break, and believes he can attain more than 20 home runs this season, a plus for the White Sox.

"Homers come in spurts," he said, and to prove it in one stretch he had five in six games earlier this season.

Tanner values Johnson not only because of his work with the bat and his dependability at first base or designated hitter, but also because "he's a quiet leader. The young kids watch him. He doesn't say much but he's helpful to all of them."

Johnson, who was traded from Philadelphia to Oakland in 1973 for Wheeling High grad Jack Bastable, denies being a leader. "Not at all," he said. "I don't say anything. I don't lead anybody."

But don't the younger players come to you and ask advice, Deron?

"Yes," he said, "a lot of them come around and ask about what to do in this situation or that one, and I try to answer them, to help them as much as I can."

That's being a leader.

Volunteers ignored

CD official raps village

by LUISA GINETTI

A meeting between village trustees and members of the Wheeling Civil Defense has been requested by Trustee Gilbert Monoson in an attempt to resolve problems in the volunteer organization.

The problems, include complaints from CD officials that they are not receiving cooperation from village officials and the fire and police departments.

Acting CD Deputy Director Thomas Lorenz, during an interview with the judiciary and purchasing committee for appointment as permanent deputy director, said the problems faced by the group go beyond lack of cooperation.

LORENZ SAID the unit's 27 volunteers provide their own uniforms and vehicles and receive only a badge and identification card from the village. Lorenz said the village also provides a minimal budget for CD expenses and he and director Robert Buorger are in a constant battle with village officials to get expenditures approved. Lorenz also said police and fire officials are reluctant to call on the CD for assistance in emergencies. He cited last week's fire at the Le Francis Restaurant as an example of how CD assistance could have been used.

The fire, which occurred at the height of the evening rush hour, required traffic to be rerouted off Milwaukee Road between Hintz and Dundee roads. CD personnel, who are trained in traffic control, were never called until Lorenz phoned the police department and offered assistance. he said. By this time the fire had been blazing for more than an hour, he said.

LORENZ SAID he plans to devote much of his time within the next few weeks to develop a disaster plan for the village. No provisions for dealing with village-wide emergencies exist, he said.

Without a disaster plan, the CD will lose its state accreditation and thus be ineligible for federal and state financial grants, Lorenz said.

He also predicted that without better cooperation from village officials and departments, Wheeling CD will lose many of its volunteers.

TRUSTEES present at the committee meeting expressed shock at Lorenz's comments and said they want the CD situation resolved.

"It's a terrible waste of volunteer resource," Monoson said. He said he would request that Police Chief Peter Gutilla and Fire Chief Bernard Koepen be present for the meeting to be set between trustees and the CD.

"I'm surprised at the lack of cooperation between the CD and the fire and police departments but the thing that bothers me most is that we don't have a disaster plan," Trustee Otis Hedlund said.

Monoson added that because of the Village's proximity to Palwaukee Airport there is more of a potential for a disaster than in surrounding communities such as Buffalo Grove, which has a disaster plan.

Monoson said he hopes the meeting will bring all parties together to resolve the problems.

Villas pond is a ducky place to live

There are plenty of crackers for the quackers

Life is simply ducky for some 50 wild and domestic waterfowl residing at the Lakeside Villas townhouse complex in Wheeling.

In exchange for the esthetic value they provide, the Brown mallards and white ducks are treated like pets, getting special considerations. They live in a manmade pond and are fed by homeowners and sheltered during bad weather.

"We give them the run of the place," says Irv Zabrin, salesman at the development whose office ledge recently protected 13 eggs during the hatching process. "They get special treatment."

Zabrin says neighbors "watch them carefully. They don't run over them."

When they decide to, the birds flaunt their get-up-and-go, waddling quickly and smartly in regimented fashion across Bridgeview Court north of Hintz Road, tying up whatever traffic there might be.

Zabrin, who admits he isn't an expert on life-styles of the waterfowl, figures they want to do more than just get on the other side of the road for getting-on-the-other-side-of-the-road's sake. They go "whenever they decide there's something better on the other side." How they sense this, he doesn't know, but he adds if you offer them a piece of bread they'll follow you anywhere.

The Mallards stick around during the summer months and stay just long enough to watch the broods hatch. Then they are on their way. "Where they go I don't know," says Zabrin. "They just come back in summer."

Each brood stays together as one unit. That's why they follow one another wherever they go.

"Whenever they go for a walk or a swim they are always led by the mother duck," Zabrin says. "In the rear, someplace, is the father."

'Late entrant' gets seat on Dist. 21 school board

Barbara Farr, a last-minute candidate for the vacant seat on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education was named to that post Thursday.

Mrs. Farr applied Friday for the post vacated by Edwin Smith who recently resigned. Mrs. Farr, 48, lives at 80 E. Jeffery Ave., Wheeling. A resident of the village for 20 years, she is an instructor in British history at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus.

Mrs. Farr said she had just heard of the vacancy Friday and had not been active in the district's affairs until her appointment.

Board Pres. Jack Lane said Mrs. Farr was the unanimous choice of board members. Four candidates applied for appointment to the seat.

"I have no special interest, or ax to grind," Mrs. Farr said. "I'm very pleased to be picked from the very fine field of candidates."

Smith resigned July 1 after serving on the board for eight years. He is moving out of the district.

Other candidates for the vacancy were:

• James DeNoma, 544 White Pine Rd., Buffalo Grove, a guidance counselor at Rolling Meadows High school and former teacher at Prospect High School. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the board in April.

• William Engstrom, 124 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, a research technician for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

• Linda Marulles, 330 Windsor Dr., Buffalo Grove, now a member of the citizens' committee for health, safety and facilities a former PTA board member at Alcott School.

Mouton earns backing for panel

Robert Mouton, 421 S. Arrow Tr., will be recommended Monday to the Wheeling Village Board to fill the term on the plan commission now held by Elliott Tobias.

Tobias, a member of the commission for one year, was interviewed for reappointment consideration by the judiciary committee headed by Trustee Otis Hedlund but failed to win the committee's endorsement. He term to be filled runs through 1978.

Mouton's selection and those of several other persons to be recommended for commission vacancies were made Wednesday night by the committee after several weeks of interviews.

MOULTON'S appointment to the commission must be approved by the village board and it is expected trustees, several of whom sat in on interviews, will vote in favor of the recommendation.

Six other recommendations for commission vacancies will be presented to the board Monday including three members to the environmental advisory commission, one member of the youth commission, a deputy director for Civil Defense and a Bicentennial Commission chairman.

The committee voted to recommend William Rogers be reappointed chairman of the environmental advisory commission, a post he has held since the commission was formed in 1973. Other names to be presented for EAC membership are Jerome Klubek and Harold Strangways.

John Koepen will be recommended for appointment to the Youth Commission, Thomas Lorenz will be recommed as deputy Civil Defense director and Leonard Schlagen will be recommended to serve as Bicentennial Commission chairman.

HEDLUND SAID the appointments Monday will fill many of the outstanding vacancies on boards and commissions. Vacancies still to be filled include positions on the board of health and the Bicentennial Commission, Hedlund said.

The board last month voted to fill numerous vacancies on commissions, some of which had existed for several months.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:18 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

A half-empty bottle of vodka await-

Crackdown on speeders lessen S-curve wrecks

The number of traffic accidents along the Ill. Rte. 83 S-curve in Mount Prospect is "definitely down" since police increased enforcement of the 25 m.p.h. speed limit 13 months ago, Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said.

The number of arrests for speeding also is up, averaging 66 per month for the past three months, police statistics show.

"We had only one accident on the S-curve during April, May and June this year," Doney said Thursday.

This compares with a fatal accident in May 1974 and five accidents without injuries the following month. The S-curve stretches from Millburn Avenue to Shabonee Trail.

THE FATAL accident last year became the motivating force behind a meeting of area residents with Doney and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppeley. A crackdown on speeders resulted.

STATISTICS FOR April through June this year show 198 speeding tickets were issued on the S-curve. There were 126 tickets issued in April, 43 in May and 29 in June. Doney said the number of tickets should increase this month because a patrolman recently was assigned the search for speeders and overweight trucks as his main duties.

The largest number of tickets during the three months were issued to drivers traveling between 36 m.p.h. and 40 m.p.h. in the 25 m.p.h. zone (110) and those traveling between 41 m.p.h. and 45 m.p.h. (80). There were 90 tickets issued to northbound drivers, 74 to southbound, 13 to eastbound and 21 to westbound. Morning speed received 89 of the tickets.

NONRESIDENTS of the village received 145 tickets, with 53 for village residents.

"The officers are enforcing the

S-curve speed limit as much as possible in addition to their other duties," Doney said. "I think that due to the stepped-up enforcement the number of violations has decreased. We will continue to enforce the speed limit at this location."

Most of the tickets have stood up in court. Doney said that for the three months, 144 of the speeding tickets have come up in court. There were 127 convictions and 17 dismissals. Another 39 cases have been continued and 15 have not been heard.

Wheeling Road to be repaired next year

Repairs of a bumpy stretch of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue tentatively are scheduled for next year.

The work, which will include resurfacing and leveling, was scheduled this construction season. There have been delays, however, and the project still is in the drawing-board stage, said

Wheeling Township Highway Comm. Arthur E. Olsen Jr. Thursday. "It does get a lot of traffic and I agree it needs work," Olsen said. The stretch runs along the west edge of the Rob Roy Golf Course. Olsen said the street is used as a major connection to Wheeling, although it was intended as a local street. The improvements will be handled by the County Highway Dept., which already has taken soil borings in preparation for improvement plans, Olsen said.

One problem with improving the road is the street right-of-way is only half the normal size. Olsen said the right half, which normally would be dedicated, still is part of the golf course. The McDonald family, owners of the property, have "declined" to dedicate the land, he said.

OLSEN SAID there still will be room for a two-lane road but it will be "kind of close" to fit proper road shoulders and drainage facilities. He said a 40-foot dedication exists. Needed for the pavement will be 22 to 24 feet, another 6 feet for the shoulders and room for drainage ditches on both sides. He added the road will be off-center (not aligned with Wheeling Road north of the stretch) because of the lack of proper right-of-way dedication.

The township highway department has kept the road open to traffic by digging out some of the softer spots and filling them with stone.

State's Attorney won't charge cop in shooting

by JILL BETTNER

The State's Attorney's office will not file criminal charges against Elk Grove Village Patrolman William Jaworski in the April 5 shooting of Timothy Engelson, 18, of Mount Prospect.

David Cuprison, a spokesman for the State's Attorney's office, Thursday said the decision stems from testimony by a witness to the incident.

"The decision is based on a sworn statement by an independent witness who was not involved in the incident," Cuprison said. "He corroborated much of Jaworski's story."

The patrolman shot and seriously wounded Engelson after a pre-dawn scuffle with the youth and five companions. Engelson, along with the other teen-agers involved in the incident, has been charged with a number of traffic and curfew violations.

Elk Grove Village Police Chief Harry Jenkins said he had no comment on the state's attorney's decision not to prosecute Jaworski.

The patrolman has been relieved of his duty since the incident and continues to receive full pay. If he returns to work and whether the village's police and fire commission takes action against Jaworski is up to Village Atty. Edward Hofert, Jenkins said.

"I'm not prepared to make any recommendations yet, although I'm glad to receive the news about the state's attorney's decision," Hofert said. "I have not yet completed my own investigation."

"This is good news. I'm very, very happy, needless to say," Jaworski said.

The mother of the wounded youth declined to comment further because of her son's $1 million damage suit against Jaworski that is pending.

Cuprison said the state's attorney's finding will have no bearing on the suit that was filed in Circuit Court shortly after the incident.

The suit charges Jaworski with battery, negligence, and willful and wanton misconduct. It also charges that the patrolman deprived Engelson of his civil rights under the U.S. Constitution.

'Stolen' airplane back at Palwaukee

The "stolen" Cessna airplane was back in its proper place Thursday at Palwaukee Airport, south of Wheeling, although no arrests were made in the reported pirating of the craft.

The $28,000 plane owned by Leo Brigman, 39, of 2836 N. Avers, Chicago, reportedly was stolen from Palwaukee Tuesday night. The plane is back at the airport, Esther Nofke, an administrative assistant at Palwaukee, said.

An FBI spokesman Thursday said no arrests have been made in connection with the alleged theft. Brigman could not be reached for comment Thursday to see if he still plans to press charges.

Authorities have said the person who took the plane — and is still unnamed — is a friend of Brigman's and has been permitted to use the plane in the past. Brigman told Sheriff's police Tuesday that he had not given anyone the authority to fly the plane that night.

Can't find mediator

City, unions' talks stalled

Contract negotiations between Des Plaines and union city employees have been stalled because of difficulty in finding a federal mediator.

City officials and the unions representing policemen, firemen and public works employees reached a standstill in June and all sides agreed to seek a federal mediator to help break the stalemate.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said this week that the city and union employees agreed on a mediator several weeks ago, but the mediator refused to take part in the talks because an agreement would not be binding.

A CITY ORDINANCE prohibits binding arbitration in contract negotiations between the city and union employees. Behrel said the city and unions are attempting to find another mediator.

The three employee unions are represented by the same attorney, but are negotiating separate contracts. The unions represent about 75 per cent of the city's 400 employees.

THE CONTRACT between the unions and the city expired May 1. Sources say several issues remain unresolved, but that salary increases have been the primary stumbling block.

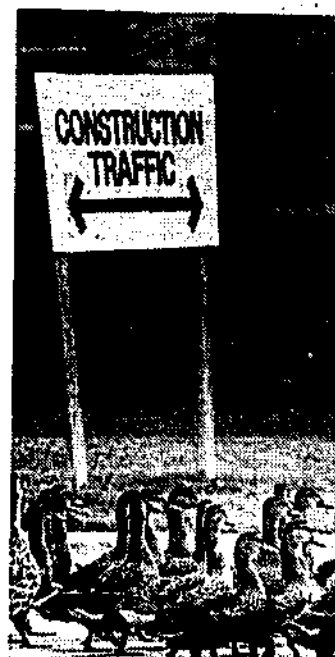

The city initially offered the employees a 6 per cent pay raise, but recently has increased the amount to about 7 per cent. The unions apparently have come down from an original demand of 15 per cent, but are not willing to accept the city's latest offer.

CITY WORKERS received a 9 per cent salary increase last year.

As a result of the delays in negotiations with union employees, salary increases for all workers have been delayed. The city's nonunion employees have asked the city to make their pay raises retroactive to May 1, but the city council has not acted on the request.

Villas pond is a ducky place to live

There are plenty of crackers for the quackers

Life is simply ducky for some 50 wild and domestic waterfowl residing at the Lakeside Villas townhouse complex in Wheeling.

In exchange for the esthetic value they provide, the Brown mallards and white ducks are treated like pets, getting special considerations. They live in a manmade pond and are fed by homeowners and sheltered during bad weather.

"We give them the run of the place," says Irv Zabrin, salesman at the development whose office ledge recently protected 13 eggs during the hatching process. "They get special treatment."

Zabrin says neighbors "watch them carefully. They don't run over them."

When they decide to, the birds flaunt their get-up-and-go, waddling quickly and smartly in regimented fashion across Bridgeview Court north of Hintz Road, tying up whatever traffic there might be.

Zabrin, who admits he isn't an expert on life-styles of the waterfowl, figures they want to do more than just get on the other side of the road for getting-on-the-other-side-of-the-road's sake. They go "whenever they decide there's something better on the other side." How they sense this, he doesn't know, but he adds if you offer them a piece of bread they'll follow you anywhere.

The Mallards stick around during the summer months and stay just long enough to watch the broods hatch. Then they are on their way. "Where they go I don't know," says Zabrin. "They just come back in summer."

Each brood stays together as one unit. That's why they follow one another wherever they go.

"Whenever they go for a walk or a swim they are always led by the mother duck," Zabrin says. "In the rear, someplace, is the father."

Centel, union resume negotiations Monday

A federal mediator has called Central Telephone Co. officials and striking union employees back to the bargaining table.

Martin Brown, a spokesman for Central Telephone Co., said Thursday the mediator has scheduled a negotiating session Monday between the two sides. The exact time and place has not been announced.

Meanwhile, Brown said 200 to 300 telephone customers were without service Thursday after a telephone cable was set afire on Bittersweet Court, between Oakton Street and Mannheim Road, Des Plaines. He said a signal flare was found at the base of the telephone pole.

WORK CREWS comprised of management employees, were repairing the cable, Brown said, adding that service probably would not be restored until at least midnight Thursday.

He said in recent days numerous pay telephones in the Central Telephone Co. area have been damaged. Paint has been sprayed on some telephones, Brown said, while a metal material has been put in the coin and key slots of others.

AN "EXTENSIVE AMOUNT" of damage has been done to telephone company property since the strike began July 1, according to the company. The company has offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction on anyone damaging company property.

Union employees, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 338, went on strike after failing to reach agreement with the company on a new contract.

Residents' fears sparked defeat of Forest expansion

by STEVE BROWN

A news analysis

The idea of patients from a psychiatric hospital wandering through residential neighborhoods apparently proved to be too much for members of the Des Plaines City Council.

A survey of some aldermen who changed their vote during a two-week period to defeat the proposal by Forest Hospital to rezone an 11-acre tract to expand some of its services indicates they reacted to the fears expressed by the residents who live around the hospital.

"I have never received as many letters on a particular zoning matter as I got on this one," said Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th.

ABRAMS SAID the people voiced concerns about the ease in which the patients of the hospital could come and go from the facility.

"These are real concerns and I think I can appreciate their concern," Abrams said.

Abrams, like others, indicated a report that 46 patients have walked away from the hospital since the first of the year seemed to startle some aldermen. Hospital officials had reported that only a few people had "eloped" from the grounds, but never offered any hard numbers. They also indicated that the "walkaways" had not been reported to the police by the hospital before this year.

Hospital officials use the term "elopement" to describe the walkaways, but neighbors in the area seem to think of it more seriously.

THEY HAVE reported incidents where patients were forcibly restrained.

The important question in the aftermath of the rejection of the hospital's rezoning request is whether the city council plans to take a positive step to ease residents' concerns about security.

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, said he believes the matter should be studied.

"The first step might be to take the psychiatric hospital out of the commercial zoning classification and make it an institutional use. We also might start a study on the security problem to see just what the city can do," he added.

Other aldermen said a move to require more security at the hospital might be in order. Some hospital officials have opposed the idea of implementing a security program requiring guards or locking up most patients.

ABRAMS SUGGESTED that there be compromise between the hospital and the residents.

"There has to be a way for rational compromise that would both eliminate some of the fears of the residents but also allow the hospital to conduct its business," he added.

The suggestion also has been made that the hospital look for more isolated surroundings away from residential areas. Sections of land along River Road, especially the buildings which house DeLaurens College, have been mentioned.

Hospital officials have not made their future plans clear. There could be a legal battle on the horizon if the hospital contests the rezoning rejection. The hospital also might purchase the property at Garland Place and Rand Road for some programs.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:16 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

Rezone bid delayed by developers

A request to rezone a portion of land at 830 Oakton St. from residential to commercial use to allow construction of a shopping center has been postponed indefinitely.

Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning, said the shopping center developers asked that a zoning board hearing be canceled. Richardson said he was told the developers are not able to get all of the necessary background information needed to make their request to the zoning board.

THE PLANS FOR the shopping center, which would be at the northwest corner of Oakton Street and Webster Lane have become controversial.

Some residents in the area have protested the plans indicating they would formally oppose the development before the zoning board hearing. The residents contend there already are enough shopping centers in the area of Oakton and Lee streets.

When Fred Owens of O'Hare Development Corp. first revealed plans for the shopping center in February, he indicated the total development on a 25-acre tract would include 124,000 square feet of commercial space, 13 single-family homes and a 6.5-acre park. The park would serve as a buffer zone between the shopping center and the homes which would face Forest Avenue, the northern boundary of the property.

OWENS COULD not be reached for comment Monday on the reasons behind the last delay. Richardson said that Owens asked for an indefinite postponement on the zoning hearing.

The developer will be required to file a completely new zoning application and pay for another legal notice to be published on the hearing.

Besides questioning the need for another shopping center, some residents voiced concerns over the fact Paul Marquette, chairman of the plan commission, owns a portion of the property and Vern Chase, a member of the zoning board prepared the initial plans for the development. The proposal must receive approval from both panels and the city council before construction can begin.

Order 20 m.p.h. limits on side streets: Ward

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, again has proposed lowering speed limits to 20 m.p.h. on side streets in Des Plaines.

Ward proposed lowering the speed limits for safety reasons last year, but some city officials said detailed traffic studies were needed before the city acted.

Ward this week said traffic studies have been concluded in seven sections of the city, and asked that lower speed limits again be considered.

The alderman said the traffic surveys show that drivers travel at an average speed of 20 m.p.h. on side streets, supporting his proposal to lower speed limits.

THE SPEED LIMIT on most side streets now is 30 m.p.h., with the exception of school zones. "If a 20 m.p.h. speed limit is justified near schools, it is justified on all side streets," Ward said.

He has asked City Atty. Charles Hug to determine if it would be legal for the city to lower speed limits, and if so, what stops would be necessary.

In the past, some city officials said the lower speed limits would be ignored by the public and be difficult to enforce.

Police Chief Arthur Hintz last year said lower speed limits could cause confusion because residential speed limits in most communities are 30 m.p.h. He said the state driver test also indicates 30 m.p.h. as a standard limit when no limit is posted.

If the city were to lower speed limits to 20 m.p.h. on side streets, signs would have to be erected to indicate the speed reduction.

The local scene

Flea market Sept. 7

More than 100 exhibitor's booths will be set up at the Des Plaines Historical Society's 4th annual country fair and flea market Sunday, Sept. 7. Deadline for reserving a 12-by-21 foot space, at $5, is Friday, Aug. 15. Application forms can be obtained by calling 297-1912. The fair is held in the parking lot of the museum, 777 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Tappy the Clown will again be on hand to host the contests and entertainment. Over 8,000 persons visited the fair last year. An even larger number is expected this year to not only buy articles from the exhibitors and dealers, but also to win prizes at the hog calling, pie eating and arm wrestling contests at the spelling bee.

Bingo party for seniors

The newly formed Maine Township commission for senior citizens will start off its activity program with a bingo party at 7 p.m., Monday, Aug. 4, Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8300 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines. Prizes will be awarded to game winners, and refreshments will be served. Persons planning to attend are asked to contact the commission at 297-2510 or 827-7503, so it can plan refreshments. Anyone over 62 living in Maine Township is eligible to attend.

Serving on the commission are: Ferd Arndt, president; Margaret Moehling, vice president; Beatrice Balla, secretary; Howard Nelson, publicity; and directors Robert Balla, Olga Renner, Ann Finland and Ida Groehn. Upcoming plans include trips, parties, entertainment, and meals on wheels for shut-ins.

Senior citizen needs furniture

One resident of Henrich House, the city's new senior citizens apartment building, needs help.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said the resident, a 77-year-old woman, is about to move into the building but does not have any furniture or household items.

"She has been living in a furnished apartment while waiting for the apartment building to be finished," Mrs. Rohrbach said. She noted the cost of living in the furnished unit has depleted most of the woman's savings, so now she does not have enough money to furnish her new apartment.

"I am sure that people around town probably have an old sofa or bed or table stuck away in the garage or attic that they might be willing to give up to help this person out," she added.

"We are not looking for money or new items, just basic furnishings and other household items," Mrs. Rohrbach said.

Persons who wish to donate can contact Mrs. Rohrbach at the city clerk's office, 297-1200.

West Park winners

Arin wrestling contests, ping-pong doubles matches and a ping-pong tournament were held at West Park last week.

Orchard Place challenged West Park and after a heated ping-pong match the Orchard Place victors carried the traveling trophy home with them.

Winners in the ping-pong doubles matches were: Jeff Berggren and Don Smith, first place; Ed Peplowski and Tom Smith, second place; and Maria Kiraly and Michell LaVoie, third place.

Taking first place in the boy's arm wrestling competition was Ed Peplowski; Jeff Maxwell took second; Paul Kiraly took third; Jeff Berggren took fourth; Tom Derken took fifth and Greg Bergner took sixth place.

Maria Kiraly placed first in the girls' arm wrestling contest; Jennifer Brown, second; Judy Brown, third; Tricia Kiraly, fourth; Bridget Brown, fifth; and Justin Brown, sixth place.

Poklacki to get school board post

Erwin Poklacki will be appointed to the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night. Poklacki will fill the board vacancy created by the resignation of Gerald Smiley last Monday. He will serve the rest of Smiley's one-year term that expires in April. Smiley resigned because his business responsibilities would prevent him from attending board meetings. The board during a work session Thursday night agreed that Poklacki would be appointed to the board. The board must take final action on the appointment at a board meeting Monday at 7:15 p.m. at the administration center.

POKLACKI, 1223 S. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights, served on the board from 1971-74. He currently is president of the Dist. 59 School Community Council and has served on various district committees.

He decided not to seek reelection when his term expired for personal reasons. Poklacki is a chemist at Borg-Warner Research Center in Des Plaines and has four children.

In selecting Poklacki, the board members said they were seeking someone with experience because of decisions that must be made within the coming weeks.

"He can come on the board as a fully active member immediately," said board member Avis Wold.

THE BOARD MUST decide whether to hold a tax rate referendum this fall with the district facing a $2.5 million deficit for the 1975-76 school year.

If a referendum is held and fails, the board must decide whether it will extend its current borrowing policies or drastically cut programs.

Other candidates considered by the board were Donald Curtis McKim, 159 W. Brantwood Ave., Elk Grove Village, and Sue Evenwel, 95 E. Shelly Rd., Elk Grove Village. McKim was defeated in the April board election when he ran for a three-year term. Mrs. Evenwel has been a volunteer worker in the district for the past two years.

Alternative to area plan

Dist. 59 slates deaf ed class

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will offer an academic program to deaf children in the district as an alternative to the area-wide program offered at Kensington School, Arlington Heights.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said Thursday he met with parents to discuss alternative programs. "The board is committed to try and work something out that's best for the children and parents in Dist. 59. We listed several possibilities for them, mainly the establishment of a self-contained classroom," he said.

The Northwest Suburban Special Education board Wednesday night voted to keep the area-wide deaf education program at Kensington after several months of parent requests to move the program.

AT LEAST SEVEN of the 18 families with children at Kensington threatened to remove their children from the program if it was not moved.

Bardwell said five or six Dist. 59 families have requested placement in the Dist. 59 program. Disgruntled parents from other districts are "a problem we can't deal with. They will have to take action with their own districts," he said.

Bardwell said he was disappointed with the NSSEO vote. Dist. 59 officials requested that the NSSEO board consider moving the entire deaf program to a Dist. 59 school.

"Our motives were very sincere. Much of education is a question of attitudes and values. I think the program did need a fresh start in a new place," he said.

BARDWELL SAID setting up a single classroom in the district would cost $20,000.

"We budgeted to cover the possibility of taking over the whole deaf education program," he said. "We are estimating now an initial cost of $20,000 with most of that being reimbursed to us by the state."

Bardwell said the district will not have to pay tuition of about $2,300 per student to NSSEO and "in the long range it will balance out."

Bardwell said parents also discussed having their children attend Kensington half-time and attend a Dist. 59 program half-time or using interpreters in a regular classroom. Setting up a single classroom seemed to be the most viable alternative, he said.

The Dist. 59 board is expected to act on an alternative program at its Aug. 18 meeting.

Accused robber's case to grand jury

A Des Plaines man was bound over to the grand jury this week in connection with a Sept. 4, 1974 armed robbery at a Mount Prospect gas station.

Sheldon M. Jaffe, 34, of 421 Norman Ct., appeared Wednesday in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court. He is accused of taking $495 during the incident at what was then a Bulko gas station, Busse Road and Dempster Street.

At the time of his arrest, Jaffe also was charged with the robbery of Arlen's Pharmacy, 1717 E. Central Rd., Arlington Heights, Sept. 3, 1974, and an Aug. 31, 1974 robbery at a 7-Eleven Store, Golf and Busse roads, Wheeling Township. He was arrested Sept. 5, 1974 by Mount Prospect police responding to a report of a suspicious vehicle near the 7-Eleven Store.

Jaffe already has been indicted for the other two robberies and is awaiting trial.

WHILE NEGOTIATIONS continue for the purchase of the Elk Grove Mobile Home site, workers are inching closer to the trailers. Eventually the area around the trailer park will become a water retention basin.

State officials said this week they will build a levee around the park so work can continue on the project, which is part of $33 million Upper Salt Creek Improvement program.

A place for kids to meet

Cedar House teen center popular

by MARILYN McDONALD

It's not all things to all teenagers, but then Elk Grove's Cedar House Teen Program doesn't try to be. It's just a place for kids to meet their friends, have a hamburger, and play table tennis or pool. And in a world of organized everything, it's a pretty popular place.

Cedar House, in the Lions Park Community Center, Elk Grove Village, is open to young people ages 13 to 18 Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. and Fridays from 7 to 11 p.m. every week of the year. It is funded and supervised by the Elk Grove Park District, but their intrusion into the program is minimal. All they ask is that patrons not drink, use drugs or profane language.

The program's structure is very loose. Kids have identification cards verifying their ages, and may come and go as they please. Three park supervisors are on duty each evening, but their main job is to man the concession area and set up the table games. If some of the teen-agers mention they'd like to have a dance or other organized event, the supervisory staff sets up the activity.

MARIAN NOEHRE, supervisor of the Cedar House program, has teen-agers of her own at home. She's been in charge of the program for two years.

"I love the kids. I enjoy them so much. They're really worthwhile people," she said. "Maybe I'm a silly adult, but I'm really impressed with them."

Mrs. Noehre and her three assistants say they have very few problems with the several hundred teenagers who use the center.

"We have no problems, because we have a certain set of rules," Mr. Noehre said. "I put the responsibility on the kids themselves. If they decide to break them, that's their choice. That way, they know that if they get kicked out, it's their fault."

When the park district's teen program began in October 1968, what was then known as the Elk Grove Village Teen Center was open seven days a week. Some 900 teenagers used the center in its early days, but by the end of the first year, both the hours of operation and attendance had dropped.

"IT WAS JUST new at first," said Richard Ludovissy, the center's first director, now superintendent of recreation for the park district. "Seven days a week was just too much. Kids in that age group constantly have to have something new. The teen center just got a little old," he said.

The center also had a brief bout with public opinion in the early 1970s.

Some teenagers and their parents charged the center had been taken over by "greasers," and many other teenagers were afraid to go to the center. Park officials finally closed the program from November 1970 to May 1971.

"I think adults contributed a lot to the downfall of the center because when they heard about the greasers, they forbid their children to attend the center," Ludovissy said.

The teen program was reorganized in 1971 with the support of local church, police, community service, high school and park district backing. Renamed the Cedar House Teen Program, the center was open only on Friday nights, but a Wednesday night session was added as attendance picked up.

THE CENTER has not increased from a two-night-per-week schedule because there are now many other community activities available to Elk Grove youth. Ludovissy said that when the teen center first opened, there was little else for teenagers to do in the new community of Elk Grove Village. Harper College used the evenings, so no high school clubs or activities were offered. As the community began to grow, other agencies

Cop is not charged in shooting incident

by JILL BETTNER

The State's Attorney's office will not file criminal charges against Elk Grove Village Patrolman William Jaworski in the April 5 shooting of Timothy Engelson, 18, of Mount Prospect.

David Cuprison, a spokesman for the State's Attorney's office, Thursday said the decision stems from testimony by a witness to the incident.

"The decision is based on a sworn statement by an independent witness who was not involved in the incident," Cuprison said. "He corroborated much of Jaworski's story."

The patrolman shot and seriously wounded Engelson after a predawn scuffle with the youth and five companions. Engelson, along with the other teen-agers involved in the incident, has been charged with a number of traffic and curfew violations.

Elk Grove Village Police Chief Harry Jenkins said he had no comment on the state's attorney's decision not to prosecute Jaworski.

The patrolman has been relieved of his duty since the incident and continues to receive full pay. If he returns to work and whether the village's police and fire commission takes action against Jaworski is up to Village Atty. Edward Hofert, Jenkins said.

"I'm not prepared to make any recommendations yet, although I'm glad to receive the news about the state's attorney's decision," Hofert said. "I have not yet completed my own investigation."

"This is good news. I'm very, very happy, needless to say," Jaworski said.

The mother of the wounded youth declined to comment further because of her son's $1 million damage suit against Jaworski that is pending.

Cuprison said the state's attorney's finding will have no bearing on the suit that was filed in Circuit Court shortly after the incident.

The suit charges Jaworski with battery, neglect, and willful and wanton misconduct. It also charges that the patrolman deprived Engelson of his civil rights under the U.S. Constitution.

Parks cut fees for kids outside boundaries

Elk Grove Park officials Thursday night reduced program fees for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 students who live in the village but outside park district boundaries.

The commissioners agreed to begin charging all Dist. 59 students' resident rates for park activities conducted in the schools.

Children who live outside the park district, however, will continue to pay nonresident fees to park district pools.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell requested the change in park policy to accommodate about 250 elementary students who live in the Oasis Trailer Park, the trailer park adjacent to the Ned Brown Forest Preserve, and the Ropolo subdivision in unincorporated Elk Grove Twp.

THE PARK BOARD rejected a recommendation from Recreation Supt.

Richard Ludovissy to allow the out-of-district children to pay resident fees for all park activities, including pool programs.

"I've always taken the stand that if you live in and pay taxes to the Elk Grove Park District you should have first crack at the facilities," said Edward Hauser, park board president.

The commissioners agreed, however, that the children should be able to participate in park programs with their classmates for the same fees, because the youngsters' parents pay local school taxes.

Ludovissy estimated that 90 percent of all park activities are conducted in Dist. 59 schools.

One resident of Henrich House, the city's new senior citizens apartment building, needs help.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said the resident, a 77-year-old woman, is about to move into the building but does not have any furniture or household items.

"She has been living in a furnished apartment while waiting for the apartment building to be finished," Mrs. Rohrbach said. She noted the cost of living in the furnished unit has depleted most of the woman's savings, so now she does not have enough money to furnish her new apartment.

"I am sure that people around town probably have an old sofa or bed or table stuck away in the garage or attic that they might be willing to give up to help this person out," she added.

"We are not looking for money or new items, just basic furnishings and other household items," Mrs. Rohrbach said.

Persons who wish to donate can contact Mrs. Rohrbach at the city clerk's office, 297-1200.

'Stolen' airplane back at Palwaukee

The "stolen" Cessna airplane was back in its proper place Thursday at Palwaukee Airport, south of Wheeling, although no arrests were made in the reported piloting of the craft.

The $26,000 plane owned by Leo Brigran, 39, of 2836 N. Avers, Chicago, reportedly was stolen from Palwaukee Tuesday night. The plane is back at the airport, Esther Noffke, an administrative assistant at Palwaukee, said.

An FBI spokesman Thursday said no arrests have been made in connection with the alleged theft. Brigran could not be reached for comment Thursday to see if he still plans to press charges.

Authorities have said the person who took the plane — and is still unnamed — is a friend of Brigran's and has been permitted to use the plane in the past. Brigran told Sheriff's police Tuesday that he had not given anyone the authority to fly the plane that night.

began to provide youth programs.

"The teen program has evolved with the park district. Now we offer so many more activities," said Ludovissy.

The Cedar House program no longer tries to offer a full week of programmed activity, structured teen council leadership or fundraising activities as before. Instead, the program provides "just a place to hang out," in the words of Bill Hughes, recreation program supervisor, and former Cedar House supervisor.

On a recent Wednesday night, nearly 50 teenagers had gathered at the center by 8 p.m. Boys and girls, most of them younger teenagers talked and smoked or played one of the table games set up in the spacious community center. Several played the latest popular songs on the juke box while others ordered french fries and hamburgers from the concession area.

DAN YOHE and Jerry Eric, both 13, were waiting for a pool table. Jerry, 701 Love St., has been to the center just a few times, but Dan, 620 Tonne rd., said he comes quite often.

Most kids come because it gives them something to do," said Jerry. "Most kids don't have pool tables or ping pong tables at home," he said.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:18 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

2 Hanover officials nabbed

Trio charged in abduction

Three men, including two Hanover Park public works employees, were arrested Thursday in Schaumburg Township for the abduction of an alleged drug dealer, police said.

Authorities said the incident appeared to be of a vigilante nature: the three men apparently attempted to take the man into custody without police powers.

Charged with unlawful restraint and possession of a controlled substance were Edward J. Resner, of the village building department; Roger A. Scott, of the village engineering department; and Keith O. Brown.

The three were arrested about 2:35 a.m. by a Roselle patrolman after they allegedly abducted James J. Vandini, whom they said sold them drugs, said Assistant State's Atty. Terry Sullivan.

Vandini was charged with possession of a controlled substance after authorities found on him a plastic bag containing 90 white pills believed to be amphetamines, Sullivan said.

THE THREE allegedly were approached by Vandini for a drug sale while at the Chill Pub restaurant, Nerge and Roselle roads, authorities reported. They left the restaurant, and while in the parking lot reportedly were sold 75 pills, Sullivan said. One of the trio allegedly flashed a badge believed to be a building inspector's badge and told Vandini he was under arrest, according to reports.

At that time, patrolman George Daubs was driving past the parking lot and saw three men "frisking" a man, but ignored the situation because he thought it was an undercover drug arrest, Sullivan said.

But Daubs became suspicious when he saw no handcuffs were placed on the suspect and followed the four men when they drove off, Sullivan reported.

Daubs stopped the two cars at Plum Grove and Nerge roads when he clocked one of the vehicles traveling at 56 m.p.h. in a 45 m.p.h. zone, authorities said.

VANDINI TOLD Daubs he thought the three men were policemen, but when Daubs searched the trio, he did not find weapons and radioed for assistance, authorities said.

One of the three reportedly told Daubs no police were summoned because the court system was ineffective and that Vandini would be on the street once arrested. Authorities said they did not know what the men planned to do with Vandini.

The drug charge against the three stemmed from the bag of 75 pills found in one of the cars. Both vehicles were village cars and were impounded by authorities.

Bond for Vandini was set at $1,000 and at $2,000 each for Resner, Scott and Brown.

Dist. 59 OKs deaf ed class as 'alternative'

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will offer an academic program to deaf children in the district as an alternative to the arewide program offered at Kensington School, Arlington Heights.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said Thursday he met with parents to discuss alternative programs. "The board is committed to try and work something out that's best for the children and parents in Dist. 59. We listed several possibilities for them, mainly the establishment of a self-contained classroom," he said.

The Northwest Suburban Special Education board Wednesday night voted to keep the arewide deaf education program at Kensington after several months of parent requests to move the program.

AT LEAST SEVEN of the 18 families with children at Kensington threatened to remove their children from the program if it was not moved.

Bardwell said five or six Dist. 59 families have requested placement in the Dist. 59 program. Disgruntled parents from other districts are "a problem we can't deal with. They will have to take action with their own districts," he said.

Bardwell said he was disappointed with the NSSEO vote. Dist. 59 officials requested that the NSSEO board consider moving the entire deaf program to a Dist. 59 school.

"Our motives were very sincere. Much of education is a question of attitudes and values. I think the program did need a fresh start in a new place," he said.

BARDWELL SAID setting up a single classroom in the district would cost $20,000.

"We budgeted to cover the possibility of taking over the whole deaf education program," he said. "We are estimating now an initial cost of $20,000 with most of that being reimbursed to us by the state."

Bardwell said the district will not have to pay tuition of about $2,300 per student to NSSEO and "in the long range it will balance out."

Bardwell said parents also discussed having their children attend Kensington half-time and attend a Dist. 59 program half-time or using interpreters in a regular classroom. Setting up a single classroom seemed to be the most viable alternative, he said.

The Dist. 59 board is expected to act on an alternative program at its Aug. 18 meeting.

Speeding crackdown cuts S-curve wrecks

The number of traffic accidents along the Ill. Rte. 83 S-curve in Mount Prospect is "definitely down" since police increased enforcement of the 25 m.p.h. speed limit 13 months ago, Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said.

The number of arrests for speeding also is up, averaging 68 per month for the past three months, police statistics show.

"We had only one accident on the S-curve during April, May and June this year," Doney said Thursday.

This compares with a fatal accident in May 1974 and five accidents without injuries the following month. The S-curve stretches from Milburn Avenue to Shabonee Trail.

THE FATAL accident last year became the motivating force behind a meeting of area residents with Doney and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley. A crackdown on speeders resulted.

STATISTICS FOR April through June this year show 198 speeding tickets were issued on the S-curve. There were 126 tickets issued in April, 43 in May and 29 in June. Doney said the number of tickets should increase this month because a patrolman recently was assigned the search for speeders and overweight trucks as his main duties.

The largest number of tickets during the three months were issued to drivers traveling between 36 m.p.h. and 40 m.p.h. in the 25 m.p.h. zone (110) and those traveling between 41 m.p.h. and 45 m.p.h. (80). There were 90 tickets issued to northbound drivers, 74 to southbound, 13 to eastbound and 21 to westbound. Morning speed-received 69 of the tickets.

NONRESIDENTS of the village received 145 tickets, with 53 for village residents.

"The officers are enforcing the S-curve speed limit as much as possible in addition to their other duties," Doney said. "I think that due to the stepped-up enforcement the number of violations has decreased. We will continue to enforce the speed limit at this location."

Most of the tickets have stood up in court. Doney said that for the three months, 144 of the speeding tickets have come up in court. There were 127 convictions and 17 dismissals. Another 39 cases have been continued and 15 have not been heard.

Villas pond is a ducky place to live

There are plenty of crackers for the quackers

Life is simply ducky for some 50 wild and domestic waterfowl residing at the Lakeside Villas townhouse complex in Wheeling.

In exchange for the esthetic value they provide, the Brown mallards and white ducks are treated like pets, getting special considerations. They live in a manmade pond and are fed by homeowners and sheltered during bad weather.

"We give them the run of the place," says Irv Zabrin, salesman at the development whose office ledge recently protected 13 eggs during the hatching process. "They get special treatment."

Zabrin says neighbors "watch them carefully. They don't run over them."

When they decide to, the birds flaunt their get-up-and-go, waddling quickly and smartly in regimented fashion across Bridgeview Court north of Hinckley Road, tying up whatever traffic there might be.

Zabrin, who admits he isn't an expert on life-styles of the waterfowl, figures they want to do more than just get on the other side of the road for getting-on-the-other-side-of-the-road's sake. They go "whenever they decide there's something better on the other side." How they sense this, he doesn't know, but he adds if you offer them a piece of bread they'll follow you anywhere.

The Mallards stick around during the summer months and stay just long enough to watch the broods hatch. Then they are on their way. "Where they go I don't know," says Zabrin. "They just come back in summer."

Each brood stays together as one unit. That's why they follow one another wherever they go.

"Whenever they go for a walk or a swim they are always led by the mother duck," Zabrin says. "In the rear, someplace, is the father."

Schools vs. architects trial near

A lawsuit filed by Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 against its former architects finally may come to trial after being bogged down in the courts for 3 1/2 years.

In January 1971, the Dist. 54 board directed its attorney to file suit against Del Bianco and Associates, architects, and Stahl Construction Co., contractors of Robert Frost Junior High School, 320 Wise Rd., Schaumburg.

THE DISTRICT'S trial lawyer, Edward Purcell, said the suit charges that "the building was not properly designed and the design caused condensation to get into certain parts of the building from the top and work its way down." This caused parts of the wall and windows to "buckle" and "weaken the entire structure," Purcell said Thursday. The suit also charges that the mortar used for the school was "not the proper type to be used in this climate," he said.

Purcell said the school began to fall apart almost immediately after it was built in 1964, and the school district hired another contractor to repair it because the building was "becoming structurally unsound."

Most damage occurred in the front of the building.

The suit asks $60,000 for breach of contract plus an assessment for punitive damages.

PURCELL SAID the case has been continued 16 times in the last 14 months, 12 times by the defendants. It comes before an assignment judge in Circuit Court Sept. 8. Purcell said he hopes the case will be assigned to a trial judge and that a decision will be reached before the end of the year.

"I'm sick of going over and getting this thing continued," Purcell said. He said he has had to subpoena witnesses four times.

"These parties have been sued before," said Purcell, but a case against them never has been successful. "It's hard to prove an architectural malpractice case."

Officials from Del Bianco and Associates, now called Del Bianco, Donatoni and Schwartz, could not be reached for comment Thursday. Although the firm no longer constructs schools for Dist. 54, it has designed several schools for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

and seniors, but now the kids are pretty much younger," said Dan.

Both boys agreed that teenagers who use the center are pretty much left to themselves. "Most kids came because they don't bother you here," they said.

A group of four sophomore girls at Elk Grove High School, sitting around in a circle just outside the building, said they liked to come to the center to see friends from school over the summer. They said they either visited together or played softball when a game was organized.

The teenagers interviewed said that young people still use the forest preserves, Elk Grove Bowl and Dairy Queen as "hang outs," but included Cedar House as a "good place to hang out."

And that just might be the ultimate compliment.

Poklacki to get school board post

Erwin Poklacki will be appointed to the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night.

Poklacki will fill the board vacancy created by the resignation of Gerald Smiley last Monday. He will serve the rest of Smiley's one-year term that expires in April. Smiley resigned because his business responsibilities would prevent him from attending board meetings.

The board during a work session Thursday night agreed that Poklacki should be appointed to the board. The board must take final action on the appointment at a board meeting Monday at 7:15 p.m. at the administration center.

Erwin Poklacki

POKLACKI, 1223 S. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights, served on the board from 1971-74. He currently is president of the Dist. 59 School Community Council and has served on various district committees.

He decided not to seek reelection when his term expired for personal reasons. Poklacki is a chemist at Borg-Warner Research Center in Des Plaines and has four children.

In selecting Poklacki, the board members said they were seeking someone with experience because of decisions that must be made within the coming weeks.

"He can come on the board as a fully active member immediately," said board member Avis Wold.

THE BOARD MUST decide whether to hold a tax rate referendum this fall with the district facing a $2.5 million deficit for the 1975-76 school year.

If a referendum is held and fails, the board must decide whether it will extend its current borrowing policies or drastically cut programs.

Other candidates considered by the board were Donald Curtis McKim, 159 W. Brantwood Ave., Elk Grove Village, and Sue Evenwel, 95 E. Shelly Rd., Elk Grove Village. McKim was defeated in the April board election when he ran for a three-year term. Mrs. Evenwel has been a volunteer worker in the district for the past two years.

Village insurance rates to increase

A prominent Chicago municipal insurance broker is predicting Elk Grove Village will not be the only area community paying substantially more for insurance next year.

Elk Grove Village trustees this week renewed municipal coverage at a total cost of $106,480. Premiums for general liability, workmen's compensation and auto insurance are up about 40 per cent over last year.

Warren Vandervoort, broker for A. J. Gallagher Co., said other communities who renew municipal coverage during the next six months are likely to face similar hikes in rates.

Besides inflation, one reason for escalating municipal insurance premiums is the vulnerability of communities who are finding themselves faced with an increasing number of lawsuits, Vandervoort said.

"MUNICIPAL insurance is a very volatile area. There are a substantial number of claims being brought and we're getting larger and larger suits," he said. "Many suits are costing up to $100,000 just to defend."

Only four or five insurance companies across the country are willing to issue municipal insurance, Vandervoort said, because of the risks.

Noted that one of those companies, Pacific Indemnity Co., recently cancelled its municipal coverage on the communities of Naperville, Tinley Park and Elmhurst.

"The situation in Elk Grove Village is not unique," Vandervoort said. "Exposure to lawsuits has increased since the civil rights legislation was passed several years ago. Insurance carriers are demanding larger premiums to cover that exposure."

TWO CIVIL RIGHTS cases are pending against the village over the death last year of Jean Pettee and the April 5 shooting of Timothy Engelson.

A resident of unincorporated Elk Grove Township, Mrs. Pettee died after Elk Grove Village Fire Dept. ambulances dispatched to her home were recalled because the family had not paid an ambulance fee.

Engelson, 18, of Mount Prospect, was shot and seriously wounded by Elk Grove Village Patrolman William Jaworski after Jaworski stopped the youth for a traffic violation.

Vandervoort said although insurance rates for municipal coverage are currently going up, there is a great deal of fluctuation in premiums.

"Two years ago everybody was engaging in competitive proposals on municipal insurance because they were making money," he said. "But towns who have renewed their insurance in the past three or four months or those whose anniversary date will come up in the next six months or so will probably be in the same situation as Elk Grove."

Alleged robber's case sent before grand jury

A Des Plaines man was bound over to the grand jury this week in connection with a Sept. 4, 1974 armed robbery at a Mount Prospect gas station.

Sheldon M. Jaffe, 34, of 421 Norman Ct., appeared Wednesday in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court. He is accused of taking $495 during the incident at what was then a Bulko gas station, Busse Road and Dempster Street.

None hurt in $40,000 Prospect house fire

Five persons escaped injury when a fire that did $40,000 damage broke out Thursday afternoon in a bedroom of a house at 1701 Bonita Dr., Mount Prospect.

Jo Ellen Schalk, who lives in the home, her son and three of her son's friends escaped the one-story home. A family dog also was evacuated.

The blaze ignited when a spark from an overloaded window air-conditioning unit set a bookcase on fire, said Lt. Donald Barra of the Mount Prospect Fire Dept.

Most of the damage to the ranch-style home was structural, Barra said. The flames worked their way up to the inside roof although they were mostly confined to the west bedroom area. Bedroom furnishings were ruined, and thick smoke spread through the house, also causing extensive damage, he said.

FIREFIGHTERS fought the flames for about two hours but the blaze was brought under control about 10 minutes after crews arrived, Barra said.

One of the youths, Steve Martin, 17, of 1820 Bonita, said he, the Schalk's son Michael, 16, and two of their friends were in the house's attached garage about 4:30 p.m.

He said a neighbor came over and told them she noticed smoke coming from the bedroom window. The four ran into the house and alerted Mrs. Schalk, who was watching television, unaware of the fire. The neighbor called the fire department.

By the time the youths and Mrs. Schalk got outside, the bedroom window was cracking and the fire and flame was coming and it just kept going," Martin said.

"I was in the television room," Mrs. Schalk said, "and the dog started jumping, so I got up to let her out and the kids almost knocked me over."

Her husband, Robert Schalk, was not home at the time.

Bus systems for 2 villages

Subscription, dial transit plan urged

A combination of subscription bus service for commuters and a dial-a-ride program was suggested Thursday night by consultants as the recommended public transportation system for Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Peter Stopher of Jack E. Lelsch Associates told members of a joint village transportation committee the proposed subscription service could be expected to attract at least 316 riders. The dial-a-ride program is expected to begin with at least 306 riders.

The Evanston consulting firm is completing a $28,000 state and federally funded transportation and public needs study for the two villages.

Stopher said the subscription program would use a number of 12-to 18-passenger vans to pick up riders going to railroad stations in Roselle, Palatine and Arlington Park. Service, he said, must be arranged at least 24 hours in advance with vans collecting passengers at the corner nearest their houses. He estimated the average cost at 50 cents per ride.

THE DIAL-A-RIDE program, Stopher said, would be available during rush hours although commuters would be encouraged to use subscription service.

He said the cost would be about $1 per ride with service provided in four-to six-passenger vans or taxis.

Although fixed route service to train stations was studied, Stopher said this mode is not recommended because of "inflexibility in the cost of purchasing much larger buses."

RONALD PFEFFER of the consulting firm estimated the cost of starting the combined system at approximately $965,000. If an 80 per cent federal subsidy and additional state funding is available, Pfeffer said the village's share of the cost would be $67,500.

"But we expect success which would bring immediate pressure to expand the system and buy more vehicles," he said.

HE ESTIMATED the annual operating cost of the system at about $2.4 million, suggesting a federal subsidy may be available to make up for losses.

CONSULTANTS URGED the committee to consider forming a public transportation agency to manage the system.

"The agency would act as broker or coordinator of public transportation systems in the area," Pfeffer said, adding it would be up to the village to organize the agency because "as consultants that is outside of our area of expertise."

REPLYING TO A question asked by Hoffman Estates Trustee Melvin Timmons, Pfeffer said the proposed system would complement bus service from Elgin to O'Hare Airport.

"I think it would also encourage local transportation companies to bid for at least a share of the business," he said. Pfeffer suggested the committee evaluate his proposal and asked the consultants be allowed to further define the combined system and begin designing routes.

Hospital won't seek U.S. mortgage

Developers of the planned Hoffman Estates Community Hospital have decided to drop a request for federally insured mortgage money to build the facility.

American Medicorp Inc. will withdraw its application for Federal Housing Administration (FHA) funds and will seek conventional mortgage loans instead, spokesman Wayne A. Lampman, announced Thursday. Lampman said the decision was reached because officials decided FHA financing would take too long to secure if it is available to the hospital at all.

LAMPMAN, THE firm's director of development, added the decision will in no way interfere with plans to build the 312-bed hospital on 23 acres on Barrington between Golf and Higgins roads.

Groundbreaking still is planned for late fall, he said. The hospital could be ready by late 1976, hospital spokesmen have said.

"We have definitely decided against FHA mortgaging and will be formally making that notification," Lampman said. "We have just determined that FHA financing is not practical and we will go for conventional mortgaging."

"This by no means means that we are abandoning the project," he added. "Conventional mortgage terms are not as good as FHA, but we don't foresee any problems."

THERE HAD been indications that the firm's request could be in competition with Northwest Community Hospital's proposal for an emergency-care center in the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg area.

A Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission official said in April if the Hoffman Estates hospital secured FHA financing "chances that the Northwest (Community) project will receive approval are slim." But the Arlington Heights hospital's request apparently had the same effect on American Medicorp's application.

Lampman hinted Northwest Community's plans played a role in the American Medicorp decision.

"The situation as it relates to FHA demands that certain state documents (defining bed needs in an area) be used, and they did not reflect the true state of things," he said.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:18 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and man can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as

"I'm sick of going over and getting this thing continued," Purcell said. He said he has had to subpoena witnesses four times.

"These parties have been sued before," said Purcell, but a case against them never has been successful. "It's hard to prove an architectural malpractice case."

Officials from Del Bianco and Associates, now called Del Bianco, Donatoni and Schwartz, could not be reached for comment Thursday. Although the firm no longer constructs schools for Dist. 54, it has designed several schools for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Village board wrapup

Restaurant gets liquor license

A full-service liquor license has been issued to Domenico Pappada, who plans to open an Italian restaurant at 23 E. Golf Rd. Pappada said the restaurant, Domenico Trattoria, will be open daily from 8 a.m. to midnight and will be equipped with only a service bar since all beverages will be served to patrons seated at tables.

Circus revenue to stay in village

Proceeds from Schaumburg's Lions Club Aug. 18 presentation of Carson and Barnes Circus have been earmarked for a community project, a club spokesman said.

Dale Loeffler told village officials the circus will be staged at Robert O. Atcher Park, Springinsguth Road with performances at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Profits from last year's circus, originally pledged to the Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North fund, have been retained by the club and also will be turned over to the selected project, Loeffler said.

He explained that the club decided to hold on to the funds when plans for the Schaumburg branch hospital were cancelled.

Arts, crafts fair Sept. 13

The Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates chapter of the American Business and Professional Women's Assn. was given conditional approval by the village this week to hold a Sept. 13 arts and crafts fair.

The event is being planned on property surrounding the Koe Real Estate office on Schaumburg Road near Roselle Road.

Schaumburg trustees questioned the amount of available parking space at the fair site, advising Village Mgr. John E. Coste to invite a representative of the association to attend the Aug. 12 village board meeting.

Officers serve on a council which coordinates activities of the individual clubs. Activities include campouts, swimming, sleep-ins, a soap box derby, carnival and other events.

Organization of clubs will begin in September. Interested persons are invited to call Twinbrook YMCA, 882-7250, for information.

Rotary goals, budget to be presented

Schaumburg Rotary Club's goals, calendar and budget for the coming year will be presented to Dr. Wendall Robelstad, governor of Rotary District 644 at the Aug. 15 club meeting.

As governor, Dr. Robelstad, who took office July 1, will review these plans and assist Schaumburg Rotary in its activities for the coming year. It is his responsibility to work with the 44 Rotary Clubs in the district.

Dr. Robelstad was president of the Elgin Rotary Club in 1969 and is the first governor from Elgin in the club's 54 year history.

Last month, Schaumburg Rotary installed John Lucas as president. Other new officers include Darrel Moon, president-elect, Glen Short, secretary and Dr. Jack Corsten, treasurer. The past president is Rev. John Sternberg, pastor of St. Peter Lutheran Church.

Schaumburg Rotary will continue its pledge to support major projects of Twinbrook YMCA, including a September pancake breakfast and a November dinner dance, a spokesman said.

Major street work starts in 3 weeks

An extensive street repair program will begin in Rolling Meadows within the next three weeks.

Consulting City Engineer James Muldowney Thursday said repair work will begin as soon as contracts are signed with Paveway Construction, Inc. He said the work should be completed within five to six weeks.

The Rolling Meadows City Council approved a bid totaling $109,904 for repair work on 35 city streets at its Tuesday night meeting. The construction company also was awarded a $9,460 contract to repave the city hall parking lot despite objections of five aldermen.

FIVE — Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st; William D. Ahrens, 2nd; Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd; James A. Huddleston, 4th; and Kenneth W. Retzke, 5th — voted against repaving the parking lot, because of the city's financial condition.

City Treasurer Robert B. Cole has said the city will have a low cash supply until at least November.

Ahrens said he would prefer to delay repaving the parking lot until after the city hires five firemen. Cole told the city council Tuesday that there would not be enough money to hire new firemen until December.

The street repair program, a 37 percent reduction from original plans, includes alteration of some curbs and gutters and patching and resurfacing of streets. No major street construction is involved.

MULDOWNEY SAID repair work on the individual streets should be completed in one or two days. City workers will personally notify homeowners just before work begins, he said.

Streets scheduled for repair include:

- Owl Lane from Kirchoff Road to Sigwalt Street, curb and gutter repair and resurfacing of street.
- Flicker Lane from Sigwalt Street to Campbell Street, curb and gutter repair and resurfacing.
- Rohlfing Road and Emerson Avenue, resurfacing.

• Theda Lane from Fremont Street to cul de sac, resurfacing.

• California Avenue from Lincoln Avenue to the new extension, resurfacing.

• Central Road and Brookmeade Drive intersection, curb and gutter repair and patching and resurfacing.

• Martin Lane and Pheasant Drive intersection, curb and gutter repair and resurfacing.

• 3100 Hawk Lane west to Pheasant Drive, curb and gutter repair and resurfacing.

• Grouse Lane from Jay Lane to Bluebird Lane, curb and gutter repair and resurfacing.

• Thorntree Lane, curb and gutter repair.

• Hawk Lane and Jay Lane, curb and gutter repair.

• Linden Street and Birch Lane intersection, resurfacing of street.

• Starling Lane from Meadow Drive to Pheasant Drive, curb and gutter repair and removal and replacement of sidewalk.

Condo owners ask free trash service

Residents of a Rolling Meadows condominium apartment complex have asked city officials to provide free garbage service to their development.

Three members of the Three Fountains on the Lake Condominium Assn. — George Ross, Steven Forsyth and Leo Newton — told aldermen this week their development is entitled to the free service the same as other homeowners in Rolling Meadows.

"There is a basic misunderstanding by people living in single-family homes toward people living in condominiums," Forsyth told the five aldermen on the committee.

"WE PAY THREE times the taxes you people pay. We're paying on three levels for the same piece of land," he said, protesting the city's practice of charging condominium owners for garbage collection while providing free service to single-family homeowners.

"We feel we've been slighted all along the line," said Forsyth, demanding to know what Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd, pays for collection of garbage from his home. Ahrens conceded he does not pay a collection fee.

"I pay taxes too," said Forsyth. "What's the difference between me and you?" he asked.

CITY ATTY. Donald M. Rose has advised the city council it is not obligated to provide free service to the condominium owners because they deposit garbage in a large container, which requires equipment not needed for private home collection. The association pays $250 per month for garbage service.

FORSYTH LATER said the association is willing to pay for the special equipment but does not believe the fee is justified on a permanent basis. He said the fee should be eliminated as the equipment cost is reimbursed.

Forsyth also said a memorandum written to the committee July 16 by Public Works Director John Hennessy stated the condominium fee is sufficient to equal collection costs "plus realize a very small margin." Forsyth questioned why the condominium residents should provide a profit to the city.

Hennessy's memo also said commercial collection fees include a "small margin," and described the prices as "more than competitive with private companies."

The association representatives had questioned the fees in a July 2 letter to the committee. The letter also suggested the condominium buildings might fail to meet four specific areas of building codes which existed when the structures were built and asked for an explanation of city policy on enforcing fire lanes in private drives.

MEMORANDA FROM building department staff and City Engineer James Muldowney state the buildings conform to codes that applied during their construction, although some of the codes have since been made more stringent.

City not liable for flood damages

Rolling Meadows officials said they won a bureaucratic victory over the State of Illinois this week in limiting city liability for potential damages from a state flood control project.

The state sent the city an agreement proposal which would have made Rolling Meadows liable for any damages within city limits resulting from the damming of a 470-acre recreation lake in Ned Brown Forest Preserve. The lake is part of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood-control project.

City Engineer James Muldowney advised the city not to sign the agreement. He said it appeared the project could increase flooding by reducing Salt Creek's capacity to accept storm drainage from city sewers.

The council refused to sign the document and City Atty. Donald M. Rose drew up a new agreement, limiting city responsibility to a low-probability flooding situation. The state accepted the new version, Muldowney said. The council then adopted the agreement.

Ald. John T. Rock, 3rd, said it was a surprise to the city that "15 guys" in state offices in Springfield approved the rewritten agreement without protest.

Muldowney told the council's public works committee this week he thinks the potential for damage is remote. The recreation lake and dam probably will decrease flood levels, he said.

A TRIO OF swimmers run through a routine during Park District swim show. The show will be Aug. 16 a practice session for the annual Rolling Meadows and 17 at the Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Home items for refugees sought by St. Colette's

St. Colette's Church, 3900 Meadow Dr., is sponsoring a kitchen and household shower for Vietnamese families newly arrived in the Chicago area.

Sister JoAnn, an organizer of the drive, said the church eventually hopes to sponsor two or three of the families. She said the Vietnamese families will probably live in the city because of the high cost of housing in the suburbs.

Kitchen items needed by the families include chopsticks, soup spoons, bowls (large and small for soup and rice), ladles, knives and cutting boards, frying pans, large pots, rice cooker or large pot with cover, cups, dishes and glasses.

Household items needed include bed linens, sheets, pillow cases, blankets (small sized beds), pillows, (preferably long round, bolster type pillows), kitchen and bathroom towels and washcloths, alarm clocks and all varieties of soap products.

Small size clothing also is needed for men and children. Women wear slacks with long tunic tops.

Sister JoAnn said St. Colette has not been assigned to sponsor any families yet but "we want to be prepared."

"We plan to help them get started no matter where they settle," she said.

Persons interested in contributing to the drive should contact Joyce Muldown at 259-0947 or Jerry Squire at 397-4151. For further information, call Sister JoAnn at 255-9222.

Meadow Edge seeks 'land swap'

A special zoning commission was appointed this week to review a request by Zale Construction Co. for approval of a "land swap" within its Meadow Edge development and city acceptance of formerly private streets within the Rolling Meadows subdivision.

Zale is preparing to enter its third development stage at Old Plum Grove Road north of Plum Grove Junior High School, constructing 150 single-family homes on lots averaging 5,800 square feet. Each of the homes will touch the property lines on two sides of its lot. The unit location is known as zero lot line development.

The development includes 225 townhouses, which are under construction but make up the first two development phases. Ed Zale, president, said his firm wishes to relocate some of the individual homes into the townhouse area, and bring some of the townhomes to the single-family area, maintaining the same overall density and unit totals of the original plan.

ZALE ALSO wishes to set a new pattern for street ownership in townhouse and zero lot line areas in the city. In most such developments, streets are owned by a homeowners' association, which must pay for any resurfacing or other maintenance and winter snow clearance.

Zale said his firm has built all its streets to conform with city codes and wishes to dedicate them as public roadways. This will avoid a problem 10 or 15 years in the future, when residents of the subdivision would have learned their streets needed costly repairs Zale said. The association probably would seek city acceptance of street ownership and financing for the street care. But if the roads were below city standards the city would find it difficult or impossible to accept ownership of them, Zale said.

The total Meadow Edge development will have an "umbrella" homeowners' association, to which all residents will belong and which will have ownership of such facilities as a lake, swimming pool and recreation building Zale said.

THE TOWNHOUSE residents also will belong to a second association, which will pay for maintenance of building exteriors and common land, said Zale.

The zero lot line area will have a third association, responsible for common land in that section of the subdivision, he said.

The zero lot line homes will have two car garages, part of a total of five parking spaces for each unit and will sell for from $35,000 to $70,000 Zale said. He was asked to document his statement streets will be large enough to accommodate city garbage and fire trucks.

Must county pay to fix Old Wilke? Debate goes on

by NANCY COWGER
The ball bounced back to Cook County this week in the dispute over who is responsible for maintenance of Old Wilke Road.

Charles Jacobs, 2407 Oak Ln., Rolling Meadows, accepted the verdict of Rolling Meadows officials that Cook County is responsible for failure to maintain the road, even though the county denies ownership.

Jacobs has been seeking reimbursement for about a month for two automobile tires ruined when he had to swerve into potholes along the edge of the road to avoid an accident. The mishap occurred between Algonquin and Central roads.

COOK COUNTY tried to rid itself of responsibility a year ago, when it sent Rolling Meadows notice it had abandoned the road and was turning ownership over to the city. City Engineer James Muldowney said. But Muldowney cited a 1969 agreement, reaffirmed in 1973, between the county, the city and Arlington Heights, which borders the east side of Old Wilke.

The agreement stated the county would continue to own and be responsible for the roadway until completion of New Wilke from Kirchoff to Algonquin roads and installation of a cul-de-sac at Kirchoff, Muldowney said.

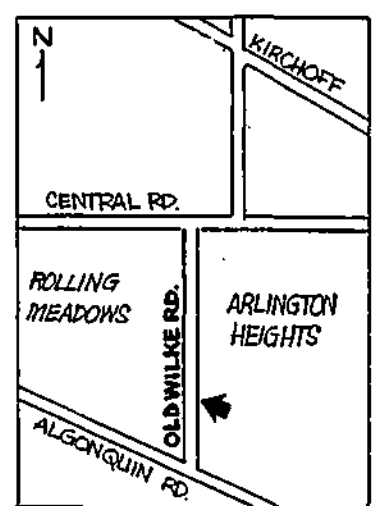

The county has completed New

Wilke between Central and Golf, but it has not started construction extending the new road north from Central to Kirchoff or installed the cul-de-sac. Muldowney said until the entire New Wilke roadway and the cul-de-sac are completed, the agreement places maintenance responsibility with the county.

THERE IS NO provision in the agreement for phasing, or for transfer of jurisdiction over sections of Old Wilke as corresponding sections of New Wilke are finished, he said.

However, Lewis R. Quinlan of the Cook County Highway Dept. said Muldowney is mistaken. The agreement shows segments of the roads listing the New Wilke segment between Algonquin and Golf separately, he said. Rolling Meadows has been duly notified, in the abandonment letter, of its responsibility with Arlington Heights for the segments of Old Wilke that correspond to completed sections of New Wilke, he said.

Any further action on Old Wilke south of Central is a matter to be taken up with the two municipalities, and the county will not involve itself in further debate, Quinlan said. Meanwhile, none of the taxing bodies is maintaining the highway. And Charles Jacobs doesn't know where he should send the bill for the tires he smashed in the potholes along the road.

Planners act to OK games center

The Rolling Meadows Plan Commission has recommended a change in city ordinances to allow a coin-operated amusement center within city limits.

Plan Commission Chairman Carl Couve Thursday said commission members voted unanimously to recommend a change in a city ordinance which outlaws pinball machines. The request was made by Mr. and Mrs. William Abrahams, who plan to open a coin-operated amusement center in the Coachlight shopping area near Kirchoff Road and Owl Drive. The center would feature electronic pinball and air hockey games.

The city council must take final action. Couve said commissioners "considered the fact that these are more or less electronic machines. There is no gambling connected with them." The plan commission suggested that the city council word the ordinance so coin-operated machines would be "a special use for certain areas," he said.

"We don't want these kind of machines to crop up in drug stores. We want to tie them down to specific areas," Couve said.

THE COMMISSION also suggested that the city council try to include a provision for approval of amusement centers on a trial basis, he said.

Rolling Meadows Park Director Steve Person told the plan commission that a coin-operated amusement center was needed in the area, Couve said.

"Police officials in other towns said there were no problems with the busnesses when there is adequate supervision," he said.

Person said Thursday that the park district might install pinball machines in the teen center if the ordinance is changed. He said the teen center would be supervised and pinball machines would be available to the public only when the center is open.

The park district installed pinball machines in the teen center last January but removed them when "we found out it was against the city ordinance," Person said.

TV and stereo gear stolen from home

Palatine police are investigating a burglary in which a portable television set and stereo equipment were reported stolen Wednesday night at the Harry Tregg home, 1305 Michele Dr.

The stereo equipment included a turntable, a tape deck and two speakers, police said. Entry was gained by cutting a screen in an enclosed porch, authorities said.

Some eyesores remain

Clean roads result from dump curbs

by DIANE MERMIGAS

There is less debris along the roadways in Palatine Township this summer because of efforts made last year to curb illegal dumping, but a few "eyesores" are still around, Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner said Thursday.

"We have been successful in scaring away people who continually dump their garbage in vacant lots along our roads. Either that, or with the economy being so bad, people just don't have as many things to dispose of as they used to," Bergman said.

The township, Sheriff's Police and Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office cracked down on excessive dumping in the township last summer by investigating and prosecuting owners of illegal dumping sites.

RESIDENTS who have been caught dumping have been fined $10 to $50 for the first offense and up to $500 for the third offense under the Illinois State Litter Control Act.

Sheriff's police patrol common dumping grounds to catch violators while residents living near vacant areas jot down the license plate numbers of cars seen near traditional dumping spots, Bergman said.

"With all this going on, we don't have nearly the same dumping problem that we had last summer," he said.

But, Bergman is quick to admit that several "sore spots" still remain in the township despite "an improved community consciousness about dumping," he said.

Rusty refrigerators and stoves, battered furniture and other household rubble is scattered along Northwest Highway between Palos and Doe roads. The attorney general's office has been trying for a year to find out who the owners of the property are so that continued dumping there can be prevented, said David Rosenbaum, investigator.

"WE ARE DOING all we can, but the property is held under a land trust and it is very difficult to find out who the owners are. Until we know, we can't contact anyone or prosecute anyone for dumping there," Rosenbaum said.

"The most isolated spot in the township," on Nichols Road between Ill.

Rte. 53 and Hicks Road, has continued to be "a haven for debris" this summer, Bergman said.

The attorney general's office is attempting to identify owners of the property without success, he said.

The township spent $8,000 last summer to clean debris off township rights-of-way and off the vacant lots owned by the township, he said.

FENCING AND lights installed by the township last summer in a vacant lot at Clyde and Wilson streets eliminated dumping there, Bergman said.

"We have budgeted $10,000 this year for cleaning up the township, although at the rate things are going, we may not need to use it all," he said.

The township highway department will open bids within two weeks for contractors to bulldoze debris off several township rights-of-way.

"As far as abandoned automobiles go, we haven't seen any yet this summer. It's almost the end of July and I just don't think we are going to have the problems this year that we had last year, and we sure aren't asking for it," Bergman said.

Plum Grove Hills hearings put off

Hearings for the proposed Plum Grove Hills development have been postponed indefinitely while details on the financing of an estimated $1.5 million well and reservoir on 365-acres are worked out.

A review of the preannexation agreement for the Plum Grove Hills parcel was canceled by Palatine officials Monday at the request of L. F. Draper and Associates, developers. No future reviews have been scheduled before the planning, building and zoning committees.

Palatine officials have indicated they want the well and reservoir constructed at the developer's expense. The main problem is deciding when the well should be constructed, Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said.

Jones said three or four different financing methods for the well and reservoir are being explored by village officials and checked with bonding consultants.

The village could serve approximately 760 units on the proposed development with its current water supply but does not have the capacity to serve all of the proposed 1,873 units, Jones said.

Draper has not responded to a suggestion that the proposed shopping center on the northwest corner of Euclid Avenue and Quentin Road be moved so it is not adjacent to the existing Hunting Ridge subdivision.

Four commercial areas totaling 35 acres are planned on the development. Draper has indicated he will develop the commercial areas but the residential areas may be built by other developers.

Village may have to pay to fence railroad tracks

A shortcut across the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks to Community Park will be fenced this summer, apparently at the expense of the Village of Palatine.

North Western officials have made no commitment to pay for the fence and still are trying to determine its need, cost and feasibility, Thomas Judge, a spokesman for the railroad, said Thursday.

A temporary barricade was put up by the village nearly two weeks ago at the request of residents in the area of Washington and Oak streets. The residents complained to the village about the hilly pathway after a 10-year-old boy was killed June 25 while sitting with friends at the top of the path.

The trustees agreed to install a permanent 40-foot fence across the path at the village's expense if the railroad does not act by Monday.

"The railroad has put up fences but the problem is people have a tendency to cut them down. If it's a path people are used to walking, they just don't see the railroad as private property," Judge said.

"We have put one up near Arlington Heights High School and the tracks and sometimes it doesn't even last two days," Judge added.

North Western officials are looking into the situation to see if the fence would do any good, he said. Another problem is the expense, he said.

"The railroad, like everyone else, has been hit with economic difficulties," Judge said.

The cost of installing the fence to connect two other fences has been estimated at $125. There has been talk of the village and railroad sharing the cost.

Flutist in workshop

Fremd High School student Lisa Zakrajsek was one of 1,824 elementary and high school musicians to attend the Illinois Summer Youth Music program at the University of Illinois in Urbana-Champaign. Miss Zakrajsek, a flutist, played in the senior wind ensemble during the two week session.

With 2 blood drives to go, village still needs 442 pints

The 1975 Palatine Blood Assurance Program is 442 pints away from its goal with only two blood drives remaining this year.

Nearly 350 potential donors will be needed for each of the remaining blood drives Sept. 26 and Nov. 22 to meet the goal of 1,310 pints because of rejections of possible donors, said Helen Wheaton of the blood donor committee.

A total of 159 pints was donated during the July blood drive.

"It was good but not as good as we had hoped. Summertime is always bad," Mrs. Wheaton said.

The 1,310-pint quota represents approximately 4 per cent of village residents. Under the blood assurance program all Palatine residents have an unlimited supply of blood available to them through the American Red Cross if the village quota is met. If the quota is not met, donors only will receive coverage for all their blood needs.

Residents do not need to donate blood to be eligible for blood replacement. Any resident having a need for blood should contact the Palatine Health Department, 358-7500.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:18 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

ed the astronauts in Moscow. They drank the first half with cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov be-

2 Hanover officials nabbed in kidnap

Three men, including two Hanover Park public works employees, were arrested Thursday in Schaumburg Township for the abduction of an alleged drug dealer, police said.

Authorities said the incident appeared to be of a vigilante nature; the three men apparently attempted to take the man into custody without police powers.

Charged with unlawful restraint and possession of a controlled substance were Edward J. Resner, of the village building department; Roger A. Scott, of the village engineering department; and Keith O. Brown.

The three were arrested about 2:35 a.m. by a Roselle patrolman after they allegedly abducted James J. Vandini, whom they said sold them drugs, said Assistant State's Atty. Terry Sullivan.

Vandini was charged with possession of a controlled substance after authorities found on him a plastic bag containing 90 white pills believed to be amphetamines, Sullivan said.

THE THREE allegedly were approached by Vandini for a drug sale while at the Chili Pub restaurant, Nerge and Roselle roads, authorities reported. They left the restaurant, and while in the parking lot reportedly were sold 75 pills, Sullivan said. One of the trio allegedly flashed a badge believed to be a building inspector's badge and told Vandini he was under arrest, according to reports.

At that time, patrolman George Daubs was driving past the parking lot and saw three men "frisking" a man, but ignored the situation because he thought it was an undercover drug arrest, Sullivan said.

But Daubs became suspicious when he saw no handcuffs were placed on the suspect and followed the four men when they drove off, Sullivan reported.

Daubs stopped the two cars at Plum Grove and Nerge roads when he clocked one of the vehicles traveling at 56 m.p.h. in a 45 m.p.h. zone, authorities said.

VANDINI TOLD Daubs he thought the three men were policemen, but when Daubs searched the trio, he did not find weapons and radioed for assistance, authorities said.

One of the three reportedly told

Daubs no police were summoned because the court system was ineffective and that Vandini would be on the street once arrested. Authorities said they did not know what the men planned to do with Vandini.

The drug charge against the three stemmed from the bag of 75 pills found in one of the cars. Both vehicles were village cars and were impounded by authorities.

Bond for Vandini was set at $4,000 and at $2,000 each for Resner, Scott and Brown.

Salt Creek may sue Arlington parks on annex goof

The Salt Creek Park District may join Wheeling Township residents in a lawsuit against the Arlington Heights Park District, James DeVos, Salt Creek Park District director, said Thursday.

The Salt Creek Park Board is considering the action because the Arlington Heights Park District inadvertently included a portion of the Salt Creek Park District in a recent annexation, DeVos said.

The Arlington Heights Park District has annexed the unincorporated Lynwood subdivision, bounded on the west by Wilke Road. The west side of Wilke Road, which is in Salt Creek Park District, was included in the annexation.

"IT'S UP TO the park board to decide if this is enough of an encroachment against the park district to get involved in a lawsuit. They (the Arlington Heights Park District) should voluntarily change the boundaries because what they did is against the law," DeVos said.

The Salt Creek Park Board will be advised by its attorney in August whether to take legal action, he said.

More than 100 residents of the Lynwood subdivision, north of Arlington Heights, have filed a lawsuit against the Arlington Heights Park District to block the annexation of their homes.

Attorneys representing the Salt Creek Park District and residents have agreed in a written stipulation that the Arlington Heights park district "mistakenly annexed a portion of the Salt Creek Park District," said Donald Kreger, attorney for the Lynwood residents.

"WE AGREE THAT the street should not have been annexed, but we disagree on how the matter will affect the lawsuit and the question of annexation that is before the court," Kreger said.

Kreger said he will contend that the action is enough to "nullify" the annexation of the Lynwood subdivision during a hearing scheduled Sept. 9 in the Circuit Court of Judge Edward Healey.

Timothy Riordan, Arlington Heights Park District attorney said he will work with the park board "to make arrangements to have the Salt Creek Park District property excluded from the original annexation."

"This was a small error that really has nothing to do with the question that is properly before the court," Riordan said.

JERRY ROEDEL, president of the Lynwood Homeowners Assn., said many of the area residents use Salt Creek Park District facilities and would rather be annexed to Salt Creek than to the Arlington Heights Park District.

"We think that Salt Creek should join in our lawsuit because the Arlington Heights Park District is trying to find any way it can to get all the property it can into its own district.

There is no morality in what they are doing," Roedel said.

Roedel referred to the Arlington Heights Park Board's recent attempts to annex the Arlington Park Race Track property which is located in the Salt Creek Park District and is its major source of income.

The park board has asked Arlington Heights village officials to push for the disconnection of the race track from the Salt Creek Park District by including it as a condition of any agreement the village makes on a proposed $29.7 million Chicago Bear's stadium at the track.

THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District has annexed more than 300 homes in unincorporated areas during the past six months under a new state law that allows involuntary annexation of areas less than 60 acres that are bounded on three sides by park district property and on a third side by a highway, a body of water or a railroad.

The newly annexed areas are expected to add about $10 million in assessed valuation to the park district.

199-unit subdivision urged in area

The Hoffman Estates Plan Commission has recommended approval of a proposal to build a 199-unit single-family home subdivision near Palatine and Freeman roads.

The commission voted unanimously Wednesday night to recommend forwarding the project plans to the village board for the start of action on annexation and development of the subdivision.

The proposal is being sponsored by the Realty Corp. of America (Realeco) which seeks to build the subdivision on 54 acres known as the Cipri Farm property.

The subdivision would consist of 125 single-family three- and four-bedroom homes and 74 zero-lot-line homes, which are built on smaller lots without traditional side and rear yards.

The zero-lot line homes would sell mid $60,000 to the low $70,000s. Conventional units would sell from the for an estimated $35,000 while the conventional attorney Kenneth Rawson said.

THE PROPOSAL is the second single-family home project being considered for unincorporated land bordering the village's northern sector near Palatine Road. Centex Homes Inc. has a major development proposed for 336 acres immediately south of the Cipri site.

The Centex plans for 940 single-family homes already have won approval from the plan commission. The village board has scheduled a public hearing Aug. 6.

If approved by the village board,

TV and stereo gear stolen from home

Palatine police are investigating a burglary in which a portable television set and stereo equipment were reported stolen Wednesday night at the Harry Tregg home, 1305 Michele Dr.

The stereo equipment included a turntable, a tape deck and two speakers, police said. Entry was gained by cutting a screen in an enclosed porch, authorities said.

Fire does $40,000 harm

Five persons escaped injury when a fire that did $40,000 damage broke out Thursday afternoon in a bedroom of a house at 1701 Bonita Dr., Mount Prospect.

Jo Ellen Schalk, who lives in the home, her son and three of her son's friends escaped the one-story home. A family dog also was evacuated.

Illegal meat seller fails to show in court

A man who tried to sell meat to Mount Prospect firemen last month failed to appear Wednesday in court on charges of doing business without a license and improper transportation of meat for sale.

The fine against Walter Schulze, 43, Glenview, was set at $25, the amount he posted for bond after his June 19 arrest. Schulze allegedly walked into the fire station carrying 12 boneless beef rib steaks as samples. One of his intended buyers was Police Chief Ralph J. Doney, who arrested him.

The blaze ignited when a spark from an overloaded window air-conditioning unit set a bookcase on fire, said Lt. Donald Barra of the Mount Prospect Fire Dept.

Most of the damage to the ranch-style home was structural, Barra said. The flames worked their way up to the inside roof although they were mostly confined to the west bedroom area. Bedroom furnishings were ruined, and thick smoke spread through the house, also causing extensive damage, he said.

FIREFIGHTERS fought the flames for about two hours but the blaze was brought under control about 10 minutes after crews arrived, Barra said.

One of the youths, Steve Martin, 17, of 1820 Bonita, said he, the Schalk's son Michael, 16, and two of their friends were in the house's attached garage about 4:30 p.m.

He said a neighbor came over and told them she noticed smoke coming from the bedroom window. The four ran into the house and alerted Mrs. Schalk, who was watching television, unaware of the fire. The neighbor called the fire department.

By the time the youths and Mrs.

Schalk got outside, the bedroom window was cracking and the fire and flame was coming and it just kept going," Martin said.

Her husband, Robert Schalk, was not home at the time.

Boat, fishing gear worth $1,000 stolen

Burglars stole an estimated $1,000 worth of boat and fishing equipment from a garage at 814 S. Owen St., Mount Prospect, police reported Thursday.

Police said the burglars apparently broke a garage door window, reached inside and then knocked off a pipe that had been holding the door shut. Owner George Bauer, who said the burglary occurred sometime between last Friday and Tuesday, told police the missing items included two boat motors and two boat gas tanks. Also taken was assorted fishing gear.

Murauskis hits hikes in water, trash rates

Norma Murauskis, unsuccessful trustee candidate in the April village election, Thursday attacked proposed water rate hikes and changes in garbage collection financing, saying they will burden Mount Prospect homeowners.

"We've been taxed and taxed, and now we are going to be service charged," she told members of the village board's finance committee. "It just seems to me somebody should have some mercy on the homeowners."

Mrs. Murauskis said developers of apartment complexes should assume more responsibility in any method chosen to solve village financial problems.

Admitting that the village does need funds to cover $371,000 of recently approved employee pay hikes, Mrs. Murauskis said much of this money could be raised by making apartment developers pay for their garbage collection.

"The reason we are so far in the hole as far as the garbage is concerned is because we have been paying for once-a-week pickup for all these apartment complexes that have sprung up," she said.

THE VILLAGE board is expected to formalize a shift in garbage fee collection at the Aug. 5 board meeting. Homeowners and apartment owners would be directly billed $3 for garbage pickup with the village covering the rest of the cost, which is 92 cents but will increase to $1.30 in October.

The village uses tax money to pay for once-a-week pickup for all residential areas.

Mrs. Murauskis also objected to the hind things," Mrs. Murauskis said. "What's the difference between that and a tax?"

TRUSTEE Edward B. Rhea Jr., chairman of the finance committee, said Mrs. Murauskis was in the wrong place to be voicing her objections. He said his committee had previously decided that such decisions would have to be reached by the entire board, and said she should attend the Aug. 5 meeting.

Maureen Falcon, 507 S. School St., also said she was unhappy with the garbage and water rate proposals. She accused the village of operating with $100,000 in management deadwood.

Mrs. Falcon said the village did not need a full complement of administrators such as a director of health services or even a village manager. Citing economic problems, Mrs. Falcon said the village should be able to do some belt-tightening like the rest of the country.

proposed 40 per cent water rate increase, which is expected to be formalized at the Aug. 5 meeting. Board members tentatively voted for the increase, which will boost rates from 75 cents to $1.05 per thousand gallons, so the water department can operate on a break-even basis. The rate hike would not affect the New Town area, which is served by Citizens Utilities Co.

Prospect woman wins pageant preliminary

Susan Busch, Mount Prospect's representative to the Miss Illinois pageant this week in Aurora, won a preliminary talent competition Wednesday that officials say make her a good bet to reach the semifinals.

Miss Busch, 20, of 907 S. Maple Dr., Mount Prospect, played Beethoven's "Pathetique" on the piano to win one of three contests before the final pageant Saturday night at Aurora High School.

"Susan's win pretty well says that she'll be a semifinalist because talent is such a big part of the contest," said Ron Weinrich, state field director for the Miss Illinois contest.

Each contestant participates in the three preliminary shows, Weinrich said. The women are judged on talent and in swimsuits and formal gowns. Talent is weighed the most heavily at 50 per cent, with swimsuits and formal gowns at 25 per cent each. The winner of the over-all competition will be selected as Miss Illinois Saturday night.

In addition to receiving a trophy, the preliminary winners accumulate points. The 10 with the most points are chosen as semifinalists.

Miss Busch is a music major at DePaul University, Greencastle, Ind. She was the second runnerup in the state pageant two years ago.

Extensioneers to travel

The Mount Prospect Extensioneers have planned several outings for the summer, including Sunday's trip to the Cloven Hoof in Marengo.

The group will leave at 1:15 p.m. from the Community Presbyterian Church, 407 N. Main St. Dinner will cost $4.50.

Starting Aug. 20, the group has planned a three-day trip to Michigan, which will include stops at Frankemuth, Dearborn, Greenfield Village and Battle Creek. The tour will cost $80. Information and reservations can be obtained by calling 255-3169.

Accused robber's case to grand jury

A Des Plaines man was bound over to the grand jury this week in connection with a Sept. 4, 1974 armed robbery at a Mount Prospect gas station.

Sheldon M. Jaffe, 34, of 421 Norman Ct., appeared Wednesday in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court. He is accused of taking $495 during the incident at what was then a Bulko gas station, Busse Road and Dempster Street.

At the time of his arrest, Jaffe also was charged with the robbery of Arlen's Pharmacy, 1717 E. Central Rd., Arlington Heights, Sept. 3, 1974, and an Aug. 31, 1974 robbery at a 7-Eleven

Store, Golf and Busse roads, Wheeling Township. He was arrested Sept. 5, 1974 by Mount Prospect police responding to a report of a suspicious vehicle near the 7-Eleven Store.

Jaffe already has been indicted for the other two robberies and is awaiting trial.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:18 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

Realty office to move

A couple interesting things are happening in downtown Mount Prospect.

The offices at 117 S. Main St., formerly occupied by The Mount Prospect Herald, will soon house Rich Port Realtor. The real estate firm is moving to the new quarters this weekend from its location at 8 E. Northwest Hwy.

Lols Anderson, manager of the Rich Port office, reports, "With this move, we will be tripling our office space and increasing our staff to better serve our customers."

"Rich Port's present location," Lols said, "may be occupied by another realtor, but that isn't firm yet."

The Herald, by the way, now has a local office at 621 W. Golf Rd. Publicity chairmen of clubs and groups may deposit news releases there.

THE FORMER CULLIGAN Water Conditioning plant at 3 W. Central Rd. soon will be the new offices of Dr. Alan D. McLean, plastic surgeon. He now is at 601 W. Central.

THREE COUPLES, known as "The Family," will present a vocal and instrumental musical program at St. Mark Lutheran Church Sunday at the 9 and 10:30 a.m. worship services. "Family" members have previously traveled with such well known groups as Joyous Celebration, New Kingsmen, Gospel Crusaders and others.

"Family" is traveling nationally on behalf of the Lutheran Bible Institute.

A GOLF OUTING with prizes for such things as 'first in the water and 'best putting with a croquet mallet' will be Saturday afternoon at Rob Roy Golf Course. It's the second annual Mount Prospect Invitational Two-Ball Golf Outing.

The 24 participants will have a potluck cookout immediately following at the home of the Frank Tangneys on South Maple.

THOMAS G. BLOMQUIST, 25, son of the E. R. Blomquists, 510 S. George St., has joined the production staff of MTM Enterprises in Hollywood, creators and producers of the "Mary Tyler Moore show," "Rhoda" and the "Bob Newhart Show."

In his capacity as associate to the vice president, Blomquist will develop new television pilots, series and movies. Additionally, he serves as assistant to the producer on "Three for the Road," a new dramatic series premiering on CBS this September. He is also writing an episode for the show.

A graduate of Prospect High School in 1968 and Southern Illinois University in 1972, Blomquist lives in North Hollywood, Calif.

VILLAGE MGR. Robert J. Eppley reports that the Mount Prospect State Bank will open its new quarters about Sept. 1, which puts the village hall move back to Oct. 1.

Train uncouples, cars block traffic 1 1/2 hours

Crosstown traffic in Mount Prospect was blocked at two locations and slowed at a third for about 90 minutes Thursday when a Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train uncoupled.

The front part of the train — the engine and about eight cars — continued northwest while most of the train was left behind. Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said he happened to be looking out the window when he saw the train separate about 11 a.m.

The section left behind blocked crossings at Mount Prospect Road and Emerson Street. Railroad gates were activated in the down position at the Main Street crossing also.

Doney notified the railroad while policemen were sent to direct traffic around the crossing gates at Main Street. Doney said the front section of the train returned about an hour later and the train moved on by 1 p.m.

River trails parks tighten rules for use

A new, tougher ordinance which governs the use of parks and behavior in them, has been adopted by the River Trails Park District.

The new ordinance, which defines dozens of misdemeanors and sets a penalty of up to $200 for each offense, is patterned after ordinances in use by several area park districts, including the Mount Prospect Park District.

The ordinance was passed because of a large amount of vandalism in the parks this spring and summer and because of large numbers of youths who have been gathering in the parks. It also was passed because the previous ordinance, approved in 1965, was considered inadequate.

THE NEW ORDINANCE pushes back the closing time for the parks from 9 to 10:30 p.m. This closing hour will be better policed than the previous one since the park district has begun hiring off-duty Mount Prospect patrolmen to guard the park sites.

The hindering of park employees at work, posters and vandalism are among the numerous items or acts outlawed by the ordinance. Also forbidden are injuring any plant life, pollution, harming or molesting of animals or birds, use of snowmobiles or go-carts and parking after the parks are closed.

Villas pond is a ducky place to live

There are plenty of crackers for the quackers

Life is simply ducky for some 50 wild and domestic waterfowl residing at the Lakeside Villas townhouse complex in Wheeling.

In exchange for the esthetic value they provide, the Brown mallards and white ducks are treated like pets, getting special considerations. They live in a manmade pond and are fed by homeowners and sheltered during bad weather.

"We give them the run of the place," says Irv Zabrin, salesman at the development whose office ledge recently protected 13 eggs during the hatching process. "They get special treatment."

Zabrin says neighbors "watch them carefully. They don't run over them."

When they decide to, the birds flaunt their get-up-and-go, waddling quickly and smartly in regimented fashion across Bridgeview Court north of Hintz Road, tying up whatever traffic there might be.

Zabrin, who admits he isn't an expert on life-styles of the waterfowl, figures they want to do more than just get on the other side of the road for getting-on-the-other-side-of-the-road's sake. They go "whenever they decide there's something better on the other side." How they sense this, he doesn't know, but he adds if you offer them a piece of bread they'll follow you anywhere.

The Mallards stick around during the summer months and stay just long enough to watch the broods hatch. Then they are on their way. "Where they go I don't know," says Zabrin, "They just come back in summer."

Each brood stays together as one unit. That's why they follow one another wherever they go.

"Whenever they go for a walk or a swim they are always led by the mother duck," Zabrin says. "In the rear, someplace, is the father."

Speeding crackdown cuts S-curve wrecks

The number of traffic accidents along the Ill. Rte. 83 S-curve in Mount Prospect is "definitely down" since police increased enforcement of the 25 m.p.h. speed limit 13 months ago, Police Chief Ralph J. Doney said.

The number of arrests for speeding also is up, averaging 68 per month for the past three months, police statistics show.

"We had only one accident on the S-curve during April, May and June this year," Doney said Thursday.

This compares with a fatal accident in May 1974 and five accidents without injuries the following month. The S-curve stretches from Milburn Avenue to Shabonee Trail.

THE FATAL accident last year became the motivating force behind a meeting of area residents with Doney and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley. A crackdown on speeders resulted.

STATISTICS FOR April through June this year show 198 speeding tickets were issued on the S-curve. There were 126 tickets issued in April, 43 in May and 29 in June. Doney said the number of tickets should increase this month because a patrolman recently was assigned the search for speeders and overweight trucks as his main duties.

The largest number of tickets during the three months were issued to drivers traveling between 36 m.p.h. and 40 m.p.h. in the 25 m.p.h. zone (110) and those traveling between 41 m.p.h. and 45 m.p.h. (80). There were 90 tickets issued to northbound drivers, 74 to southbound, 13 to eastbound and 21 to westbound. Morning speed-received 89 of the tickets.

NONRESIDENTS of the village received 145 tickets, with 53 for village residents.

"The officers are enforcing the S-curve speed limit as much as possible in addition to their other duties," Doney said. "I think that due to the stepped-up enforcement the number of violations has decreased. We will continue to enforce the speed limit at this location."

Most of the tickets have stood up in court. Doney said that for the three months, 144 of the speeding tickets have come up in court. There were 127 convictions and 17 dismissals. Another 39 cases have been continued and 15 have not been heard.

Bounary blunder

Park annex suit looms

The Salt Creek Park District may join Wheeling Township residents in a lawsuit against the Arlington Heights Park District. James DeVos, Salt Creek Park District director, said Thursday.

The Salt Creek Park Board is considering the action because the Arlington Heights Park District inadvertently included a portion of the Salt Creek Park District in a recent annexation, DeVos said.

The Arlington Heights Park District has annexed the unincorporated Lynwood subdivision, bounded on the west by Wilke Road. The west side of Wilke Road, which is in Salt Creek Park District, was included in the annexation.

"IT'S UP TO the park board to decide if this is enough of an encroachment against the park district to get involved in a lawsuit. They (the Arlington Heights Park District) should voluntarily change the boundaries because what they did is against the law," DeVos said.

The Salt Creek Park Board will be advised by its attorney in August

Jaycee Wives plan lunch for officers

In addition to assisting their husbands in projects, the Jaycee Wives sponsor outings to the Americana Nursing Home, the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, fund raising for the breast cancer thermography unit at Northwest Community Hospital, and food donations for the needy.

Lions to sponsor swimming meet

The Lions Club of Arlington Heights will sponsor the 1975 Arlington Heights championship swimming meet Aug. 2 at Olympic Park pool, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Warm-ups will start at 8 a.m., with formal competition beginning at 9 a.m. The village champion will be announced at noon.

To be eligible, contestants must be members of swim teams at Camelot, Frontier, Heritage, Olympic, Pioneer or Recreation parks. Recreation Park is the defending champion.

Medals will be awarded by Lions Club members for first place, and ribbons will be given for second through sixth place.

whether to take legal action, he said.

More than 100 residents of the Lynwood subdivision, north of Arlington Heights, have filed a lawsuit against the Arlington Heights Park District to block the annexation of their homes.

Attorneys representing the Salt Creek Park District and residents have agreed in a written stipulation that the Arlington Heights park district "mistakenly annexed a portion of the Salt Creek Park District," said Donald Kreger, attorney for the Lynwood residents.

"WE AGREE THAT the street should not have been annexed, but we disagree on how the matter will affect the lawsuit and the question of annexation that is before the court," Kreger said.

Kreger said he will contend that the action is enough to "nullify" the annexation of the Lynwood subdivision during a hearing scheduled Sept. 9 in the Circuit Court of Judge Edward Healey.

Timothy Riordan, Arlington Heights Park District attorney said he will work with the park board "to make arrangements to have the Salt Creek Park District property excluded from the original annexation."

"This was a small error that really has nothing to do with the question that is properly before the court," Riordan said.

JERRY ROEDEL, president of the Lynwood Homeowners Assn., said many of the area residents use Salt Creek Park District facilities and would rather be annexed to Salt Creek than to the Arlington Heights Park District.

"We think that Salt Creek should join in our lawsuit because the Arlington Heights Park District is trying to find any way it can to get all the property it can into its own district. There is no morality in what they are doing," Roedel said.

Roedel referred to the Arlington Heights Park Board's recent attempts to annex the Arlington Park Race Track property which is located in the Salt Creek Park District and is its major source of income.

The park board has asked Arlington Heights village officials to push for the disconnection of the race track from the Salt Creek Park District by including it as a condition of any agreement the village makes on a proposed $29.7 million Chicago Bear's stadium at the track.

THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District has annexed more than 300 homes in unincorporated areas during the past six months under a new state law that allows involuntary annexation of areas less than 60 acres that are bounded on three sides by park district property and on a third side by a highway, a body of water or a railroad.

The newly annexed areas are expected to add about $10 million in assessed valuation to the park district.

BARGAIN HUNTERS go through the racks on the streets of downtown Arlington Heights as "Sidewalk Days" sale opened Thursday. An estimated 8,000 people visited the sale, which continues today.

Fights may spark return of table

by JOE SWICKARD

A trio of controversies has prompted a proposed revival of the Mayor's Round Table sessions in Arlington Heights.

Trustee Robert H. Miller, chairman of the village board's community services committee, suggested reinstating the informal question-and-answer sessions between village officials and residents.

Miller said the village board is facing three topics likely to generate heat in the upcoming months and the Mayor's Round Table would give officials an opportunity to exchange views with the residents in a less-structured setting than village board meetings.

THE THREE controversies are the proposed professional football stadium and residential, commercial and light industrial development at Arlington Park Race Track; the village utility tax; and proposed installation of new street lamps.

Traditionally, the round tables are held with one homeowners' group at a time, although on some occasions as many as 15 groups have met with officials.

Miller proposed holding the meetings twice a month with four trustees, the village president and a representative of the village administration on hand to answer questions.

Trustees would rotate in their attendance so they would have only one a month, Miller said.

HE SUGGESTED a format that would have questions to the officials submitted before the sessions. Miller said this would give the administration time to research the answers.

Once regularly scheduled events, the tables were eliminated after only three trustees appeared to answer questions from a coalition of 15 homeowners' groups on a $16.5 million flood control referendum in March 1974. The referendum was rejected by the voters in May 1974.

Hasbrook Park pond may be changed

There is still a possibility that modifications to the Hasbrook Park pond will be made this year, Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding said Thursday.

Plans are being drawn now for regrading part of the park and lowering the slopes around the basin to improve stormwater drainage in the area.

"I still have some hope that we can do this work this fall," Palmatier said.

THE FENCE around the pond will remain. A proposal by the Arlington Heights Park District to remove it met with overwhelming opposition from Hasbrook area residents, and was dropped.

The estimated cost of the Hasbrook work is $192,000. Federal revenue-sharing funds would be used to pay for the construction.

Three other flood control projects are being assembled for general obligation bond financing and possible construction in 1976, Palmatier said.

They are:

- The Salt Creek Watershed Project, which involves storm water storage on a nine-hole golf course planned at the former Arlington Heights Nike Base.

- The Ridge Park-Sherwood Project, a retention basin to be located across from the public works center.

- The Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls Project, which calls for a basin to be built east of Thomas Junior High School, all are being programmed for next year.

Apollo splashes down in triumph

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Three U.S. astronauts ended the triumphant Age of Apollo Thursday with a safe Pacific Ocean splashdown and said their orbital flight with two Russian cosmonauts marked the beginning of a new era.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford and civilians Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton flew the last Apollo to a flawless landing 328 miles west of Hawaii at 4:18 p.m. CDT.

Flight controllers in Houston cheered and waved small U.S. flags. The huge map in Houston control that had charted Apollo's progress as it circled the globe linked to Russia's green Soyuz spaceship bore the sign: "Mission accomplished."

President Ford telephoned congratulations to the astronauts, who said they would like to fly him in space someday.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent a telegram of congratulations to the astronauts, Ford and the American people.

"I'm glad to come home," said Slayton, one of America's original seven Mercury astronauts and, at 51, the oldest man to fly in space. Grounded for 14 long years by a heart irregularity, he had just completed his first mission.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton bridged the gap between past and future in space in their 10-day mission. They flew a craft designed to beat the Russians to the moon. But they flew it to meet Russians, work with them as a single crew and show that equipment and men can perform future cooperative missions.

Officials of both nations already were talking of possible trips by international crews aboard America's new space shuttle rocket plane, scheduled to start flying in four years, to visit Soviet space stations in orbit.

"The main thing," Stafford said from the deck of the New Orleans, "is this is the end of one era, Apollo, and the beginning of another."

Flight controllers in Moscow, who worked in tandem last week with Houston control on the world's first international manned space mission, followed the Apollo splashdown as closely as did their American colleagues. The Russian spacemen landed Monday.

Dist. 59's 'pot of gold' emptied, tax vote likely

by JUDY JOBBITT
A news analysis

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 residents are getting more education than they've paid for, which is forcing the district into severe financial problems next year.

The district projects a $2.5-million deficit with next year's budget and sees expenditures exceeding revenue for years to come.

Dist. 59 has been considered a rich district in years past but its riches depended on high and increasing assessed valuation which mostly came from Centex Industrial park. The industries in the district have carried the financial burden, paying about 60 per cent of its tax revenue. But this pot of gold has been emptied by the state with its formula for funding schools.

THE DEFICIT was not an unexpected turn of events. The district has forecast financial problems for the past several years.

A referendum cry is not new. The school board has been talking about a 15-cent tax hike for the past two years and tax increases were sought for three years running in 1969-71 but the voters turned them down. The last time the voters approved a tax increase was in 1965 leaving the district with a $1.80 maximum tax rate.

Long-range studies also were released in 1973 and 1974 which projected severe financial deficits. The 1976-77 school year was the year of doom, according to both studies, when drastic measures would have to be taken or tax increases approved by the voters.

A 15-cent tax referendum was shelved in 1973 when a survey of the community showed a referendum would fail.

Last December when the 1974 study by a citizens' committee came out, the board was advised that the referendum would not be needed for the 1975-76 school year but should be considered this fall for the following year.

These projections were pushed up by six months with the state aid formula catching up with the district and turning the financial picture around.

THE STATE-AID formula is based on the three factors — assessed valuation, student enrollment and local tax effort. Simply stated, the higher the assessed valuation, the less money from the state. The lower the enrollment the less money from the state since money is figured on a per pupil basis. And for Dist. 59 the local tax effort is the kicker.

If the people don't put up their share in taxes neither will the state, according to the formula. The state has set a tax rate of $1.95 for districts to receive the maximum in aid. Dist. 59, with its current $1.80 is 15 cents short.

The district has three alternatives to alleviate its deficit — continue its heavy borrowing practices until the lenders will give no more, eliminate programs or increase taxes.

In recent years the district has borrowed the maximum allowed by the state — 75 per cent of its assessed valuation — in tax anticipation warrants. The district pays about $100,000 each year in interest to pay the previous year's debts.

But the district's borrowing power also is shrinking in relation to the amount needed. To meet its budget next year the district will need about $600,000 more in tax anticipation warrants than the state will allow.

IT ALSO CAN go the route of issuing teacher orders, a type of promissory note. The teacher orders are a method of borrowing by using the district's bonding power as collateral. Again the district would pay about 6 per cent interest a year on this loan and residents would see a tax increase.

Cutting programs is an unpopular alternative in a district that has prided itself on quality education. The district had budgeted a 4.5 per cent increase in expenditures next year, excluding salary increases, a figure comparable to neighboring districts.

A tax rate increase of 15 cents would raise the district's taxing effort to state expectations and would result in the district receiving the maximum state aid allowed. Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services, said this would not solve all the financial problems but it is the only factor in the state aid formula taxpayers can control.

Without a tax-rate increase the board will be facing some difficult decisions in the coming months. A referendum is an obvious solution, but the board expressed concern that its previous track record would hold true and the referendum would be voted down.

Poklacki to get school board position Monday

Erwin Poklacki will be appointed to the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education Monday night.

Poklacki will fill the board vacancy created by the resignation of Gerald Smiley last Monday. He will serve the rest of Smiley's one-year term that expires in April. Smiley resigned because his business responsibilities would prevent him from attending board meetings.

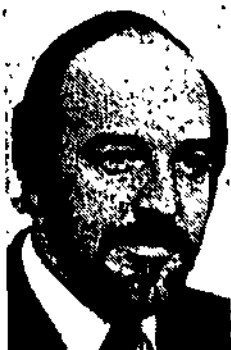

The board during a work session Thursday night agreed that Poklacki would be appointed to the board. The board must take final action on the appointment at a board meeting Monday at 7:15 p.m. at the administration center.

POKLACKI, 1223 S. Fernandez Ave., Arlington Heights, served on the board from 1971-74. He currently is president of the Dist. 59 School Community Council and has served on various district committees.

He decided not to seek reelection when his term expired for personal reasons. Poklacki is a chemist at Borg-Warner Research Center in Des Plaines and has four children.

In selecting Poklacki, the board members said they were seeking someone with experience because of decisions that must be made within the coming weeks.

"He can come on the board as a fully active member immediately," said board member Avls Wold.

THE BOARD MUST decide whether to hold a tax rate referendum this fall with the district facing a $2.5 million deficit for the 1975-76 school year.

If a referendum is held and fails, the board must decide whether it will extend its current borrowing policies or drastically cut programs.

Other candidates considered by the board were Donald Curtis McKim, 159 W. Brantwood Ave., Elk Grove Village, and Sue Evenwel, 95 E. Shelly Rd., Elk Grove Village. McKim was defeated in the April board election when he ran for a three-year term. Mrs. Evenwel has been a volunteer worker in the district for the past two years.

Schools consider abolition of kindergarten bus fees

Kindergarten students in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 may not pay any bus fees next year.

The Dist. 59 school board considered eliminating the current $31 annual bus fee for kindergarten students who want to ride the bus to school but live within one mile of school. Kindergarten students living more than one mile from school are bused by the district and do not pay a fee.

Other students were permitted to ride the bus to school if they lived more than eight-tenths of a mile from school but paid the fee.

If the board adopts the new bus fee policy for kindergarten students, the district will continue its policy of having bus stops no closer than eight-tenths of a mile from school, but parents could have their kindergarten children walk to the nearest bus stop despite their proximity to school.

THE BOARD will take action on the policy at the August board meeting.

In other action the board approved issuing working cash bonds for $4.65 million. This revenue will be transferred to the education fund and will be reimbursed from property taxes received in the education and building fund over the next 10 years.

The board also approved bids for:

- $375 to remove debris and construct a drainage ditch by Jay School, 1835 W. Phenasant Tr., Mount Prospect.

- $18,650 to Mike Brothers for remodeling at Grove Junior High School, 777 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, and at High Ridge Knolls School, 588 S. Dara James, Des Plaines.

- $56,843 to Modern Dairy Co., Elgin, for milk next year which will be reimbursed through federal funding and student fees for milk.

Villas pond is a ducky place to live

There are plenty of crackers for the quackers

Life is simply ducky for some 50 wild and domestic waterfowl residing at the Lakeside Villas townhouse complex in Wheeling.

In exchange for the esthetic value they provide, the Brown mallards and white ducks are treated like pets, getting special considerations. They live in a manmade pond and are fed by homeowners and sheltered during bad weather.

"We give them the run of the place," says Irv Zabrin, salesman at the development whose office lodge recently protected 13 eggs during the hatching process. "They get special treatment."

Zabrin says neighbors "watch them carefully. They don't run over them."

When they decide to, the birds flaunt their get-up-and-go, waddling quickly and smartly in regimented fashion across Bridgeview Court north of Hintz Road, tying up whatever traffic there might be.

Zabrin, who admits he isn't an expert on life-styles of the waterfowl, figures they want to do more than just get on the other side of the road for getting-on-the-other-side-of-the-road's sake. They go "whenever they decide there's something better on the other side." How they sense this, he doesn't know, but he adds if you offer them a piece of bread they'll follow you anywhere.

The Mallards stick around during the summer months and stay just long enough to watch the broods hatch. Then they are on their way. "Where they go I don't know," says Zabrin. "They just come back in summer."

Each brood stays together as one unit. That's why they follow one another wherever they go.

"Whenever they go for a walk or a swim they are always led by the mother duck," Zabrin says. "In the rear, someplace, is the father."

Old Wilkie repair debate continues

by NANCY COWGER

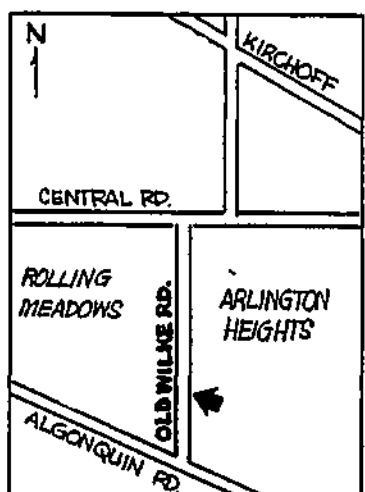

The ball bounced back to Cook County this week in the dispute over who is responsible for maintenance of Old Wilkie Road.

Charles Jacobs, 2407 Oak Ln., Rolling Meadows, accepted the verdict of Rolling Meadows officials that Cook County is responsible for failure to maintain the road, even though the county denies ownership.

Jacobs has been seeking reimbursement for about a month for two automobile tires ruined when he had to swerve into potholes along the edge of the road to avoid an accident. The mishap occurred between Algonquin and Central roads.

COOK COUNTY tried to rid itself of responsibility a year ago, when it sent Rolling Meadows notice it had abandoned the road and was turning ownership over to the city. City Engineer James Muldowney said. But Muldowney cited a 1969 agreement, reaffirmed in 1973, between the county, the city and Arlington Heights, which borders the east side of Old Wilkie.

The agreement stated the county would continue to own and be responsible for the roadway until completion of New Wilkie from Kirchhoff to Algonquin roads and installation of a cul-de-sac at Kirchhoff, Muldowney said.

The county has completed New Wilkie between Central and Golf, but it has not started construction extending the new road north from Central to Kirchhoff or installed the cul-de-sac. Muldowney said until the entire New Wilkie roadway and the cul-de-sac are completed, the agreement places maintenance responsibility with the county.

THERE IS NO provision in the agreement for phasing, or for transfer of jurisdiction over sections of Old Wilkie as corresponding sections of New Wilkie are finished, he said.

However, Lewis R. Quinlan of the Cook County Highway Dept. said Muldowney is mistaken. The agreement shows segments of the roads listing the New Wilkie segment between Algonquin and Golf separately, he said. Rolling Meadows has been duly notified, in the abandonment letter, of its responsibility with Arlington Heights for the segments of Old Wilkie that correspond to completed sections of New Wilkie, he said.

Any further action on Old Wilkie south of Central is a matter to be taken up with the two municipalities, and the county will not involve itself in further debate, Quinlan said.

Meanwhile, none of the taxing bodies is maintaining the highway. And Charles Jacobs doesn't know where he should send the bill for the tires he smashed in the potholes along the road.

'Late entrant' gets seat on Dist. 21 school board

Barbara Farr, a last-minute candidate for the vacant seat on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education was named to that post Thursday.

Mrs. Farr applied Friday for the post vacated by Edwin Smith who recently resigned. Mrs. Farr, 48, lives at 60 E. Jeffery Ave., Wheeling. A resident of the village for 20 years, she is an instructor in British history at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus.

Mrs. Farr said she had just heard of the vacancy Friday and had not been active in the district's affairs until her appointment.

Board Pres. Jack Lane said Mrs. Farr was the unanimous choice of board members. Four candidates applied for appointment to the seat.

"I have no special interest, or ax to grind," Mrs. Farr said. "I'm very pleased to be picked from the very fine field of candidates."

Smith resigned July 1 after serving on the board for eight years. Other candidates for the vacancy were:

- James DeNoma, 544 White Pine Rd., Buffalo Grove, a guidance counselor at Rolling Meadows High school and former teacher at Prospect High School. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the board in April.

- William Engebretson, 124 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, a research technician for Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines.

- Linda Marulles, 330 Windsor Dr., Buffalo Grove, now a member of the citizens' committee for health, safety and facilities a former PTA board member at Alcott School.

Alternative to Kensington plan

Dist. 59 to offer deaf ed class

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will offer an academic program to deaf children in the district as an alternative to the areawide program offered at Kensington School, Arlington Heights. Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said Thursday he met with parents to discuss alternative programs. "The board is committed to try and work something out that's best for the children and parents in Dist. 59. We listed several possibilities for them, mainly the establishment of a self-contained classroom," he said.

The Northwest Suburban Special Education board Wednesday night voted to keep the areawide deaf education program at Kensington after several months of parent requests to move the program.

AT LEAST SEVEN of the 18 families with children at Kensington threatened to remove their children from the program if it was not moved.

Bardwell said five or six Dist. 59 families have requested placement in the Dist. 59 program. Disgruntled parents from other districts are "a problem we can't deal with. They will have to take action with their own districts," he said.

Bardwell said he was disappointed with the NSSEO vote. Dist. 59 officials requested that the NSSEO board consider moving the entire deaf program to a Dist. 59 school.

"Our motives were very sincere. Much of education is a question of attitudes and values. I think the program did need a fresh start in a new place," he said.

BARDWELL SAID setting up a single classroom in the district would cost $20,000.

"We budgeted to cover the possibility of taking over the whole deaf education program," he said. "We are estimating now an initial cost of $20,000 with most of that being reimbursed to us by the state."

Bardwell said the district will not have to pay tuition of about $2,300 per student to NSSEO and "in the long range it will balance out."

Bardwell said parents also discussed having their children attend Kensington half-time and attend a Dist. 59 program half-time or using interpreters in a regular classroom. Setting up a single classroom seemed to be the most viable alternative, he said.

The Dist. 59 board is expected to act on an alternative program at its Aug. 18 meeting.

Car dealership rezoning urged

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission recommended approval Wednesday of plans by Nicholas Lattof to rezone the southwest corner of Dryden Avenue and Kensington Road. The site includes an unnamed village street that runs diagonally between Dryden and Kensington across from the Arlington Market shopping center.

Lattof plans to use the property in conjunction with his Chevrolet auto dealership. The land will be used for the storage of cars at first, with the possibility of building on it later.

He is also seeking to have the short diagonal street vacated.

The rezoning will next go to the village board for final action. No date has been set for the hearing.

Arlington Hts. Girl in state pageant

Mary Jenkins, 18, of 607 Walnut St., Arlington Heights, is Miss Countryside Mall's representative to the Miss Illinois contest in Aurora Saturday.

Miss Jenkins is a graduate of Rolling Meadows High School and plans on attending Illinois Wesleyan University in the fall. She will play the piano and sing in the talent competition.

"I'm very excited just to be a part of the pageant," Miss Jenkins said. "The competition is very tough and you never know how it's going to turn out. All I can do is hope for the best."

Students learn practical way

by DAVE GALANTI

Chris Immen appeared to be in pretty bad shape. Blood oozed out of his mouth, his face was white and part of a bone stuck out of his leg.

Two paramedic students reached Immen and began to examine him quickly. This done, they began to take corrective measures, checking blood pressure and bandaging wounds.

Fortunately, Immen's injuries consisted only of glued-on plastic injuries and red liquid. What might have been an actual situation was actually part of a practical final examination concluding a four-month paramedic course at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. The paramedic students were being tested on their reactions under simulated disaster conditions.

THE STUDENTS were quizzed on eight different types of emergencies. Besides examining and relieving severe trauma cases, students were expected to know how to unblock air passages and detect different types of heart disorders.

The "injured" were members of Explorer Post 334, Arlington Heights. Besides Immen, other Explorers acted as accident and psychotic victims as part of their interest in medicine and the hospital.

The paramedic course, which consists of 23 four-hour classes, begins with basic lifesaving measures and then goes into detail on how to treat more serious cases, said Dale Collier, paramedic class instructor-coordinator. The students are taught to perform under standard procedures on their own without communication with a hospital.

THE STUDENTS in Collier's class all have been graduated from an 81-hour Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) course, which teaches anatomy and other basics. The majority of participants are from fire departments, but some are from private ambulance services and other agencies.

Collier said the program will enter its fourth year in November and has many more applicants than it can handle. Class size is limited to 35 to 40 per class, and a priority system has been set up to determine who may take the course.

The paramedics will not be officially certified by the state until they complete 52 hours of emergency room and hospital training and five trips with a certified paramedic to actual emergencies. The entire process usually takes from nine months to one year, Collier said.

Homeowners' sale to benefit basin

The Arlington Manor Homeowners' Assn. will have a yard and garage sale Saturday and Sunday to raise funds for the installation of a catch basin.

The sale will be held on the 1100 block of S. Pine Street from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., both days.

Proceeds from the sale will go toward the installation of the basin on either Pine Street or Belmont Avenue to help eliminate overland flooding in the area.
